BERLIN, July 30.—Despite Hitler's orders to curb individual acts of terrorism against Jews and Catholics, in an effort to pacify indignant foreign opinion, demonstrations and repressive measures against both groups continued today. In addition the Steel Helmet war veterans had a further setback when their organization was ordered disbanded in Saxony.

One of the most flagrant examples of anti-Jewish violence was the shooting of a Jewish clothing salesman in Kurfuersten-Damm section, near the scene of the recent anti-Jewish riots. Dozens of people witnessed the shooting in this busy thoroughfare and heard cries of "Jew swine" before shots were fired.

Engaged in Brawl.

The victim of the shooting was a man named Neuhaus, an employé in a branch of a formerly Jewish men's wear store, which now stresses that it is purely "Aryan."

Neuhaus left a saloon after midnight with two men. A fist fight ensued. Anti-Jewish cries were heard. When Neuhaus was on the ground his adversaries poured four bullets into him. Neuhaus still was living this afternoon when doctors operated on him. The other brawlers were arrested.

A wave of smut such as German readers have never seen before passed over the front pages of most papers today besmirching Catholics and Jews. Lurid details of sexual crimes of all descriptions ascribed to Catholic lay brothers and Jews filled columns. Jew baiters placarded Berlin with glaring five foot posters advertising Julius Streicher's magazine Stuermer which carries an article about the alleged raping of German women by Jews in Magdeburg.

Press Accuses Monks.

Attacks on Catholics center around the twelve monks of the congregation of the Brothers of Mercy who look after imbeciles and cripples in an institution near Recklinghausen.

The governor of the district of Muenster warned officials that if they or their children belong to Catholic organizations they have no chance of advancing, getting extra holidays or additional pay. Parents also were warned that children who are not in the official Hitler Youth have no real future in Nazi Germany.

In the Saar, recently reannexed to Germany, Gov. Joseph Buerckel disbanded all church youth groups with sport, political and military aims, and ordered youth organizations in religious activities henceforth to abandon uniforms, insignia and banners.

Priest Flees Arrest.

According to the Essener Zeitung, Chaplain Rohe of Dinslaken said in a sermon that "Rosenburg (Alfred Rosenburg, pagan movement leader) and the leader of the German heathens, Hauer, are false prophets and servants of satan." When the G. S. P. tried to arrest the priest he fled.

In the town of Halle seven Jews were arrested for consorting with six German women, who also were arrested. Breslau arrested twenty-four Jews and German women "for directly endangering public security through racial shamelessness." The men were interned in the Lichtenburg camp and the women in the Moringen camp.

The Frankfurter Volksblatt tells of a young expectant mother from Wiesbaden who was placed in a concentration camp on the accusations of her own parents. The girl wanted to marry a Jewish tradesman. The parents prevented the marriage and denounced her.

STATE SPEEDS CONFESSIONS TO GRAND JURORS

Prepares to Demand Electric Chair.

Indictments will be sought today against Mrs. Evelyn Smith and Mrs. Blanche Dunkel for the murder of Ervin Lang, Mrs. Dunkel's son-in-law. Confessions made by both women will be read to the grand jury and if true bills are voted there is a possibility that the case can be disposed of next week. Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty said that death in the electric chair would be demanded for both women.

This quick action will depend, investigators admitted, on whether the women stand by their admissions that Mrs. Smith, at Mrs. Dunkel's behest and upon a promise of $500, strangled Lang, a 28 year old grocery clerk, then severed his legs from his body with a hacksaw on the night of July 5. The torso was found in a swamp north of Hammond on July 9 and the legs were recovered eight miles away nine days later.

Evelyn Smith Confesses.

Early yesterday Mrs. Smith, who was brought back by plane from New York, where she was arrested last Saturday, confessed the murder, verifying in all except a few details the story told by Mrs. Dunkel shortly after her arrest on July 10. Mrs. Smith's confession was made to Assistant State's Attorney Dougherty and Investigator Roy Arnold of the state's attorney's office.

When it was over the Smith woman, a laundress who in her younger days performed "strip-tease" dances in a west side burlesque house, was taken to a hotel and allowed to sleep. Mrs. Dunkel, a grandmother formerly employed in the linen room of Passavant hospital, who twice confronted Mrs. Smith before the latter's confession, went to another hotel.

Mrs. Smith's confession was typed and taken to her later in the morning. She signed it with the same equanimity with which she made the oral admissions.

Ten Witnesses Subpenaed.

Mr. Dougherty then announced that ten witnesses, including Mrs. Dunkel, had been served with subpenas to appear before the grand jury this morning. Lang's mother-in-law, who matches the confessed slayer in lack of physical charm, will be asked to sign an immunity waiver before she testifies.

Speed in disposition of the murder case would be possible if both women pleaded guilty. Under Criminal court procedure they would be arraigned either on Friday or Monday. Guilty pleas might result in sentences next week.

If the two defendants plead not guilty, it was explained, their trial will probably be delayed until the September term of court since Prosecutor Dougherty is scheduled soon to go on his vacation.

Story Behind Confession.

With announcement of the grand jury witnesses came the story of what actually brought Mrs. Smith's confession. It came only after she had been confronted by Andrew Culler, one of her numerous men friends.

Culler, who is 52 years old and lives at 1325 North Dearborn street, did not appear publicly in the case until early yesterday when Dougherty and others had almost given up their first efforts to wring a confession from the Smith woman. She had told contradictory stories for hours as she smoked cigaret after cigaret, but still she denied that she had had a hand in the killing. By inference she charged Mrs. Dunkel with the actual murder, which, according to the confessions of both women, was committed in Mrs. Smith's apartment at 731 Barry avenue.

In her nonchalance the Smith woman had even looked at a picture of Lang's body as it was found in the swamp and had shown no emotion.

Culler Confronts Woman.

Then Culler was brought in and directed to repeat before Mrs. Smith a story he had previously told state's attorney's investigators in secret.

Culler said that Evelyn and Mrs. Dunkel had offered him $500 during the third week in May if he would kill Lang. He refused, he said.

Mrs. Smith listened closely to this damaging evidence. Then suddenly,

Mexico Upsets Lax Marriages of Americans

The Mexican government has acted to annul the marriage in Agua Caliente in 1933 of Nathan and Claire Borin, on the ground of irregularities. This was revealed here yesterday. It was announced that the southern republic was acting on the grounds of public policy to put an end to marriage and divorce abuses under its laws.

The Mexican action became known when Superior Judge Joseph B. David issued an injunction restraining Mrs. Borin, who lives in California, from participating in the annulment proceedings in Mexico. The injunction was granted to Mr. Borin, who is president of the Borin Art Products corporation, 2641 Polk street.

A Coincidence in Suits.

By a coincidence, the Mexican suit, filed by the Mexican attorney general in the Circuit court at Tia Juana on July 12, came at a time when the Borins were seeking legal separation here. Mrs. Borin filed suit for separate maintenance in the Superior court on March 25, a week after her husband had filed suit for $500,000 in Los Angeles against E. M. Asher, motion picture producer, charging that he alienated Mrs. Borin's affections. On April 8 Borin filed a cross bill for divorce.

Borin learned of the Mexican annulment proceedings through the filing of a notice of the Tia Juana action in the Superior court on Saturday by Russell Baker, attorney for the Mexican consul in Chicago. Assuming that his estranged wife had instigated the Mexican proceedings, Borin obtained the injunction.

Irritated by Publicity.

Attorney Baker declared that the Mexican government's action was independent of the court proceedings here. He explained that the government he represents, annoyed at publicity given the Mexican marriages and divorces of nonresidents, including members of the Hollywood film industry, has been scanning the records and planning action to put an end to "easy" marriages and divorces.

In the case of the Borins, he said, there were several irregularities. They did not comply with the residence requirements, failed to obtain a medical certificate, and did not produce two witnesses who had lived in Mexico for three years as required by law, the lawyer said.

"It was found," Baker said, "that abuses have been frequent in the federal territory in which Tia Juana and Agua Caliente are located."

M'CUTCHEON IN CHILE

Cartoonist enters into financial transactions on a colossal scale.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 30.—Yesterday we dealt with scenery on a grand scale. Today we dealt with money on a grand scale. Our hotel room is 140 pesos daily, and one meal for three involves a financial transaction in astronomical figures. A small automobile costs 34,000 pesos.

Today we motored 85 miles to Valparaiso, over two mountain ranges with more curves than Mae West in her palmiest day. We paid 550 pesos for the trip, but bore up because the peso is now under four cents.

Valparaiso is interesting and colorful, with many small funicular railways to the hillside street levels overlooking the busy horseshoe harbor. The surroundings suggest southern California, without the billboards, filling stations and imitation Spanish bungalows.

Japanese cherry and mimosa trees are blooming despite the recent coldest winter in twenty years. The suburb Vina del Mar [no relation to the American writer of fever fiction] is slightly reminiscent of the Riviera.

SEEKS TO RIME NEW DEAL CASH AND POETIC HASH

Washington, D. C., July 30.—[Special.]—A government bureau office, knee deep in rejection slips, was the scene conjured up here today by whimsical ones who listened to details of a proposed $500,000 project to aid unemployed poets.

The plan was hopefully advanced by the Poet Laureate league, Inc., of Washington, with the observation that the sum sought is but a third of that devoted to the art project.

The author of the plan proposes to link it with the bill of Representative William J. Sirovich [Dem., N. Y.], for the creation of federal department of art, science, and literature.

Gillett, Former Senator and Speaker, Dead

Springfield, Mass., July 31 [Wednesday].—(AP)—Former United States Senator Frederick H. Gillett died in the Springfield hospital here early today at the age of 83.

Mr. Gillett was known in his home state, Massachusetts, as a politician who said little and did much. He attained what he declared to be the goal of his ambition when, in the spring of 1919, he was chosen speaker of the house of representatives, in which he began his service in 1893. He was the first Massachusetts man to win that honor since the civil war.

After serving six years as presiding officer of the house, Mr. Gillett was elected to the United States senate, defeating David I. Walsh, who was seeking reëlection.

Succeeds Champ Clark.

When he was chosen speaker of the house in succession to the late Champ Clark, Senator Gillett was not among the widely known members of the lower branch of congress. He was not spectacular, but, on the contrary, was quiet, dignified, and courteous.

What was regarded as the best summary of the man was an utterance by Elihu Root when he was secretary of state. Mr. Gillett went to the state department in the interest of a constituent, and as he left Secretary Root turned to a friend and said:

"It is interesting to see in Mr. Gillett the necessities of politics struggling with the instincts of a gentleman."

Although he made few speeches, Mr. Gillett's addresses in the house and senate always were pointed.

Wins Respect of All.

The courtesy and dignity of Mr. Gillett when he was speaker of the house won the respect of Republicans and Democrats alike.

Mr. Gillett was born at Westfield, Mass., Oct. 16, 1851, the son of Edward B. and Lucy Fowler Gillett. His father and maternal grandfather were lawyers and he began his early training for that profession under his father. After his public school education the senator spent a year in foreign travel, studying German, Greek, and Latin. He was graduated at Amherst college in 1874, and at the Harvard law school three years later.

Mr. Gillett is survived by his widow, Mrs. Christine Rice Hoar Gillett, widow of Rockwood Hoar of Worcester; a sister, Lucy Gillett of Westfield, and a brother, Arthur L. Gillett, professor emeritus of Hartford Theological seminary, Hartford, Conn.

Briton Fails to Bar Wife's Entry in U. S.

New York, July 30.—[Special.]—A special board of inquiry today admitted the Hon. Calypso Baring Liddell, daughter of the late Lord Revelstoke, to the United States despite the efforts of her husband, Capt. Guy M. Liddell of London, to have her barred.

Her four children, who were detained with Mrs. Liddell at Ellis Island yesterday, also were admitted on a six months' visitor's visa.

Capt. Liddell's reason for seeking his wife's exclusion remained more or less a mystery tonight. In Washington it was said he feared she intended to stay in this country permanently and keep their children here against his wishes. It was pointed out that under English law the husband has the right to bar the departure of his wife to another country if she leaves England without his permission.

Detained on Arrival.

Lorillard Suffern Tailer, society man with a home in Rumson, N. J., a half-brother of Mrs. Liddell, denied her action in arranging residence here meant she intended to stay in this country. He pointed out that it was Mrs. Liddell's custom to spend about half her time visiting in this country, and that as far as he knew she did not intend to vary her practice.

Immigration agents detained Mrs. Liddell and her children yesterday upon their arrival aboard the liner Normandie from Plymouth. The reason for the detention was undisclosed then.

Tailer, who also was a passenger on the Normandie, engaged Sol A. Rosenblatt, New York lawyer, to represent her, and Rosenblatt obtained her parole in his custody for appearance today.

Permit Found in Order.

At the hearing it was learned Mrs. Liddell several months ago had taken steps to establish legal residence in the United States and that her passport and a return permit issued some weeks ago were in order. Immigration officials also held that the English law pertaining to a wife's departure had no effect upon her entry into the United States. As a consequence she was permitted to enter.

Replying "yes and no" to a question whether she was at odds with her husband, Mrs. Liddell said she could not believe he had been responsible for "this outrageous act."

"At present we are not together," she said, "nor are we legally separated."

After the hearing she and the children landed at the Battery and departed with Rosenblatt and Tailer for the latter's New Jersey home. The children, Peter, 8; Gay, 7; Juno, 5, and Maude, 3½, appeared to have enjoyed the experience of a visit to the detention island and bore none of the serious mien of their mother.

Tailer Plans "Retreat."

Later Tailer answered the telephone at the Rumson Country club, where he had fled to escape the telephone in his own home, and announced that he would take Mrs. Liddell and her children "away from it all" tomorrow.

"I've just talked to about six London newspapers by telephone, and others as far in the other direction as California," he said. "It is a mystery to me, all this excitement and interest. I have a little boat and it is all ready to go, so tomorrow we'll be beyond the reach of telephones."

Mrs. Liddell also is a half sister of T. Suffern Tailer of New York. Her mother was the former Maude Lorillard, who was married to Lord Revelstoke. He died last year.

SENATOR CALLS IT SOCIAL, NOT REVENUE PLAN

Backers Amazed at Small Returns.

Washington, D. C., July 30.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt's soak the rich tax program was denounced in both the senate and house today as the rankest of political gestures, made all the more absurd by the New Deal's "profligate" expenditures. Democratic members of the senate finance committee indicated their intention of performing major surgical operations on the 270 million dollar bill just presented in the house.

The bill was formally reported out by the house ways and means committee, by a strictly partisan vote of 17 to 7, the Republican members filing a blistering minority report in which the President was accused of "a mere face-saving gesture," intended to "catch votes," and divert attention from his declining popularity.

Small Return Amazes Senators.

Of greater significance, however, was the attitude of the Democrats on the senate finance committee who gasped with astonishment and no little chagrin at their first hearing on the house bill. Chairman Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] protested vehemently against the action of the house committee in presuming to alter Mr. Roosevelt's proposals, while other good Democrats expressed amazement at both the magnitude of the proposed rates and the insignificance of the probable returns.

The criticism in the finance committee was confined to the Democrats because no Republicans were present, and Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.] withheld his taxing ideas for the time being. However, Senator Daniel O. Hastings, Delaware, a Republican member, condemned the bill in a senate speech as a "social and not a revenue" proposition.

"Somebody has got to foot the bill for this administration's extravagance," Senator Hastings declared. "You've got to get down to the grass roots to do that. Before this bill is paid the tax collector will be going around taking pennies from dead men's eyes."

Masses to Pay Is Charge.

The minority report from the ways and means committee, filed by Representative Roy O. Woodruff [Rep., Mich.] in the absence of Representative Allen T. Treadway of Massachusetts, the Republican member, said the bill would make it obvious to the masses of the people that they and not the rich will have to shoulder the burden for the New Deal's "extravagant and wasteful expenditures."

"Although it imposes rates of taxation which border on the point of actual confiscation," the report states, "its proponents estimate that it will produce only 270 million dollars. This amount would pay the running expenses of the government for less than two weeks and it falls 3 billion 305 million dollars short of meeting the deficit for the last fiscal year. Even as a redistribution of wealth measure it would provide but $2.25 for each of our 126 million people."

Should "First Spend Sanely."

The report stated that the administration had no right to increase the tax burden on either the rich or the poor until it first adopted a "sane spending program," and determined to balance the budget. Only last January, the report said, President Roosevelt announced in his budget message that he did not "consider it advisable at this time to propose any new or additional taxes for the fiscal year 1936."

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was asked in the hearings why the President changed his mind, the report continues, but he declined to answer.

"The fact is that the President's tax measure came at a time when the administration's popularity and prestige were rapidly on the decline, and it served to divert public attention from the criticisms being leveled at the President and his policies," the report says.

"It doubtless had a secondary purpose of undermining the increasing political strength of the two chief exponents of the 'soak-the-rich' philosophy by making a bid for the support of their large army of followers."

Claims Democrats Hostile.

The report said it was generally known that the Democratic members of the ways and means committee were not only indifferent but actually hostile to the President's proposals, but reluctantly agreed to "pull the President's political chestnuts from the fire" in order to avoid a direct slap at their own administration with an election in the offing.

"Representative government ceases to exist under such a system," it adds.

In assailing the proposed maximum rate of 75 per cent on inheritances, in addition to the existing maximum of 60 per cent on the estates themselves, the minority report analyzed the fate of an estate, such as Henry Ford's, under such a program, and said this policy, pursued over a period of years, would "automatically take us into socialism.

"The adverse effect of such a tax in the case of an estate, such as that of a certain well known automobile manufacturer, is quite evident," the report states. "This gentleman has plants in various parts of the country, employing thousands of persons and indirectly giving employment to thousands of others. His wealth consists almost exclusively of physical properties.

Leaves 10 of 100 Millions.

"Assuming, for the sake of argument, that their value is 100 million dollars, the present federal and state death taxes would amount to a little less than 60 million dollars. Assuming, further, that an only son were the sole beneficiary of the estate, the 40 million dollars which he would be entitled to receive, would be taxed a little less than 30 million dollars, leaving a balance of approximately 10 million dollars out of the 100 million dollar estate.

"Any tax which practically confiscates private capital is fundamentally wrong, unless we are to adopt the communistic system. It is private capital which makes up the national wealth. It is private capital which gives employment to labor. If this capital is to be consumed in paying the running expenses of the government, then the pending measure becomes not a bill to redistribute wealth but a bill to redistribute poverty."

The senate finance committee, at the first hearing on the house bill, thoroughly scrutinized its proposals in anticipation of examining Secretary Morgenthau tomorrow.

Question Tax Expert.

L. H. Parker, tax expert of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue, was searchingly interrogated as to the house committee's motives in virtually ditching the President's suggestion of a graduated corporation tax and substituting therefor a graduated excess profits tax. He told the senators that the ways and means committee regarded the graduated corporation tax as unjust.

The witness, in response to further questions, testified that out of 508,636 corporations in the United States in 1932, only 82,646, or about 15 per cent, made a profit.

This led to a discussion of a proposed amendment by Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.] to substitute the wartime excess profits tax, based on invested capital instead of the present declared value principle.

Discusses Wartime Rates.

Mr. Parker explained that the rates were 20 per cent on the first 20 per cent of profits above 8 per cent and 40 per cent on all over 28 per cent. The yield, he said, ranged from 2 billion 505 million dollars in 1918 down to 335 million dollars in 1921, the last year it was in existence. He estimated that the same rates, if applied today, would bring in around 300 million dollars a year.

Senator Peter G. Gerry [Dem., R. I.] asked Mr. Parker to supply the committee with information on the number of stockholders in United States corporations, saying this was "very important." Senator Gerry also cross-examined the witness on the proposed inheritance taxes, bringing out the fact that they are far more drastic than anything England has ever done and that total interest of 12 per cent a year might be collected on deferred payments during the settlement of vast estates.

"In other words, after five years, the interest would be 12 per cent," said Senator Gerry. "That is, 6 per cent on the estate and 6 per cent on the beneficial interest. Moreover, on some of these estates the combined tax would be more than 100 per cent. The highest England collects on the estate is 50 per cent and the highest on the inheritance, that is, if it goes to a stranger, is 10 per cent. We now collect a maximum of 60 per cent on the estate and we propose to collect 75 per cent on the inheritance."

101 Per Cent in New York.

When the committee took up the proposed increases in the surtax rate on individual incomes, Senator Gore pointed out that the maximum rate of 79 per cent, which includes the 4 per cent normal tax, plus the New York state maximum of 22 per cent, would add up to a total of 101 per cent.

Chairman Harrison again objected to the house committee's action in departing from the President's suggestions. He said he understood the President's message, and believed the country so understood it, to mean higher surtax rates on incomes in excess of 1 million dollars, while the ways and means committee had started at $50,000.

"Of course," said Mr. Parker, "there is no substantial revenue to be derived by increasing the rates only above the million mark. It is only a matter of five or six million dollars, whereas, by starting at $50,000, you get about 45 million dollars."

Revenue in Lower Brackets.

"I understand that," said Senator Harrison, who must stand for reëlection next year and is horrified by the suggestion of getting too close to the smaller incomes. "Of course we could go down still further and get more revenue. Haven't you always contended that you couldn't get a great amount of taxes when you reached a way up in the million dollar brackets?"

"That is correct," Parker replied. "It's surprising how little there is above $50,000. The real revenue is in the lower brackets."

U. S. SEIZES 11 BLOCKS OF LAND IN BOSTON BUT WILL NOT USE IT

Boston, Mass., July 30.—[Special.]—Owners of the 277 parcels of land in the eleven city blocks seized in South Boston by the federal government six months ago for a $5,000,000 model housing project were stunned tonight when informed the whole plan had been abandoned.

Indignation followed when these property owners, nearly all of whom have complied in federal court with the necessary legal steps to relinquish their land and buildings, realized the government planned to carry out its project of erecting 1,000 low rental houses on vacant land less than a half mile away, in direct competition with existing houses in the condemned area. Many tenements were vacated with resulting loss in revenue when the plan was first announced.

It was admitted by federal housing authorities today at Washington that the proposed site for the project had been abandoned because of many complications arising from seizure of the property.

ROOSEVELT O. K.'S $1,605,376 FOR ILLINOIS JOBS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 30.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today approved allotments of $1,605,376 from his 4 billion dollar work relief program for the state of Illinois. The projects for which the funds were granted were submitted to the President by the advisory committee on allotments July 23.

To the federal funds will be added $327,705 pledged by the various sponsors of projects submitted in the program filed by Robert J. Dunham, Illinois state works progress administrator. Among the approved projects are two in Cook county. The one for Chicago is to strip top soil from 120 acres of forest preserve property to make room for fill and top dress fill after placement. This work is in connection with the lake to gulf waterway. Federal funds, $416,524; sponsor's contribution, $13,260.

A project to kill mosquitoes at Des Plaines provides $227,938; the sponsor's contribution is $20,101.

At its regular weekly meeting the works allotment board submitted recommendations for projects totaling $370,056,258. Of that sum 200 million was urged for the Civilian Conservation Corps and 95 million for relief in August. The board asked for 12 million for roads and grade crossing elimination in Michigan, 28 million for educational purposes in the National Youth administration and 35 million for the Porto Rico reconstruction campaign.

5 Die When Polish Army Planes Collide in Practice

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

HELSINGFORS, July 30. — Two army bombing planes collided in air and caught fire this afternoon during practice near Wiborg. One officer and four noncommissioned officers were killed instantly. One officer and one noncommissioned officer escaped in parachutes.

ATTEMPT TO GAG DR. MAGILL MADE BY NEW DEALERS

Threatened as a Witness in House Lobby Quiz.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Thinly veiled attempts of New Deal congressmen to intimidate Dr. Hugh S. Magill, president of the American Federation of Utility Investors, when he was a witness before a house committee last week came to light yesterday, following Dr. Magills return from Washington.

Vaguely phrased threats that by some invasion or other of the right of freedom of speech, Dr. Magill might be "held accountable" for "harsh sayings" such as referring to President Roosevelt as an "autocrat" and a "would-be Caesar" were an outcome of the hearing.

Dr. Magill's efforts were regarded as a deciding factor in the house vote of 258 to 147 on July 1 to kill the "death sentence" in the utility control bill. Investors already had deluged congress with more than a million letters and telegrams. Last Thursday Dr. Magill was a witness before a house committee investigating lobbyists.

Sabath One of Inquisitors.

Chief "witness baiters" were Congressmen E. E. Cox of Georgia and A. J. Sabath of Chicago, dean of the house—both New Dealers who voted for the "death sentence."

Both Sabath and Cox seemed to resent publication of the vote in the literature sent by Dr. Magill to members of his organization. A new New Deal theory was advanced that such publicity of roll calls was a "threat" against congress. Dr. Magill related yesterday:

"Sabath and Cox kept asking in substance: 'Were you not threatening congress in getting investors to write to members and in saying you would tell them how members vote?'

"I said, 'I deny that. You are asking the record, I am simply telling the millions of utility investors how you vote. You are your own threat.'

Leaves Issue to Voters.

"Mr. Sabath asked whether our organization planned to go into districts to fight against congressmen who voted for the death sentence. I said, 'I have no such plan. The constituents will take care of that. My business is to let them know how their representatives vote. Is that a threat?'"

Incidentally New Deal publications have printed and reprinted the same roll call with the obvious intention of frightening congressmen with the ire of the New Dealers.

Some of the literature sent by Dr. Magill to members of his organization and some of his press releases were read into the record.

"After it was over," asserted Dr. Magill, "the attorney for the committee told me they had got nothing except some harsh remarks. He commented, 'The question is whether they can hold you accountable for some of the harsh things said.'

"I said to him, 'constitutional government is in danger, and I am going to continue to say harsh things. This is a time for telling the truth, harsh and brutal though it may sound.'"

Nature of Coercion in Doubt.

By just what procedure a house committee could hold a citizen "accountable" for exercising the right of freedom of speech was not divulged. It was regarded by some persons of experience in Washington as an effort to put the thumb screws on Dr. Magill by faintly disguised threats and suggested coercion.

The "harsh words" on which the New Dealers bore down were in a press release by Dr. Magill the day before the house voted to kill the "death sentence" in the utility bill. It was put out after President Roosevelt in his press conference had referred to the attack on the "death sentence" as "vicious propaganda." This Magill release has been said by many congressmen to have been effective in determining the vote.

Some of the parts read into the record in the committee hearing were: "The implications contained in the 5 billion dollar White House lobby constitute the most sinister peril to our democratic form of government that has ever threatened our people.

Refers to "Would-Be Caesar."

"Instead of the government protecting property of the citizens, millions of innocent investors in utility securities are forced to fight for the protection of their property against the death sentence decreed by this would-be Caesar in the White House.

"Nothing can compare with the lobby the President himself has set up. Millions of free citizens, their backs to the wall, are fighting to save their property from the ruthless and spiteful destruction of an autocrat who is using his almost unlimited powers to force members of congress to bow subserviently to his will."

Questions were fired at Dr. Magill by the New Dealers.

"Have you any right," he was asked, "to call the President an autocrat?"

"I have," was Magill's answer, read from his own literature. "The constitution says legislative powers are vested in congress. When a President attempts to dictate to congress, with 'must' bills and otherwise, is he not bordering on the autocratic?"

ORVILLE'S JOB WAS TO KILL RATTLER FOR AUNT MARY; HE DID!

Excelsior Springs, Mo., July 30.—(AP)—The rattlesnake in Aunt Mary Michall's house is dead. Orville Cox, 19 year old grandson of "Aunt Mary," dispatched the snake today and this is how:

Following the sound of the rattle, young Cox took up the entire front porch, plank by plank.

Then he attacked the side of the house and tore off four planks before he found the rattler. A hasty thrust with a pitchfork only irritated the snake, so Orville blazed away with both barrels of the family shotgun. The snake died, about half the wall disappeared, Aunt Mary's China cupboard, sitting just inside, was demolished and every dish the family owned was broken.

MUSTACHES PUT UNDER BAN AS RIOT INCITERS

Kansas City, Mo., July 30.—(AP)—Business boomed for barbers today in the vicinity of city hall. All because Otto P. Higgins, director of police, had decided that mustaches have objectionable features. Besides, he invited, take Jimmie Lawrence. Many have tried to.

Lawrence rides a motorbike. More to the point, he had one of the nittiest little mustaces you ever saw.

So Lawrence had more fights than Popeye the Sailor.

The trouble was that when somebody said something about birds nesting in his mustache, Lawrence would climb off his bike and tear in.

Other policemen with mustaches reacted similarly.

All in all, it took up a lot of Higgins' time. Finally he came to the conclusion that mustaches are undignified, unsightly, and in violation of the sanitary laws.

FIND ROOSEVELT EX-LAW PARTNER PAID BY UTILITY

Rep. O'Connor's Brother on Firm's Legal Staf.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 30.—[Special.]—The senate lobby committee learned today that Basil O'Connor, former law partner of President Roosevelt in the firm of Roosevelt & O'Connor, had received a $25,000 legal fee from the Associated Gas and Electric company. This is the system which supporters of the Wheeler-Rayburn bill most loudly condemn in their advocacy of the "death sentence" for holding companies.

Fred S. Burroughs, senior vice president of Associated Gas and Electric, testified that O'Connor received the $25,000 fee in connection with the long pending reorganization of the utility system. Earlier a committee investigator, C. W. O'Rourke, had testified that the Washington law firm headed by Patrick J. Hurley, former secretary of war, had received $25,000 from the A. G. & E. in connection with its campaign against the Wheeler-Rayburn bill.

Miller Firm Also Paid.

During his testimony concerning the corporate structure and the reorganization of the A. G. & E. Burroughs was asked by Chairman Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.] whether he knew what law firms received fees for services in this connection. He said he recalled that the firm of Nathan L. Miller, former governor of New York, was one of them.

"Do you know Basil O'Connor?" Senator Black asked.

"Yes, we discussed the plan with him," Burroughs replied.

"Did he get a fee?"

"Yes."

"How much?"

"I don't know."

"Would you say as much as $25,000?"

"Yes, I think that's right."

About $500,000 Expended.

Burroughs recalled that a total of about $500,000 has been paid out in reorganization legal fees. O'Rourke testified that the A. G. & E. spent $31,602 for legal fees in connection with the fight on the Wheeler-Rayburn bill. Among the lawyers he listed was Tom McKeown, former representative from Oklahoma and now practicing in Chicago. McKeown had received $1,891, O'Rourke testified. He also said the company had spent almost $800,000 fighting the bill, instead of $700,000 as acknowledged by its officials.

Chairman Black apparently directed specific attention to O'Connor's fee from the A. G. & E. because he is a brother of John J. O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of the house rules committee, which has investigated some of the lobbying activities on the part of the administration.

Demands Hopson Appear.

During the examination of Burroughs, Senator Black threatened "to turn over a subpena to every marshal in the United States" unless Howard C. Hopson, missing prime figure in the A. G. & E. system, appeared to testify. For more than a week the committee has been trying to find Hopson, but neither officials nor employés of the company have vouchsafed any information as to his whereabouts.

"It's very evident," said Senator Black, "that it would be impossible for a man to be in the United States and not know that this committee wants him."

Burroughs said he was "surprised" that Hopson had not appeared because "there is no reason why he shouldn't."

Refuses to Trust Memory.

Burroughs, a stocky man of the hard boiled business type, objected vigorously when the senators sought to force him to testify from memory regarding the vast ramifications of the A. G. & E. system. He said he was a director in some thirty companies, but couldn't list them, which brought forth critical remarks from the committee members.

"You're a senator," Burroughs said, addressing himself to Senator Sherman Minton [Dem., Ind.]. "Do you think you could give me offhand the corporate setup of all the alphabetical agencies of the government?"

LEWIS AGAIN URGES BRITAIN AND FRANCE CEDE LANDS TO U. S.

Washington, D. C., July 30.—(AP)—Suggestions that Great Britain return to the United States land ceded to her in the Alaskan boundary dispute, as well as a strip of Canada along the St. Lawrence, as credits on her war debt, were made in the senate today by Senator Lewis [Dem., Ill.].

He also proposed that France, in part payment of her obligations to this country, give the United States part of the island of Martinique in the West Indies.

The suggestions were made by the Illinois senator in commenting on English press accounts objecting to his original proposal that England turn over to this country several of its possessions in the West Indies.

HITCHHIKER CLAD IN A NIGHTGOWN GETS AUTO RIDE

Boston, Mass., July 30.—(AP)—H. P. Baker was surprised today to see the door of his automobile thrown open and a figure clad in nightgown, bathrobe, and bed slippers hop in.

Dennis L. Terterella came into Baker's life as the latter waited for a traffic light.

"I'm escaping from the psychopathic hospital," Terterella said, as he settled himself comfortably on the seat beside the driver.

Baker's destination was abruptly changed to the nearest police station.

"Now you sit right here and be quiet. I'm going to see a friend of mine who will help you," he told his passenger.

The "friends" were five husky policemen who returned Terterella to the psychopathic hospital.

MUSIC REVIVES BOY IN COMA FOR SIX DAYS

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 30.—(AP)—Music was used today to arouse Corwin Hull, 11, from semi-consciousness caused by blows police said his father inflicted in an attempt to kill him.

Soft melodies were brought by radio into the boy's hospital room, where he has been since last Wednesday, speechless and apparently in a coma.

As the music began the boy lifted himself slowly on one elbow and smiled, but did not speak. He listened intently and then dropped into sleep. Physicians said he appeared to have rallied and that the music will be continued.

Senate Votes to Pension Indians, Alaska Natives

Washington, D. C., July 30.—(AP)—The Norbeck bill to give all Indians in the United States and natives of Alaska who have reached 65 a federal old age pension of $30 a month was passed today by the senate without debate and sent to the house. Senator Norbeck [Rep., S. D.], estimated the cost at less than 2 million dollars a year.

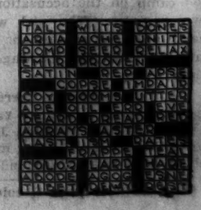
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



ETHIOPIAN SHOPS CLOSED IN STRIKE ON MONEY RATES

U. S. Silver Policy Adds to Emperor's Troubles.

BY WILL BARBER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, July 30.—President Roosevelt's silver buying policies which have upset Ethiopia's commerce since last spring, resulted in a first class sensation here today, adding new worries to those Premier Mussolini has caused Emperor Haile Selassie by his war preparations.

Eighty per cent of the capital's shopkeepers went on strike. They closed their stores in protest against the low rate of exchange at which the Maria Theresa silver thaler, the nation's unit of currency, is pegged. This rate is 12.40 thalers to the pound sterling [about $5]. It is contended, however, that the world price of silver makes the thaler really worth about 9.50 or 10 to the pound.

Claim Government Profiteers.

Importers naturally must pay more for imports than they are worth in silver and they complain that the bank of Ethiopia—virtually the government—makes a profit of about 35 per cent on all exchange transactions. The government pegged the thaler at 12.40 and prohibited its exportation in a vain attempt to aid exports and counteract the results of American silver purchase policy.

Emperor Haile Selassie was said to be ready to help the importers and shopkeepers by lifting the ban on the export of thalers and thus raising their value. But when the "king of kings" learned that shopkeepers had adopted abrupt western ways by striking, his pride flared up and he shoved the decree, which awaited only his signature, aside. No one now dares to predict when the emperor will relent.

A financial expert said the government intends to permit the export of thalers, but will not let the thaler rise to the world price of silver.

Instead, as was done in China, it will keep the thaler 10 or 15 per cent cheaper than the price of silver so as to curb the flight of capital, already great because the price of coffee and hides failed to follow the rise of silver.

Fail to Understand.

The coffee growers, who were told the thalers are worth more and therefore they ought to accept fewer of them for a sack of coffee, fail to understand such an argument and refuse to sell for fewer of the cart wheel thalers than they are used to getting. The result is that foreign buyers purchase coffee where it is cheaper.

The government's attempt to increase exports by cheapening the thaler failed completely, partly because of the above reason and partly because the summer rains brought the movement of goods—all done by camel, pack horse, donkey, and mule to Addis Ababa, the rail head—almost to a complete standstill.

League Council Meets Today.

GENEVA, July 30. — (AP) — With peace in Africa and possibly the future of the league of nations at stake, statesmen of many nations gathered tonight for tomorrow's extraordinary session of the league of nations council on the Italo-Ethiopian controversy.

League officials said conflict was almost sure to develop around the council table.

The Issue.

Italy, they pointed out, wants to limit discussion sharply, confining the council's procedure to reviving the Italo-Ethiopian conciliation commission. Britain, on the other hand, desires full investigation of all issues and may demand forceful league action. Scandinavian states are reported determined to seek league protection for small states, such as Ethiopia.

Ethiopian spokesmen, too, were insistent that the council get to the bottom of the dispute, instead of limiting itself to discussion of the causes of frontier clashes and resurrection of the conciliation commission, which collapsed recently at Schevengingen, the Netherlands. Most Geneva sources agreed mere revival of the commission would lead nowhere.

Italy is sending seven representatives to the parley, headed by Baron Pompeo Aloisi. Ethiopia's spokesmen are already upon the ground.

Laval, Eden Confer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, July 30.—Hoping to prevent the British delegation to tomorrow's league of nations session on Ethiopia from getting too rough with Italy Premier Pierre Laval left tonight for Geneva with Capt. Anthony Eden, British minister for league of nations affairs.

Eden arrived from London this afternoon and conferred with Laval on the Italo-Ethiopian war crisis.

The situation is a ticklish one for the French, Paris observers agree, since they are unwilling to offend either the British or the Italians, and the former are pressing them to make a decision. Obscure financial transactions are a factor in the French attitude and are being used by the British also.

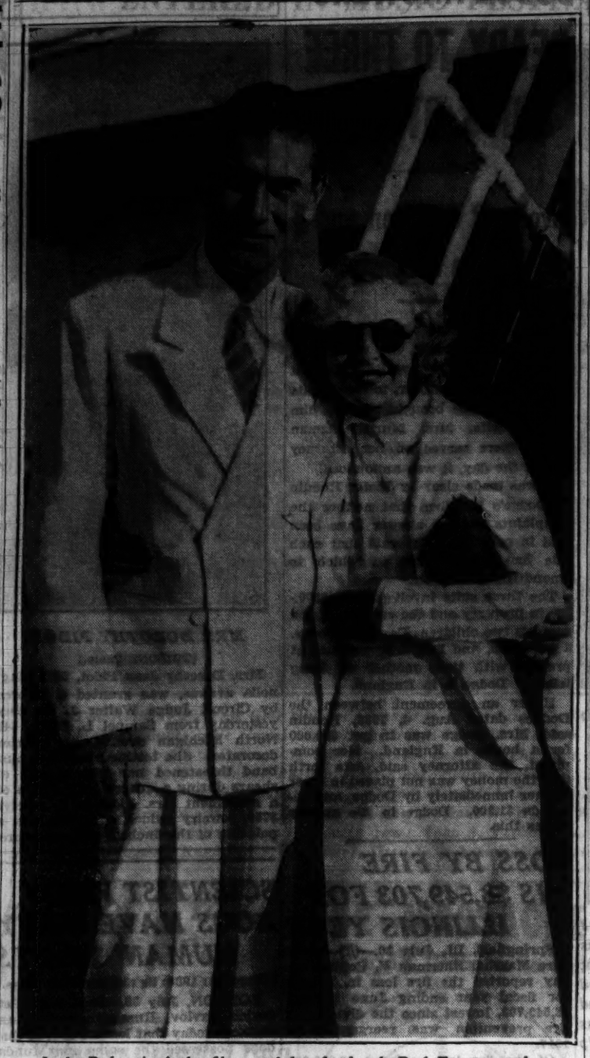
The government's organ, Le Temps, pointedly reprinted a London survey of the economic situation in Italy, the conclusion of which is that Italy is in no condition to carry on large scale military operations. A heavy loan therefore is needed to bolster Italian finances, which are now in a bad shape as a result of years of continued budget deficits and the extraordinary expenses of the Ethiopian expedition.

Italy to Seize More Ships.

ROME, July 30.—(AP)—Italy, confidently awaiting results of the league of nations' council session at Geneva, pushed plans tonight to expand her transport of troops to Ethiopia by seizing the right to take over government subsidized ships.

The official gazette published a royal decree authorizing the government to take over such vessels.

BLACK EYE FOR LYDA ROBERTI?



Lyda Roberti of the films and her husband, Bud Ernst, as they arrived in New York yesterday on liner on their honeymoon. The actress was wearing dark glasses, which gave rise to the report that she had a black eye. Her husband said she was protecting her eyes from the sun.

Have Had Quarrel

New York, July 30.—[Special.]—Lyda Roberti peered through a glass darkly at camera men aboard the Grace liner Santa Elena today and refused to reveal her normal beauty to the lenses. This being unusual for a movie actress arriving from Hollywood to take part in George White's "Scandals," there was much to-do.

"A sty," Lyda explained.

"Just guarding against sun glare," said Bud Ernst, to whom she was married June 25 at Yuma, Ariz.

Fellow passengers smiled skeptically. There was a story of a black eye hidden behind the green goggles.

"Have you had your first quarrel yet?" asked reporters.

"Of course," Miss Roberti said. "You know how honeymoons are."

"She wears them on account of the glare," said Octavus Roy Cohen, whose business is writing fiction.

CITY SWELTERS IN MIDDLE 90S; COOLER TODAY

After protecting Chicago from the heat of southwest winds most of the day, the lake breeze died down early yesterday afternoon and allowed the mercury to reach a high of 94 degrees at 5 o'clock. At the same time the reading at the Chicago airport was 97, and in north shore and northwestern suburbs ranged from 92 to 96.

Clouds and a shift in the wind to the northwest today are expected to bring a measure of relief from the humid heat, says Forecaster C. A. Donnel.

Downstate cities suffered yesterday with 100 degree heat, Springfield for the first time this year. Carbondale and Pana registered the same high. In Bloomington it was 99 degrees.

With few exceptions cities of the central west reported maxima above 90 degrees. St. Louis and Omaha wilted at 100; Kansas City and North Platte, Neb., at 102. In the west Phoenix, Ariz., and Fresno, Cal., baked at 104. Ocean breezes held Los Angeles to 84, but several of her hill suburbs reported 96 and 97.

POLICE STOP DUEL BETWEEN ITALIAN AND CHICAGOAN

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

MONTE CARLO, July 30.—The police stepped in today to prevent a scheduled duel between Hal F. Duberrier, American flyer, and Capt. Marchettei of the Italian army.

The Italian had challenged Duberrier, formerly a resident of Chicago, because of slighting remarks he had made about Premier Mussolini's attitude toward Ethiopia. A duel with swords had been decided upon for tomorrow morning.

This morning Duberrier received a visit from gendarmes who told him that if he made any "gesture" against Italy he would immediately be expelled from Monaco and barred from France. Under the circumstances, it is believed a duel will be avoided.

4 German Glider Pilots Fly 400 Miles for Record

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WASSERKUPPE, Germany, July 30.—Four pilots of motorless gliders set a new long distance gliding record today when they flew 400 miles, landing near Bruenn, Czechoslovakia. The pilots are Oeltzschner and Braeutigam of Dresden, Heinamann of Hamburg, and Steinhoss of Weimar. This is the second world's record in nine days. On July 21, first day of the annual gliding contests in the Rhoen mountains, Ludwig Hoffmann, a German, beat the existing mark of 75 miles when he soared 310 miles.

REDS PLAN BIG U. S. DOCK STRIKE THIS SEPTEMBER

American Asks World Aid at Communist Congress

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, July 30.—The prediction of a strike of "unprecedented scope" by seamen and dock workers on the Pacific coast of America beginning in September under communist leadership was made today in a speech by Sam Darcy of San Francisco, American delegate, before the communist internationale here.

American communists hope to have the coöperation in this strike of dock workers of other countries so as to make the forthcoming strike an effective blow at the bourgeoisie, he said.

Darcy's speech, as well as others at the congress affecting America, was cabled fully to Washington by the American embassy.

Agreement Ends in September.

In revealing the strike plans Darcy said the employers' agreement with the dock workers expires in September and that shipping operators already are preparing for a struggle to eliminate the revolutionary leadership from the trade unions.

"Obviously the latter will not voluntarily retreat from its position," said Darcy. "All this indicates embittered struggles. It is very possible this may be the beginning of a strike of unprecedented scope.

"The result of the struggle depends not only on the work which we will carry on along the Pacific coast. We count on the fact that through the efforts of all sections of communist internationale close coöperation of seamen and port workers in all countries may be guaranteed in a general decisive struggle against the bourgeoisie."

Delegates Applaud.

This statement met with applause from the delegates.

Darcy emphasized what had already been said by Earl Browder, general secretary of the communist party in the United States, that communists were responsible for the seamen's and dock workers' strikes on the American Pacific coast and the San Francisco general strike last year.

"Even as late as 1933 sea transport workers on the west coast were not organized in trade unions," said Darcy. "We started persuading workers not only to join the American Federation of Labor but to become its active leading members. A great number joined and eventually we were at the head of many thousands of workers. Nevertheless, the local trade union burocrats managed to become the strike leaders and finally to betray it.

"International contacts of the working class acquire a special significance in connection with the danger of imperialist war. It is essential to win great influence among sailors and port workers engaged in loading and transporting military supplies.

Gets Colored Aid.

"An interesting feature of the dock workers' strike was that we succeeded in improving the conditions of colored stevedores. We have drawn colored stevedores into our party and the colored newspapers have come under our control."

Darcy said that the last five years witnessed a new militant strengthening of the American working class. More than 100 workers have been killed by police and troops in street clashes and thousands have been crippled and wounded and many imprisoned for terms up to fourteen years, Darcy said.

The Canadian delegate, George, also spoke, saying that the Canadian communist party's membership had doubled since 1931, when the party was illegal. He said the party had now 8,200 members and that leaders are convinced there will be 10,000 by Oct. 1.

EDITH R. M'CORMICK HOUSE TO BE USED IN OLIVET CHARITY PLAN

The former Edith Rockefeller McCormick home at 1000 Lake Shore drive, which has been unoccupied since the society leader's death in August, 1932, is to be opened probably within a week as the Olivet Institute galleries, according to an announcement yesterday by Mrs. Howard Linn, president of the committee in charge of the charity project.

Edwin L. Brashears, receiver for the property, said that an oral agreement had been made for a lease on the old stone house and grounds, and that the terms await only the approval of Judge G. Fred Rush of the Circuit court.

"Olivet Institute galleries proposes to be a clearing house for superfluous belongings which persons would like to dispose of and which others would like to acquire at a bargain price," said Mrs. Linn, who is prominent in Chicago's social life. "The proceeds will go to the institute."

Other officers of the committee in charge of the galleries include Mrs. John Hamline, chairman, and Mrs. Montgomery Orr, assistant chairman.

BRITISH CONCERNS REFUSE FURTHER CREDIT TO ITALY

LONDON, July 30.—(AP)—Protests by British creditors against the delay in payments by Italy brought new assurances from the Italian government today, financial quarters were informed, that the provisions for an Anglo-Italian exchange agreement will be fulfilled.

Delays in payments for shipments caused some concerns here, especially coal companies, to refuse further sales until old accounts were settled. Some Italian ships were reported to have been refused coal at Welsh ports.

A number of delegations protested to the board of trade and their protests were communicated to Italy. It was understood that the recent Italian gold decree will facilitate payments to Great Britain. British credit accounts with Italy totaled £1,50[illegible],000—about $7,500,000.

GIRL'S ESSAY ON KING LEADS TO 'CRISIS' IN HOUSE

Uproar Follows Reproof for "Imperialism."

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 30.—An American tourist visiting the house of commons today at question time would have had every reason to suppose he was listening to a vital debate upon which hung almost the fate of the British empire.

He would have seen the house in an uproar rarely witnessed in years; twenty or thirty members jumping up and firing questions at a minister, accompanied by cries of "Shame," "Ho Ho," "Scandal," prolonged cheers and cries of "Order, order."

12 Year Old Girl Cause of Uproar.

But the cause of the uproar was not due to any new crisis in the nation. The trouble arose because a 12 year old girl wrote in a school essay on "England, my native land," that "England is the finest country in the world, because it has a good king and queen to reign over it." Subsequently a visiting inspector of the board of education reproved the teacher in the presence of her pupils for teaching "old fashioned imperialism."

Sir Gerald Hurst started the trouble by asking the president of the board of education what action is being taken in the matter.

Oliver Stanley, president of the board of education, tried to make it all appear a misunderstanding, saying the board would consider as "highly improper" any attempt by an inspector to discourage among little children love of their own country. The inspector's words, he said, were casual comment and not intended as reproof either for teacher or child.

Then the Outbursts.

But the house would not stand for this and the uproar followed. For something like another hour there was pandemonium, with excited members roaring questions at the minister, demanding to know this, that and the other; demanding that the inspector be told publicly that he was dennitly wrong in finding fault with the little girl's simple expression of love for her country, particularly in the jubilee year of King George.

Eventually the speaker of the house intervened and Hurst then announced that in view of the unsatisfactory replies by the minister, he would move for adjournment, the house to discuss the matter as a question of urgent public importance.

The speaker, however, declined to accept the motion, and Hurst, amidst prolonged cheers from all parts of the house, said he would raise the matter again Friday.

WIND UP DEFENSE IN RAPE SLAYING OF PEORIA GIRL

Fate Hangs on Insanity Thread; To Jury Today.

BY KIRK EARNSHAW.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Peoria, Ill., July 30.—[Special.]—The defense of Gerald Thompson, 26 years old, confessed rapist and murderer of 19 year old Mildred Hallmark, was completed this afternoon. Before nightfall tomorrow a jury in Circuit court of Judge Joseph E. Daily will decide whether Thompson is to die in the electric chair or spend the rest of his life in a prison cell.

No denial of the assault upon Miss Hallmark was made by the defense, which will depend upon its contention that Thompson was criminally insane.

Ren Thurman, court appointed counsel for Thompson, rested his case abruptly early this afternoon.

In the rebuttal, which was completed with the exception of one unavailable witness, Prosecutor E. V. Champion presented the testimony of six men, fellow workers of Thompson, who unanimously agreed that the defendant was a sane, efficient, and industrious, if not brilliant, worker. On this the prosecution, scorning alienists, depended to beat the defense—upon the testimony of lay witnesses as to the mental condition of Thompson on the night of June 16, when he picked up Miss Hallmark on a transfer corner, drove her to wooded Springdale cemetery, and raped and killed her.

Tries to Read Diary.

The conclusion of the defense case came only after a last minute fight in which Thurman sought to read to the jury the diary in which Thompson recorded his seven years of adventures in sex. Events piled quickly on one another.

Thurman, after questioning his last witness, announced that the defense was complete, and a recess was taken. Then Thurman suddenly resumed his previous attempt to obtain the diary with its list of 16 girls ravished by Thompson and 67 others who had repulsed his advances. Rushing into chambers, Thurman asked to reopen his case, and his request was granted. He moved to admit the "little black book."

Puts Prosecutor on Stand.

Prosecutor Champion was called to the witness stand and questioned by Thurman concerning the seizure of the book and its contents.

"This is a record of moral depravity," Prosecutor Champion said. "It lists the names of girls who should not be subjected to this infamy."

Judge Daily, after lengthy arguments, ruled that Thurman should be given an opportunity—with the court—to view the volume, with the names of girl victims deleted. After a lengthy examination of the diary in chambers, Thurman renewed his motion for the admission of "defendant's exhibit 1."

Restating the objections on the ground that the document was self-serving and not germane to the trial, Prosecutor Champion objected, and was sustained by the court. Thurman once more rested and the rebuttal was begun.

"A lot of girls are going to sleep easier tonight," Thompson said as he paced an anteroom of the court during the recess that followed the court's final ruling.

Day a Dramatic One.

Melodramatic events in this drama packed day of courtroom action included:

1. Testimony of Dr. Clyde Blake, personal physician for Thompson, that the man is tubercular and subject to 'sexual aberration."

2. The testimony of three fellow workers that, in their opinion, Thompson is a monomaniac on the single subject of sex, normal in other respects.

3. Conflicting testimony of the boy's grandparents and the mother of his sweetheart, Lola Hughes, that Thompson was "an industrious and good son" and "a perfect gentleman."

4. A riot—the second in as many days—in which would-be spectators at the trial broke windows and doors seeking admittance to the courtroom, and courtroom demonstrations in which defense witnesses were hissed and the prosecution applauded.

Crowd Seethes With Hatred.

The drama was played in a courtroom jammed with people, a courtroom sultry and stifling with 100 degree heat, a courtroom surcharged with the electric hatred of a crowd that has threatened to take Thompson from the hands of the jury of his peers and settle his fate under mob law.

It was in this atmosphere that George Thompson, aged grandfather, and his wife, Mrs. Gladys Thompson, went to the witness chair to tell their tragic story of the "perfect boy" whom they adopted and raised as their own child. The grandfather, a frail, tremulous man, broke down on the witness stand and openly sobbed.

Even through this—the dramatic moments when his hunting companions and fellow-workers in the face of public contumely dared to declare him insane—Thompson sat unmoved at his counsel's table. He refused to look at his grandparents.

Obviously under great emotional strain, Mrs. Thompson, a heavy, deep bosomed woman, went to the witness chair clad in a simple, purple flowered summer dress. Her gray, stringy hair was unkempt. She peered through tortois shell glasses at the wayward grandson, sitting unmoved but a few feet from her.

She told of the marriage of her daughter, Mrs. Florence Whiteside, to Gibbs Bowers, when the mother of Thompson was but 14 years old. From this marriage were born Gerald Thompson and his younger brother, Victor, now awaiting trial for taking indecent liberties with a child.

Q. [By Thurman]—Your daughter remained with Bowers? A.—After the children were born—just a year after Victor was born—Bowers deserted my daughter. Since that time the children have made their home with us. We have never heard from him since.

Sweetheart's Mother Testifies.

Witnesses in the afternoon, before Thurman suddenly "rested" his case, were Dr. B. F. James, physician under whose care the boy's mother is receiving treatment at Proctor hospital: Mrs. Effie Hughes, Thompson's sweetheart's mother, and Charles Whiteside, his mother's second husband.

Dr. James told the court and jury that Mrs. Whiteside is seriously ill and could not testify. Thurman in his opening statement had told the jury that Mrs. Whiteside would take the witness stand and tell of her "six years of life married to the brutal, sexually insane father of this young man." Mrs. Hughes and Whiteside testified only briefly, both saying that they had known Thompson as "a fine gentlemanly boy who neither smoked nor drank."

Women Stampede Entrance.

The morning session was prefaced with a repetition of yesterday's riot. Nearly 2,000 persons—the majority of them women—surrounded the courthouse an hour before the trial opened. When officials opened the doors this crowd, already sweltering under a hot sun that sent the mercury to nearly 100 degrees during the day, stormed the doors, breaking windows, trampling fallen women underfoot, tearing clothes. When the mêlée was ended two wrist watches were found torn from the arms of sensation seekers intent upon listening to the lurid evidence.

Opening the defense was Dr. Blake, who testified that Thompson showed an active pulmonary infection, that he was underweight and in a generally poor condition. He has, however, responded readily to treatment, and the condition has been arrested, Dr. Blake said under cross-examination.

"What effect does such a tubercular condition have upon the sex life of the patient?" Attorney Thurman questioned.

"That is a mooted question," Dr. Blake replied. "There is some agreement, however, that in many cases such a condition results in aberrations on the part of the patient. This may be seen in an abnormal or subnormal development."

On Hunting Trips Together.

It was in the testimony of Sam Sprinkle that the dramatic heights of the defense testimony were first reached. Sprinkle, 40 years old and married, a fellow worker with Thompson for the Bemis Brothers Bag company, told of a series of episodes all tending to substantiate the defense contention that Thompson is abnormal.

Sprinkle related how he had known Thompson for a number of years, had worked beside him in the bag factory and had accompanied him on numerous hunting trips.

Q. (By Attorney Thurman)—Did he ever discuss his exploits? A.—Yes; sometimes I would ask him how he had come out with a date, and generally he would volunteer information.

Q.—Did he ever discuss with you his plans? A.—Yes, early in 1934 he said that he was going to try to pick up 52 girls in the year—one a week. Late in October I asked if he had succeeded and he boasted that he had had 54 girls and was far ahead of the mark he had set.

"What, on the basis of your conversations with Thompson, your observation of him, is your opinion as to his sanity or insanity?" Thurman asked.

"I think he is and was insane," the witness replied. The spectators hissed and the bailiffs pounded for order.

John Manias, a former employer of Thompson and a witness for the state yesterday, proved a recalcitrant witness. He was asked about statements that he thought the defendant "crazy as hell." Thurman disclosed in his examination that Manias had volunteered several days to present defense testimony, but had changed his mind under the weight of a prejudiced community opinion.

See Severe Season

A severe hay fever season for Chicago, to begin in approximately ten or 12 days, was predicted by O. C. Durham, pollen expert, yesterday shortly after he discovered the first reported ragweed bloom of the season.

Durham, who is associated with the Abbott Laboratories in North Chicago, said that because of rains this year the ragweed is flourishing, indicating a season for hay fever sufferers at least as severe as last year's.

Physicians pointed out that cutting ragweed locally is futile. Dr. William H. Welker, head of the department of physiological chemistry, University of Illinois College of Medicine, said pollens had been found to be carried by winds for thirty-five miles and in rare cases 200 miles.

BEGIN ENFORCING SIX DAY WEEK LAW TOMORROW

The state department of labor tomorrow will begin enforcement of the new six day week law, requiring Illinois employers to give workers a 24 hour rest period each week, according to an announcement yesterday by Martin P. Durkin, director of the department. The law was passed by the recent session of the legislature and became effective July 18.

"The law in general provides that all workers in the state are to be assured of one full day of rest each week," Mr. Durkin said. "There are exceptions in the cases of plants employing not more than seven persons, and individuals whose duties may require not more than three hours of labor on the prescribed day of rest, such as bakers, firemen, janitors, and ice cream makers. Watchmen, superintendents and foremen in charge of groups are exempt."

The department of labor expects to inspect work schedules of industrial plants and business concerns in the city to make sure that the law is being obeyed, Mr. Durkin said. A fine of $25 to $100 for each violation is provided.

DEAN OF CANADA COLLEGE KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 30.—(AP)—Dean R. W. Brock of the University of British Columbia and chairman of the Vancouver board of harbor commissioners, and Pilot W. McCloskey were killed today and two other persons were injured in an airplane crash at Alta lake, about 50 miles north of here.

David Sloan, managing director of the Pioneer Gold Mines of British Columbia, Ltd., suffered a fractured leg and Mrs. Brock a fractured arm.

Mrs. Alex Philip, Alta Lake, who witnessed the crash, said the plane attempted to take off from the south end of the lake. It struck trees bordering the water and nosed down into the ground.

MOVE SWIFTLY TO INDICT TORSO MURDER WOMEN

Story Back of Newest Confession Is Told.

to the surprise of the prosecutor, she said:

"All right, I'll tell you all about it now."

She talked rapidly, admitting the principal points of Mrs. Dunkel's confession, but denying that she had received the $100 that Lang's mother-in-law declares she gave Mrs. Smith when told that Lang was dead.

Mrs. Smith's Chinese husband, Harry Jung, "shaking like a leaf and scared stiff," sat outside her apartment while she was doping Lang with ether and strangling him, she said. This was some time after midnight on the morning of July 6, a Saturday. After the stores had opened for business that morning Mrs. Smith went out and bought a hacksaw in a hardware establishment.

Severs Legs of Victim.

Working alone with the saw and knives, Mrs. Smith said she severed Lang's legs near the hips. The legs were placed in a small trunk. The torso was wrapped in a blanket.

With Jung's help the trunk and the blanket wrapped body were carried to a borrowed car, driven across the Indiana line and dumped, the torso in the swamp and the trunk beside a little used road in the village of Munster.

The Smith woman claimed that she hadn't seen Jung since that day. The car, which Jung borrowed from Willie Quan, a laundry owner at 5129 South Halsted street, has not been found and neither has Jung. While his testimony would not be essential at a trial, it would be good corroborative evidence, prosecutors said.

List of the Witnesses.

Besides Mrs. Dunkel, the witnesses summoned to testify before the grand jury are:

CAPT. THOMAS DUFFY of the Sheffield avenue police station, who first questioned Mrs. Dunkel. It was in his district that the crime was committed.

LIEUT. OTTO ERLANSON of the homicide squad, who, with Investigator Arnold, brought Mrs. Smith back from New York. On the plane ride she told the first story implicating herself in the slaying after denials in New York that she had anything to do with it.

DR. JERRY KEARNS, coroner's physician, who examined Lang's body and legs.

HARRY LERNER, Checker cab chauffeur, who drove Mrs. Dunkel to Jung's laundry at 3251 Armitage avenue the night of the murder. She went to the laundry to tell Jung that Mrs. Smith needed him in the Barry avenue flat.

MISS JOSEPHINE MC KINLEY, 21 years old, 1333 Roscoe street, Lang's fiancée. Mrs. Dunkel has said that she wanted Lang killed because he was not faithful to the memory of her daughter Mallie, his wife, who died last Dec. 20. She has denied charges that she herself was in love with Lang, who lived with her at 1212 Waveland avenue, or that she was jealous because he planned to marry Miss McKinley.

MRS. SARAH M. BUCKE, Mrs. Smith's landlady at 731 Barry avenue.

WILLIE QUAN, owner of the car in which the body and legs were transported to Indiana.

WILLIAM LANG, 3729 Greenview avenue, brother of the murdered man.

MRS. JESSIE LANGDON, 1136 Addison street, Mrs. Dunkel's sister.

"This case is practically closed," said Assistant State's Attorney Dougherty last evening. "We will seek indictments tomorrow and an early trial."

Found Dead in Combustion Chamber Under Boiler

The body of John Kokes, 54 years old, was found early today in the combustion chamber under a boiler in a building at 824 South 17th avenue, Maywood, of which he was janitor. His son, John Jr., 1111 North 17th avenue, Melrose Park, who made the discovery, called the police and an attempt to revive Kokes was made. The cause of death was undetermined. The police said that Kokes might have suffocated or have been stricken with heart disease.

BURGLAR INSISTS HE IS DEAD, BUT COURT DOUBTS IT

Judge John C. Lewe in the Criminal court ruled yesterday that John Burton, 70 years old, whether legally dead or alive, must serve one to ten years for burglary in the Joliet penitentiary. Burton, who has served 21 years in various penitentiaries throughout the United States, was tried without a jury for the burglary of $200 in jewelry from the home of Henry F. Wilson, 260 West Washington boulevard, Oak Park, on May 1, 1927.

Testimony showed that Burton leaped from a second story window and was captured when police interrupted the burglary. He later forfeited his bond and fled and was recaptured last May in St. Louis. When Judge Lewe prepared to impose sentence he was interrupted by Burton.

"You can't do that to me," Burton told him. "I'm dead. The court records show it."

A search of the records showed that the Burton bond forfeiture had been set aside in June, 1930, on the affidavit of the bondsmen, William A. and John Purcell. The affidavit set forth the fact that John Burton, alias Terry, was killed in a bank robbery in Florida on Aug. 11, 1928.

Further research among police records revealed, however, that fingerprints of the defendant are identical with those of the Oak Park burglar.

"You do not appear to be legally or practically dead to me," Judge Lewe told him and passed sentence.

DODGE ANSWERS READY TO THREE SUITS BY WIFE

Involve 2 Children and ½ Million Property.

New York, July 30.—[Special.]—Papers setting forth the answer of Horace E. Dodge, wealthy Detroit speedboat manufacturer, to three suits which are to be brought against him by his wife, Mrs. Muriel Sisman Dodge, were served on her attorney during the day, it was announced.

It was made clear by Victor Roudin of Dodge's law firm that neither the complaints nor the answer have been filed in court yet. He said that each side has twenty days in which to amend the documents.

The three suits involve about $500,000 in property and the custody of the couple's two children, David E. Dodge, 5 years old, and Diana, 3, who are at present with their mother on Long Island. Dodge is in England.

Under an agreement between the Dodges dated Aug. 4, 1933, Roudin said, Mrs. Dodge was to get $50,000 for a house in England. Her complaint, the attorney said, sets forth that the money was not placed in trust for her immediately by Dodge, and demands $1,200. Dodge in his answer denies this.

LOSS BY FIRE IS $8,549,703 FOR ILLINOIS YEAR

Springfield, Ill., July 30.—(AP)—State Fire Marshal Sherman V. Coultas today reported the fire loss in Illinois for fiscal year ending June 30 was $8,549,703, lowest since the division of fire prevention was reorganized in 1917.

Of the fire loss reported $6,808,330 was downstate and $1,741,373 in Chicago. There were no conflagrations during the year to compare with the Chicago stockyards and state arsenal fires of 1934.

Coultas said 70 persons were convicted of crimes of buring during the year.

There was a marked decrease in incendiary fires," Coultas said.

SCIENTIST FINDS DOGS HAVE MANY HUMAN TRAITS

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, July 30.—Prof. Ivan Petrovich Pavlov, Russian scientist, announced today that he had proved that dogs possessed the same four fundamental temperaments as human beings.

Canine temperaments, as well as human ones, could be explained in terms of stimulation and inhibition, said the 86 year old professor, speaking before the International Neurological congress. Pavlov has had sixty years of experiments with dogs, and he predicted that they would throw important light on the behavior of human beings.

Some dogs, like men, are of the choleric type, in which there is too little inhibition, he asserted; some are of the phlegmatic type, in which stimulation and inhibition offset each other; some are of the sanguine type and can make a quick adjustment to stimulation or inhibition; while some are of the melancholic type—over-inhibited and little able to adapt themselves to new situations.

Pavlov said dogs are often afflicted with mental disorders which parallel those of human beings.

SUSPECT ADMITS BEING LOOKOUT IN FATAL HOLDUP

Tony Spranze, 23 years old, 311 South Leavitt street, who was arrested at the scene of the robbery and shooting in Liggett's drug store in the North Western railroad depot Sunday night, confessed to the police yesterday that he acted as lookout for the robbers. One of his companions, Sam Manno, and an elevator operator, Haskell Daniels, were killed, and Policeman James H. Frawley was wounded in a pistol battle that followed the robbery. In previous reports of the case Daniels' name has been given erroneously as Daniel Haskell.

In his confession yesterday Spranze named Joe Mirrabella, alias Belmonti, and Joseph Gallichio as two of the robbers. The police are also seeking James Micelli, a companion of Manno, as a suspect.

Squads under Sergt. John Hanrahan raided an apartment at 1344 Elburn avenue in a hunt for the robbers and seized James Mirro, 24 years old; Paul Pelletier, 32 years old, and his two brothers, Rocco, 17, and John, 24. Two pistols were found in the apartment.

Vincent Ferrindino, who was being held by the police as a suspect, was pointed out by a witness at a showup yesterday at the detective bureau as resembling one of the robbers.

CRAZED SLAYER TAKEN BY MOB, HANGED TO TREE

Louisburg, N. C., July 30.—[Special.]—Three hours after he had killed one man and attacked two other persons, Sweat Ward, 25, demented colored man, was lynched near here today by a mob. He was taken from the authorities and hanged to an oak tree half a mile from the scene of the killing. The body was found by National Guardsmen and state police sent to prevent the lynching.

Ward had been in custody of Sherif Moore, who, with one of his deputies, was hurrying the crazed Negro out of the county to Rocky Mount as a precaution against mob violence. The colored man's victim was C. J. Stokes, Franklin county farmer.

Officers who brought the colored man to Louisburg after the killing said Ward had suddenly become crazed about 9 o'clock in the morning at the home of his sister. He struck her down with a stone. A passing farmer who attempted to restrain him was knocked down with a bottle.

Stokes, who was working across the field from the woman's house, started to the assistance of the man and woman. As he tried to argue with Ward he was knocked unconscious with a stone. Ward then seized an ax and cut off Stokes' head.

ELEVEN COUNTIES SEEK CHANGES IN NEW TRAFIC CODE

Appoint Committees to Go to Springfield.

BY HAL FOUST.

While Chicago police were still prosecuting trafic cases under statutes that were repealed on July 9, public officials of eleven counties met yesterday in Rockford, Ill., and appointed a committee to attend a special session of the general assembly this fall to seek radical amendments to the Illinois trafic code that became effective on July 9.

The meeting in Rockford was called by the Chicago Motor club. Similar assemblages are to take place in Peoria today, in Joliet tomorrow, and in Danville on Friday.

The Rockford gathering yesterday expressed the fears of all officialdom that Gov. Horner's new trafic code, in upsetting the system for adjudicating motorists' misdemeanors, had made it impossible to regulate vehicular movement in an orderly manner.

Hit Upon an Expedient.

The sixty justices of the peace, police magistrates and state's attorneys present were advised that an effective temporary expedient might be found in the enactment by local municipalities of ordinances covering all the provisions of the state motor vehicle laws.

The difficulties arise from a section of the new code which provides a jail sentence as an alternative penalty for certain automobile offenses. Since only courts of record may impose jail sentences, this section had the effect of disqualifying justices of the peace and police magistrates from administering the code.

The problem does not arise in Chicago, Evanston or Chicago Heights, because they have municipal courts competent to impose jail sentences. In communities without such institutions, however, there exist no courts of appropriate jurisdiction which sit all year round.

Why the Delay in Chicago?

The continued enforcement here of the trafic laws repealed on July 9 was attributed to the failure of Police Commissioner Allman to supply his department with copies of the new code.

Where applicable, the new code is considered a distinct improvement over old statutes in many respects, notably in outlawing unduly loud horn and unreasonably poky driving, and in legalizing the pass to the right of an overtaken vehicle.

The Chicago Motor club yesterday sent a protest to George T. Donohue, general superintendent of the Chicago park district, against the imposition of a 35 mile an hour speed limit on the outer drives and against the park police' requirement of a cash bond for speeders.

"Chicago police give a motorist a summons if he is able to identify himself as a resident or as a person regularly employed in the city," said Joseph J. Cavanagh, general manager of the motor club. "The requirement of a cash bond works an undue hardship upon a trafic offender who is a law abiding citizen and not a criminal.

Study Cash Bond Matter.

"There are many respectable persons driving automobiles on the boulevards without carrying any more than pocket change. It is unfair that these should be held at the Lincoln park police station, possibly all night, until some member of the family or some friend can furnish cash for a bond."

Mr. Donohue replied that the park police were busy in the reorganization as a result of the recent appointment of Michael Hayes as chief, but that the elimination of the cash bond requirement was being considered.

"And what about the speed limit on the outer drives?" the superintendent was asked.

"What is the limit?" he countered good naturedly.

Ignorance of Speed Limit.

The public likewise is ignorant of what the speed limit really is. Capt. James U. Sammis Jr., head of the Lincoln park force, recently announced that it was 35 miles an hour. Yet test runs show rush hour travel moving at an average speed of 44 miles an hour.

The 35 mile an hour limit is invoked only on occasions. In rainy weather or when there are crowds of pedestrians, the slower pace is reasonable, it was pointed out. However, there are instances smacking of private enterprise in which police cars and motorcycles have been reported hiding on a grade separation ramp to pounce upon cars doing 45 miles under conditions favorable for the higher speed.

Wife Sues for a Divorce from Albert C. Buehler

Albert C. Buehler, head of the Victor Adding Machine company, 3900 North Rockwell street, was sued for divorce in the Superior court yesterday by Mrs. Goldie Buehler, 151 Abingdon road, Kenilworth. She charges that her husband has a violent temper and cites three occasions on which she alleges he was cruel to her. Her bill declares that, although her husband owns property worth $150,000 and has an income of $15,000 a year, she has recently had to borrow $600 to support herself and her four children, the eldest 14 years old.

OPEN QUIZ TODAY IN LAKE CO. RAIL CROSSING DEATH

3 Vehicles Smash Train —Seek Safety Lights.

A double investigation will be opened in Lake county this morning into the accident early yesterday in which one man was killed and three other persons were injured during a fog when two trucks and an automobile crashed into a 40 car freight train of the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad at the old Telegraph road crossing [U. S. Route 41] about a mile west of Lake Bluff.

Harold D. Kelsey, a member of the county board of supervisors, said the board would demand installation of adequate night warning signals at the crossing, which is marked only by an unilluminated sign. At the same time Coroner John L. Taylor will open in Libertyville an inquest into the death of the crash victim.

Driver Killed; Train Derailed.

The victim was Claude Plampher, 36 years old, a driver for the K. & G. Trucking corporation of South Bend, Ind. He was southbound in Telegraph road when his truck struck the slow moving train, ten cars back of the engine, derailing three cars. The heavily loaded truck overturned, spilling ten tons of paint over the highway on both sides of the tracks.

A few minutes afterward, Estes Headley, 36 years old, an employé of the same South Bend company, who was following Plampher in another truck, crashed into the train. He had seen the accident in time to apply his brakes, and consequently escaped serious injury.

Then as Headley stepped from the wreckage of his truck, a northbound automobile skidded on the paint covered road on the other side of the train, and crashed into the freight cars. Antone Stokes, 604 10th street, Waukegan, the driver, and his wife incurred several cuts and bruises.

"This crossing has been the scene of many serious accidents, including several fatalities," declared Supervisor Kelsey, "and it's about time the railroad supplied adequate protection for motorists."

Crash Death Held Accident.

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury at an inquest over Joseph Cernik, 26 years old, 2740 South Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn, who was killed in an automobile accident earlier in the day at Grand and Western avenues. The automobile he was driving crashed into the side of a truck of the Specialty Baking company, 821 North Cicero avenue, driven by John Corriere.

The death of Cernik brought to 536 the Cook county motor toll for 1935. Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 425 persons had been killed in motor accidents within the city limits and 9,315 had been injured.

Mrs. Clara McNamara, 5551 Drexel avenue, and her two daughters, Marjorie and Mabel, were in a hospital in Livingston, Mont., yesterday after their automobile overturned ten miles from Livingston late Monday. All three were reported seriously injured.

Verdicts of accidental death were returned yesterday at a triple inquest into the deaths of three persons killed Oct. 13, 1934, when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Chicago and North Western railway train in Des Plaines. Those killed were John G. Clausea, 43 years old, 2629 North 75th court, Elmwood Park; his wife, Hazel, 47 years old, and Virginia Coombs, 17 years old, 2335 North 75th court, Elmwood Park.

Boy, 6, Strays from Family; Drowns at Wilson Beach

Rudolph Richards Jr., 6 years old, 916 Galt avenue, drowned yesterday in Lake Michigan when he strayed away from a family group on the beach at Montrose and Wilson avenues. Lifeguards recovered the body.

STREET CAR JAMS IN DIVISION ST. HELD PERILOUS

Trafic tieups in Division street between Wells and La Salle streets make this spot the most dangerous and congested in Chicago, State Representative Edward P. O'Grady said yesterday at a hearing before Herman Moore, assistant Illinois commerce commissioner. O'Grady, who was speaking on a petition asking for a commission investigation, said the congestion was due to the Wells-Division street car terminal. "At times the line of stored street cars on the tracks in Division street extends as far east as Clark street," he declared, proposing that the terminal be moved six blocks west to Halsted street. Assistant Commissioner Moore took the matter under advisement.

PAPA IS SPARING ROD TOO MUCH, TEACHERS AGREE

The modern child of grammar school age is in need of more visits to the woodshed, according to a survey completed yesterday among teachers attending classes in the college of liberal arts in De Paul university summer school.

Each teacher interviewed had taught more than twenty-five years. Three-fourths of the teachers held that present day parents are more scientific in bringing out initiative in their offspring at an early age with resulting fearlessness and ambition. The minority, 25 per cent, held that the modern idea of high powered competition reacts too quickly in children and makes them overambitious.

MUSIC FESTIVAL AUG. 17 TO HAVE $250,000 PARADE

Tickets on Sale!

Tickets for the Chicagoland Music Festival may be bought at Tribune Public Service offices. Reserve seats are 50 cents each.

BY PHIL MAXWELL.

Musical instruments valued at $250,000 will be carried in the parade when bands and drum corps march into Soldiers' field for the sixth annual Chicagoland Music Festival on Saturday night, Aug. 17. This figure is reached by multiplying the number of participants in the parade by an average cost of instruments.

L. M. GREGSAMER.

And here's a new thrill for this summer! A 500 piece accordion band, the first one of its kind ever to play in the middle west, will march in the parade. Nearly five tons of instruments valued at $100,000 alone will be in this one unit.

The band is being recruited by the Rudolph Wurlitzer company. Roy Wells, manager of the Wurlitzer musical instrument department, will direct the players in "The Sharp Shooter's March." Mr. Wells was born in Charlotte, Mich.; taught public school music at DePauw university at Greencastle, Ind., and was conductor of the Greencastle Municipal band.

Open to All Accordionists.

This accordion band will be made up of all ages and sexes. Although the unity will consist principally of accordion students at the Wurlitzer school any one playing the instrument may join by sending an application to the Festival headquarters, room 1418, Tribune Tower.

All sections of Chicago are represented in the Railway Express Gleen club which has been entered by its president, Reuben B. Gustafson, in the Cook county festival men's chorus contest to be held Monday night, Aug. 12, in the Drake hotel.

Louis M. Gregsamer, the director, was born in Hungary. He conducts the Second German Baptist Church choir. The 31 members have given nine concerts during the last year, one as guest of the Trafic club of Cincinnati, O. The other officers of the chorus are Theodore E. Biehl, secretary; George H. Whittle, treasurer, and Philip P. Grady, librarian.

Drum Corps to Take Part.

Although the festival does not include adult drum corps contests this summer, adult groups are invited to take part in the opening part of the evening's program. The Marshall Field and the Police American Legion corps plane to attend.

The public is invited to the first Chicago-Cook county preliminary vocal contest of the festival at 7 o'clock tonight in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Tenors, contraltos, and baritones will be heard then and at 7 p. m. tomorrow the sopranos and basses. There is no admission charge.

MARY BOLAND OF FILMS SUED BY NEPHEW'S WIFE

Los Angeles, Cal., July 30.—(AP)—Mary Boland, stage and screen actress, was made defendant in a $150,000 suit filed today by Elizabeth Ross Kummer, wife of a nephew of Miss Boland, who charged the actress broke up her home.

One of Miss Boland's representatives said the suit was the outgrowth of a family quarrel.

Mrs. Kummer is the wife of George Bernard Kummer, an employé of the same studio where Miss Boland has won fame in her comedy rôles opposite Charles Ruggles.

The suit accused Miss Boland of interfering in the domestic affairs of the Kummers to such an extent that Kummer left his wife. The actress was charged with being dictatorial and with desiring to be the "ruler of the roost."

COLIJN FORMS NEW CABINET IN HOLLAND CRISIS

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, July 30.—(AP)—Prof. Hendryk Colijn succeeded tonight in forming another cabinet to replace his old ministry, which resigned Friday after parliament opposed its retrenchment program.

Names of the new ministers were to be announced tomorrow.

Colijn conferred among others with M. Goesling, president of the Catholic party, leading to the belief that he might be reconciled with that group. It was the disaffection of the Catholic group, which has 28 seats in the chamber's 100, which forced his former ministry out.

EX-ALDERMAN ASKS COURT TO HALVE ALIMONY

Irving J. Schreiber, former alderman of the Fifth ward, asked Circuit Judge George Fred. Rush yesterday to cut in half the $150 a month alimony he was ordered to pay Mrs. Marcia B. Schreiber of the Windermere East hotel when she divorced him a year ago.

Schreiber told the court that at the time the order was entered he was the receiver for numerous properties and was receiving an income of about $300 a month. Last April, he said, the number of properties for which he was receiver was sharply reduced, with the result that his income has dropped to $350 a month. Since then he has been paying his former wife $100 a month, he said.

Judge Rush granted Schreiber leave to file a petition seeking a reduction of his alimony to $75 a month, and gave Mrs. Schreiber until Aug. 5 to file her answer.

Drops Dead as He Runs to Fire to Save His Auto

Theodore Weimeskirch, 50 years old, owner of an undertaking establishment at 7036 North Clark street, died suddenly of heart disease last night. He was stricken as he was running from the undertaking rooms to a building at 7022 North Clark street, which had caught fire. His automobile was parked in a garage adjoining this building, and Weimeskirch supposedly was hurrying to take the car out of danger. The fire was extinguished with small damage.

Vandals Smash Windows in Four South Side Places

Bricks were hurled early today through the windows of a beauty shop at 5105 South Halsted street and barber shops at 1802 West 63d street and 7928 South Halsted street. The police attributed the vandalism to trade rivalry. A short time later five men in an automobile threw several steel ball bearings through three windows of the Western Candy company, 1421 South Halsted street.

GERMANS HIT LA GUARDIA AS POWER USURPER

But Jewry in N. Y. Heaps Praise on Mayor.

New York, July 30.—(AP)—Some 2,000 members of the League of National German Societies, led by the Friends of New Germany, gathered in the Yorkville Casino, center of New York's Germantown, tonight.

They adopted a resolution demanding that Mayor La Guardia "cease his ill considered attitude toward citizens and prospective citizens of German stock, who constitute a law abiding and faithful section of the population of the United States of America."

Speakers at the meeting included Freigh V. Schroetter, national leader of the Steel Helmets, the German veterans' organization; Louis Zahne, New York leader of the Friends of New Germany; Royal Scott Gulden, head of the Order of 1776; Walter Kappe, national representative of the Friends of New Germany, and Josef Schuster, acting national leader of the Friends.

Would Boycott the Jews.

Schuster denounced La Guardia as "an irresponsible Jewish mayor who secured his Jewish vote for reëlection by appealing to the Jewish vote and followed with an unheard of usurpation of power by a man who has not yet shown his qualifications as a chief magistrate."

"If it should be necessary," he thundered, "that we shall suffer by it [La Guardia's rule] we shall endure it gladly for the sake, glory, and future of our fatherland. . . .

"Do not patronize the Jews. Take away their last penny," he cried.

Condemn German Baiters.

At another meeting, opened with "The Star Spangled Banner," Nazi salutes, and "Heils," speakers of the German - American conferences of Greater New York denounced La Guardia, William Green, Senator King of Utah, and Samuel Untermyer, New York attorney who has advocated boycotting Germany.

Willy Meyer of the United German Societies of Greater New York drew loud cheers by his shout that "the New York press is all Jewish. The American press is the greatest prostitute of all the presses of the entire world.

"We are going to help make this a Christian country, run by Christians."

A resolution was adopted condemning Mayor La Guardia.

And an Anti-German Meeting.

But La Guardia's name was cheered to the rafters of the hall in which more than 1,000 persons attended the meeting of the Federation of American Jews of German Origin.

Congressman Emanuel Celler, the keynoter, declared that President Roosevelt had assured him of his "heartiest sympathy" with the meeting.

Other speakers in turn assailed Hitler, urged the United States not to compete in the Olympic games, applauded Mayor La Guardia, urged intercession by the United States on behalf of "oppressed and persecuted minorities" and demanded a complete boycott of Germany.

"The strongest weapon we have on this side of the water," declared Celler, "is the boycott. There are plenty of sanctions for it in international law. We must use the peaceful weapon; that is the only way to bring this bloodthirsty monster to his knees."

Get Rid of Hitler!

Another speaker, Children's Court Justice Jacob Panken, said that it was "the inviolate right of every man to worship his own God as he chooses without interference on the part of brutes and beasts."

"Millions of Catholics in Germany are in the same position as the Jews," he declared, advocating the severance of commercial relations with Germany.

Terming Hitler "the beast of Berlin," Judge Panken declared:

"The people of the United States, as well as of all the civilized nations, should say to the people of Germany now 'Depose your present Kaiser Hitler; free yourself of your plague; rid yourself of your pestilence, and do it quickly.'"

FORD OBSERVES 72D BIRTHDAY IN VACATION HOME

Big Bay, Mich., July 30.—(AP)—Henry Ford was 72 years old today. The founder of one of the world's greatest industrial empires observed the birthday anniversary at his "cottage," a 16 room affair, in the Huron Mountain club grounds on the shore of Lake Superior.

With Mrs. Ford, the motor magnate came here aboard one of his freighters several days ago for his annual vacation, timing it to coincide with the period during which his assembly plants throughout the country would be closed down for a fortnight.

As usual on his birthdays, Ford denied himself to interviewers and planned no ceremony of any kind. The absence of telephone or telegraph wires at the Ford place enabled him to enjoy the seclusion he invariably seeks on his vacation jaunts.

Ford relinquished the presidency of the Ford Motor company 16 years ago, but he relinquished none of the active direction of his company's affairs.

News of The Tribune Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

Strange Crops

July 30, 1935.

FIELDS, plots, and rows all have been labeled and numbered with new signs so that visitors will have no difficulty in identifying the foreign plants now being tested at the Tribune Experimental farm two miles west and one mile south of Wheaton.

Veteran northern Illinois farmers, as well as city visitors, find many strange plants, including pyrethrum, safflower, and crotalaria, at the farm. On the plots here many visitors for the first time have seen cotton growing. The cotton plants in field A at the Wheaton farm are thriving.

Safflower made a good showing for the first few weeks, but has been injured somewhat lately by the weather and insects. This crop is making a much better start this year than it did last season when it was tried out at the Tribune farm near Yorkville. Last year the crop was almost a failure because of extreme dry weather. Safflower, commonly grown in Egypt and India, is a stranger in this part of the United States. It seems to do best in the spring wheat region of Minnesota, Nebraska, Montana, and the Dakotas. The crop is grown extensively in Russia.

Experts have found that the oil obtained from safflower seed appears to have possibilities in the manufacturing of paints, varnishes, enamels, and related products. The oil may be used in paint as is oil from flaxseed. It is not intended that safflower replace flax, even if it proves profitable.

Safflower seed as a source of oil may be used to supplement flaxseed. Normally flax production in this country is about half the national consumption, which indicates that there is need for the production of more oil producing seeds.

The safflower plants growing in field B, plot No. 1, rows 1 to 18, range from 12 to 18 inches high. The buds are beginning to form. The flowers are expected to open soon. The blossoms of safflower attracted attention last fall when they were displayed in THE TRIBUNE'S loop office at 1 South Dearborn street. The petals of safflower blooms contain yellow and red coloring matter. The pigment of these flowers is said to be valuable in making lipstick and rouge.

Pyrethrum plants are from 3 to 6 inches high in plot No. 3. A small quantity of pyrethrum seed from Persia and another lot from Japan were started in the greenhouse at the farm in January. These are the plants that are making a fair showing. Seeds planted in the open plots this spring failed to come up.

Crotalaria, another stranger in northern Illinois, is being tested again this year. The juncea or fiber type of crotalaria will soon be waist high —the plants already range from 18 inches up to about three feet. In contrast to this tall growing crotalaria is the incana or forage type. Incana resembles some of the other legumes commonly grown in this region. In the plots today juncea plants are about twice as tall as the incana.

CHICAGO JEWRY PROTESTS NAZI PERSECUTIONS

Ask Action by U. S. and World Reprisals.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Resolutions calling for action in resisting the persecution of Jews and other religious and minority groups in Germany were passed last night at a meeting in the Morrision hotel attended by more than 1,000 representatives of various Chicago Jewish associations in Chicago. The meeting was sponsored by the Chicago division of the American Jewish congress and the organized Jewish labor groups.

One resolution called upon congress and the President of the United States to express to the German government "the abhorrence and condemnation of the American people in regard to its policy of oppression and persecution against the Jews of Germany, and all minority opinion."

Urge Trade Boycotts.

Members of the league of nations were urged to have no trade agreements with the Hitler régime, and this government was urged to enter into no trade agreement and to abrogate any existing commercial treaties.

Another resolution urged the Amateur Athletic union and the American Olympic committee to rescind America's acceptance of Germany's invitation to take part in the 1936 Olympic series "as a solemn obligation in defense of the spirit of sportsmanship."

American educational institutions were called upon to refuse the exchange of professors and students from Nazi Germany "on the ground that such an exchange of professors and students must be regarded as the introduction of agents of the Hitler régime within the United States who carry on Nazi propaganda against democracy and civilized society."

Pledge Support of Boycott.

Renewed support of the economic boycott against goods made in Germany was pledged, and coöperation between representatives of Jewish interests, labor interests, representatives of the Catholic faith "and all persecuted groups in Germany" was urged.

"The terrible danger which the success of Nazism would bring to the United States and other countries," said Dr. Paul Hutchinson, president of the Committee for Human Defense Against Nazism, one of the speakers of the evening, "lies in the fact that it is the projection of gangsterism, preaching a cynical philosophy of race and state, into the realm of international affairs. "It is true enough that the German press has been hopelessly gagged, but protests such as this meeting are known and felt by the German leaders."

B. C. Vladeck, New York, manager of the Jewish Daily Forward, declared that Hitlerism and Fascism "are not here to stay, but are transient, merely a trick of history, an object to progress which will be done away with."

DENMARK SENTENCES TWO FOR ESPIONAGE; CLAIM U. S. CITIZENSHIP

COPENHAGEN, July 30.—(AP)—Mystery shrouded the espionage case against George Mink and Nicholas Sherman, who claim American citizenship, although the Danish Appeals court today sent them to prison for 18 months and ordered their deportation thereafter.

The court limited its announcement to the fact that they were sentenced under section 105 of the criminal code, which fixes a two year penalty for any one proved to have aided a foreign power's intelligence system while in Danish territory.

Other sources, however, disclosed that damaging evidence against them had been uncovered. There was one story about a secret code discovered in Mink's apartment which police experts could not decipher.

HOUSE APPROVES BILL TO HASTEN OFFICERS' RISE

Affects 5,000 in Army; President for It.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 30.—[Special.]—Promotion in the near future for approximately 5,000 army officers was assured today. The house passed, 220 to 99, a bill accelerating the promotion of commissioned officers below the grade of colonel.

The bill already has passed the senate. The house accepted a minor amendment which will have the effect of postponing enactment of the bill until Sept. 1 instead of Aug. 1. That amendment is expected to be agreed to by the senate and the bill will go to President Roosevelt. He already has expressed approval of the measure.

Removes War Difficulty.

The act is intended to relieve the promotion stagnation caused after the world war, when the commissioning of many officers created a so-called "hump."

According to a military affairs committee report, the cost of the bill arises solely out of the promotion of first and second lieutenants. The increased cost of commissioned personnel over and above what it would ordinarily be for the fiscal years of 1936, 1937, and 1938 is $705,000, $620,000, and $505,000 respectively.

What Bill Will Do.

The bill increases the number of colonels by 158, the number of lieutenant colonels by 364, and the number of majors by 890. More than 1,000 second lieutenants will be advanced immediately to the rank of first lieutenant and 1,769 first lieutenants will become captains. In all, 4,918 officers will receive immediate promotion.

As explained by Representative Lister Hill [Dem., Ala.], the bill carries no benefits to generals and colonels.

The promotion situation in the army at present is "deplorable," Hill declared, but the outlook for the future is even worse, unless the bill becomes law. Many officers, largely captains and lieutenants, have no hope whatever of obtaining reasonably high rank before their retirement for age, he asserted.

Aas a Polish citizen she has lodged a formal complaint with President Colonder of the Mixed Polish-German Upper Silesian commission. Her family demands 50,000 marks ($20,000) indemnity, but the mayor of Beuthen is reported to have already offered 30,000 marks ($12,000). Colonder has approached German authorities to obtain satisfaction.

NAZIS PROTEST FLAG RIOT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 30.—[Special.]—The German government today presented to the state department a protest on the tearing of the Nazi swastika flag from the bow of the German liner Bremen in New York harbor last week. The flag was torn down by communists during a riot.

The protest stated that the German government expects authorities to make strenuous efforts to apprehend and punish the guilty persons. No request for an apology was made.

The department at the same time climaxed the wave of expressions against the reported discrimination against Jews and Catholics by the Hitler government. In a letter to four Jewish organizations protesting Nazi persecutions of Jews, Acting Secretary of State William Phillips expressed sympathy with the victims of the alleged persecutions and declared the American government is interested in preserving religious freedom in the world.

Text of Letter.

The letter said:

"I fully understand your solicitude regarding the experiences which these groups are reported to be suffering in Germany. The concepts of religious freedom and liberty of conscience for all constitute the most fundamental principles of our own civilization and political faith.

"This being so, the American people are always sympathetic to the maintenance of those concepts in the United States, as well as in other nations."

Protest Ignores License Bar.

The Nazi protest made no mention of another sore spot in German-American relations—the action of Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York in refusing a license to a German masseur on the grounds that Germany is discriminating against Americans.

The state department promptly ordered a report on the incident from New York authorities. Mayor La Guardia, who was at the White House shortly after the presentation of the protest, said that the persons involved in tearing down the flag are being prosecuted.

State department officials said the report was ordered because in the case of indignities to the flag of another country the offended nation is entitled to protest only when the police in the country where the incident occurred failed to give reasonable protection.

Protest Stirs Capitol.

Germany's protest had immediate repercussions on Capitol hill, where Nazi incidents have been discussed on the floors of both houses.

Representative Dickstein [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of the house immigration committee, said he would "bitterly oppose" any apology for the flag incident and declared he would renew his discussion from the floor tomorrow or the next day.

Senator King [Dem., Utah], pressing his resolution for an investigation of Nazi activities, asserted:

"Let Germany apologize for the way she has treated our citizens and claimants."

PHYSICIAN IS FOUND DEAD IN APARTMENT OF WOMAN ARTIST

Detroit, Mich., July 30.—(AP)—Dr. Arthur W. Bowles, 25, a physician who had been reported by his mother as missing since Saturday, was found dead late today in the apartment of a 27 year old woman artist.

Dr. Lyle C. Ling, deputy coroner, said a preliminary examination indicating death was due to excessive alcoholism and an overdose of a narcotic.

Mrs. Betty Wright summoned police when she was unable to arouse Bowles.

While officers were there Mrs. Wright's husband, Clarence, returned home. The couple was taken to police headquarters for further questioning.

Mrs. Wright told detectives she had known the physician several months. Her husband, she said, was out of the city over the week-end and Dr. Bowles came to her apartment Saturday noon. She and the physician, she said, spent Saturday and Sunday going to drinking places and Monday he said he wanted to get sober and return to his office.

CHART HUGE NEW WRECK BELIEVED TO BE LUSITANIA

Use Echo Sounder to Get Exact Location.

ABOARD SALVAGE SHIP ORPHIR, July 30.—The excitement of a new hope, more clearly defined than any that has gripped the imagination of the 30 men aboard, abounds throughout the Orphir after a day spent in charting the exact spot occupied by a bulky wreck which Capt. Russell says he is "almost convinced" is the torpedoed Lusitania.

The huge hulk beneath us lies approximately seven miles off the Old Head of Kinsale, Irish Free State, well inside the area designated by Capt. Turner of the Lusitania as that within which the liner disappeared 20 years ago beneath the surface of the water.

Begin to Chart Sea Bed.

Shortly after dawn this morning we steamed out of the cove near Kinsale where we had spent the night.

Quickly we reached the buoy and our speed was cut. In the control room our echo sounding expert, William Stephens, began to chart the bed beneath us.

Suddenly there was a quick cry, a command from the bridge. Capt. Russell hailed me excitedly.

"There's something there, something big," he cried.

Sound for Every Angle.

In ever narrowing circles the Orphir was maneuvered about the buoy, in arcs as small as her speed and rudder would permit.

All day we plied our path across the hulk, sounding for every angle across the mark held fast by the red buoy which had been dropped at the first command. Because the echo sounder charts objects at a considerable angle from the ship it will be necessary to fine comb the sea about the red buoy until the angles can be correlated and the exact location of the hulk determined.

WIDOW CHARGES 'INVENTOR' WITH THEFT OF $7,500

Mrs. Olga Topp, 6320 North Hermitage avenue, reported to the police yesterday that a man she knew as "Dr. Weiss" had vanished with $7,500 she loaned him. Part of the money was the insurance on the life of her husband, Conrad, who was shot to death during a holdup of his gasoline station at 665 North La Salle street last November.

"Weiss" appeared at the gasoline station early this month, posing as a friend of the slain Topp, the widow said. He persuaded her to advance about $5,500 to finance experiments he said he was conducting in color photography, she told the police.

On July 22 he took her to a room he had engaged at 629 Deming place, where she gave him $2,000 more after viewing the results of his alleged experiences. Then, Mrs. Topp said, she lost consciousness. When she awoke three hours later "Dr. Weiss" was gone.

RHODE ISLAND ELECTION HELD NEW DEAL TEST

Democrats Wrangle Over Party Spoils.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 30.—[Special.]—The first congressional by-election, to which the politicians will look for straws showing which way the political wind is blowing on the eve of the presidential election, will take place in the First Rhode Island district next Tuesday.

The Republicans and the Democrats have nominated strong candidates and their national party organizations are actively working to influence the result, which will be of considerable psychological value to the party that triumphs.

Inasmuch as the district, which comprises the eastern half of Rhode Island, has been Democratic ever since it was created since the 1930 apportionment, and as the state government is completely controled by the Democrats, the party in power entered the contest with a substantial advantage.

New Deal Paramount Issue.

The New Deal is the paramount issue. If the Democratic candidate wins the result will be hailed by the Democrats as a vindication of the President and a harbinger of his re-election. If the Republicans capture the district they will herald the event as a repudiation of Mr. Roosevelt and the New Deal in Democratic territory, indicating the change in public sentiment and presaging defeat of the President next year.

This showdown on the New Deal is one of the indirect results of the coup d'état of last January, whereby the Democrats, who controled the administrative and legislative branches of the state government, seized control of the judicial branch also by ousting Republican justices of the Supreme court and replacing them with Democrats.

Francis B. Condon, Democrat, was elected to represent the First district in 1932 and was reëlected in 1934. Following the coup d'état he resigned from the house to become a member of the state Supreme court.

War Veterans Nominated.

To fill the vacancy the Democrats have nominated Antonio Prince, now state treasurer, a Franco-American who has a war record as a member of the Royal Canadian Flying corps. The Republicans have named Charles F Risk, former District court judge, who also has a war record, is a leader in the American Legion, and a bonus advocate.

The Republicans are pretty thoroughly united, while on the Democratic side there is much dissension due to dissatisfaction with the results of the New Deal and with the division of party spoils.

The Democrats are whooping it up for the New Deal and especially for the "death sentence" on utility holding companies. The Democratic convention pledged its nominee "to support President Roosevelt and the so-called 'death sentence' of the public utilities holding company bill."

Pledges New Deal Aid.

In his acceptance speech Prince said:

"One beacon light glows in the white heat of truth in the midst of the battle. Under the leadership of Franklin Roosevelt we have gone a long way forward from that dark day in 1933. We have yet a long journey to make to the hilltop of complete economic recovery. We must press the fight under the leadership of Franklin Roosevelt."

The nomination of Prince was not accomplished without a bitter factional row among the Democrats. In addition, there are threats of two Democrats running independently. One of these is former State Senator Isaac Moses, who was four times a member of the state Democratic central committee and a nominee for congress from the Second congressional district in 1924. He already has filed the papers necessary for him to run as an independent, containing the names of nearly 700 electors. He is to run as a "Good Government party" candidate.

"Organization" Backs Prince.

The other possible Democratic independent candidate is Mayor Felix Toupin of Woonsocket, who, in the convention which nominated Prince, received 30 votes to 67 for Prince and 5 for Samuel Smith Jr.

Prince was backed by the "organization." Toupin had the support of the Thomas P. McCoy faction. Although defeated in its effort to nominate Toupin, the McCoy faction forced adoption of the resolution pledging the nominee to support President Roosevelt's "death sentence" clause in the holding company bill.

The convention fight was bitter in the extreme and lasted for hours. One of the McCoy leaders in the convention, Public Works Commissioner Albert J. Lamarre, offered the resolution to bind the nominee of the convention to support the "death sentence" clause.

"The reason this resolution is necessary," said Lamarre, "is that one of the nominees to be put before us is a puppet of Gov. Green and his oligarchy on Smith Hill. I say it is germane to instruct this man, this weakling, who is going to be elected, as to our position on this important issue." He was referring to Prince.

Fights Processing Tax.

Risk, the Republican nominee for the Rhode Island district, opened his campaign with a speech in which he charged that an ERA worker, John Walls, with a wife and five children, had been discharged because Walls had voiced his preference for Risk for congress over the Democratic nominee.

The Republican nominee also is making a great deal of the processing tax issue. The processing tax on cotton has been not at all popular in mill centers, and Risk is charging that because of this tax, manufacturers had to curtail production, shut down mills, and threw men and women out of work.

The first congressional district of Rhode Island in 1932 went for President Roosevelt over former President Hoover by more than 30,000 votes. However, Condon, then the Democratic candidate for the house, won by a little more than 15,000.

WOMAN FIGHTS JAS. ROOSEVELT'S YEAST FACTORY

Newark, N. J., July 30.—(AP)—James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, has been president of the National Grain Yeast corporation of Belleville about a month. Today he has been directed to appear in court in connection with that plant's operations.

Acting on the complaint of a woman who lives across the street from the yeast company, Vice Chancellor Alfred A. Stein ordered young Roosevelt and other officers to show next Monday why the plant should not be restrained from making so much noise and causing so much vibration twenty-four hours a day.

OLD SOUTH HEAVES SIGH AS NEW DEAL GETS PLANTATIONS

Washington, D. C., July 30.—(AP)—Lovers of the old south and its traditions felt a twinge of regret today when they learned that Rexford G. Tugwell's men have nguratively hung a sign "all washed out" on several famous plantations.

Once rich Carolina land that produced countless bales of cotton and supported some of the flower of the southland's aristocracy is passing into the hands of the land utilization division of Prof. Tugwell's resettlement administration.

The bureau declared that the soil is so eroded and worn out that it is no longer worth cultivation. It will be used in erosion control projects.

Once the land produced cotton for such families as the Calhouns, the Ravenels, the Pickenses, Andersons, Cherrys, and Claytons, all distinguished in history.

The land utilization division said it had accepted options on 10,000 acres for use and that it had authorized the purchase of 35,000 more acres in the same vicinity.

These properties lie on both sides of three small rivers in upcountry South Carolina, the Keowee, Twelve Mile and Seneca, and they center about Fort Hill, the home of John C. Calhoun.

POINTS PARALLEL OF ANCIENT ROME AND MODERN U. S.

Prof. Ullman Finds Same Trend to Dictatorship.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Many striking parallels between American politics of today and the politics of Rome during the last century of the republic have been noted by Berthold L. Ullman, professor of Latin at the University of Chicago. These include hard times and panic resulting from war, debasement of currency, a scaling down of debts, relief problems, a trend toward dictatorship.

"Many people today tell us that capitalism is dead," Prof. Ullman said yesterday, "that the world can no longer survive under a capitalistic system. No doubt many persons had the same feeling in 63 and 49 B. C., and at many other periods of the world's history—yet capitalism has survived. There is no reason, I believe, why it should not survive in the future if we want it to. That, in my opinion, is one lesson that history can teach us."

Cæsar as a Reformer.

Referring to Julius Cæsar as a radical, he continued:

"He was consistently a member and leader of the party that demanded reforms in the interest of the proletariat. It is not surprising that Huey Long has been called a Cæsar as well as a Catiline. In the same way today Mussolini began life as a socialist, and many socialist ideas are incorporated in the Fascist state.

"In Germany the dictator is head of the National Socialist party and won his early successes on a platform of radical and socialistic ideas that attracted the workingman and the poorer classes in general. He promised that large estates should be confiscated and divided, exactly as the radicals did in Rome, and he assured the debtridden that interest would be abolished, just as Catiline did. In Russia we see a dictatorship of another type growing out of ultra-radical ideas.

The Path to Dictatorship.

"In the United States the enemies of the present government have not been slow to point out that the radical policies of the government are leading to dictatorship, that in fact one has already been initiated as a consequence of the extraordinary powers given the president by congress.

"The parallel hunters may wish to point out that Cæsar belonged to an old senatorial or noble family that would ordinarily be conservative, and that, in contrast to Mussolini and Hitler, President Roosevelt belongs to a family of the same sort. It might be added that the members of the Cæsar family, like the Roosevelts, were divided in their political views.

"I have seen Oswald Spengler quoted as saying that President Roosevelt is either America's 'first Cæsar or a sort of John the Baptist who comes to make ready the way for the ruler.'

Parliamentary Power Wanes.

"With the establishment of dictatorship the power of parliament wanes. In Italy the old parliamentary organization has been abandoned. In Germany it has become the puppet of the dictator. The same thing happened to the Roman senate from the time of Julius Cæsar on.

"Under a dictatorship free speech disappears, as we have seen in Russia, Italy and Germany. Even under so benevolent a dictator as Cæsar this was true."

Apparently there is not much new under the sun, for Prof. Ullman has found that Upton Sinclair's plan for California was exactly like the agrarian schemes of the Gracchi and their successors.

Food as Political Issue.

"The problem of getting enough to eat is an eternal one," he said, "and naturally gets into politics. The Romans had the problem ever with them. Their example is a warning to keep the question out of politics as a party issue. The many wheat laws were the Roman solution of the problem.

"The plan of Gaius Gracchus was perhaps intended to prevent wild fluctuations in the price of wheat, caused by alternating crop failures and banner crops. To achieve this purpose he seems to have built grain elevators in Rome in which to store wheat bought at reasonable prices. He then sold it to the Romans at half the current prices. In later years grain was sold below cost, for political profit, and finally it was given away to thousands of Roman citizens.

"The end of it all is summed up in Juvenal's remark that the Roman populace cared for nothing but panem et circenses, which we may paraphrase as a 'square meal and a movie.'

"Today the solution is slightly different: In England there is the dole, in America we have the same institution under the name of relief. Already some persons have reached the 'panem et circenses' stage.

"It is reported that a Democratic circular distributed in North Dakota under the title 'The New Deal—What It Has Done for North Dakota' reads: 'Our great President has heard our cry for help and has answered it. Will you bite the hand that feeds you?'

"It is quite likely that those who distributed grain to the Roman populace asked the same question."

Other Points of Similarity.

Methods used by our legislative bodies and public officials remind Prof. Ullman of those used by our Roman predecessors. They, too, were fond of junketing trips, he finds, and they absented themselves from some meetings so that they would not have to go on record on a certain matter.

As to whether history repeats itself, Prof. Ullman said that it both does and does not. This paradox is explained as follows:

"When history repeats itself it does not do so verbatim. The component parts of an event are too numerous and varied to make it possible for them to come together again in an identical formation. But human nature does not change much, and history is the story of human nature. If only nations would learn through the lessons of history, as individuals learn by experience, life would be much easier."

WPA GETS PLANS FOR $31,000,000 STREET REPAIRS

Expect 108,000 to Get Works Program Jobs.

Plans for 130 projects making up the $31,000,000 street resurfacing program were sent to the offices of the Illinois Works administration yesterday, Ralph Burke, deputy administrator, said the details would be checked and the projects sent to Washington within a few days.

The street improvements were included in the $100,000,000 program that was decided upon Monday at a conference between Mayor Kelly, Harry L. Hopkins, national WPA chief, and Robert J. Dunham, state director.

Burke said he expected other projects to follow the street repaving in quick succession. Among these are a $40,000,000 sewer rehabilitation program for the city, park improvements to cost $22,000,000, and $9,000,000 worth of public school improvements.

List 108,264 Employables.

Estimates on the number of persons in Chicago who could be shifted from the relief rolls to jobs on the new government work projects were completed yesterday by Robert J. Myers, WPA finance director. The number of employable men and women in Chicago now on relief was set at 108,264.

Chicago eligibles were divided as follows: Unskilled labor, 40,058; intermediate, 31,397; skilled, 19,487, and professional and technical, 17,322. Plans call for monthly wages of $55 for common or unskilled labor, $65 for intermediate, $85 for skilled, and $94 for professional or technical labor under the President's new works program.

Approval of a proposed project of wrecking 1,800 obsolete and dangerous buildings in the city with labor to be supplied by the WPA was virtually assured yesterday when the council judiciary committee recommended that an ordinance be passed giving the commissioner of public works the proper authority to carry through the program. The committee agreed to present an ordinance to the council Friday, which will permit the operation during the summer months.

Salvage to Pay Expense.

The committee was told that the city probably would realize between $40,000 and $60,000 in salvage. Commissioner Hewitt, it was said, planned to exchange the salvage for tools and equipment necessary in the work.

The buildings to be wrecked either have been condemned or property owners have given their consent for demolition. Under the old ordinance the commissioner did not have the power to order wrecking any but municipal structures.

Administrator Hopkins, who remained in Chicago yesterday, announced the appointment of Mrs. Florence S. Kerr of Grinnell, Ia., as a member of the field staf in charge of women's WPA activities in 11 middle western states. Mrs. Kerr is an educafor, author and lecturer. During the war she worked with Hopkins in the gulf states division of the Red Cross.

SLUGGERS TAKE PANTS AND $14.

Albert Dyke, 26 years old, 8350 South La Salle street, was slugged by two robbers who took $14 and his trousers in a robbery yesterday at 79th street and Fielding avenue.

PARK BOARD WILL ASK BIDS FOR FOUNDATION OF OUTER DRIVE SPAN

The park board yesterday authorized its engineering department to advertise for bids on the construction of the south foundation, dock, and retaining wall of the outer drive bridge. William I. Bell, acting chief engineer for the parks, estimated the work involved at $1,861,000. He said that he hopes to have bids on the work before the board by September 15, with actual operations starting early in October. "With work actually started towards asking for bids, we plan now to have the bridge ready for use early in 1937," he commented.

The work will be paid for from former south park bridge bond funds recently released by legislative action.

The park board also approved the removal of the old jack-knife bridge opposite Wisconsin street on the outer drive, the bridge to be replaced either by a new bridge or a precast concrete culvert.

The bridge, which spans the south entrance to the Lincoln park outer lagoon, was built 42 years ago and the lifting equipment has not been used for 15 years, according to George T. Donoghue, general superintendent.

TUGWELL TO FIRE 7,000 ENGAGED IN RESETTLEMENT

Washington, D. C., July 30.—(AP)—Troubled by the mushrooming payroll of his new resettlement administration, Director Rexford Guy Tugwell today planned to discharge between 7,000 and 8,000 of his employés. He says he will cut off 2,500 in the next two weeks.

This decision, it was disclosed, followed completion of an inventory showing the resettlement administration now is paying 18,600 workers—about three times as many as the NRA employed to rule all industry.

The Tugwell inventory revealed that of the total, more than 15,000 employés were absorbed by the resettlement administration in taking over sub-divisions of the AAA, the FERA, and subsistence homesteads of the interior department. The new administration itself has employed about 1,500 persons.

Since the bulk of the absorbed employés were on the pay rolls of the rural rehabilitation division of FERA, it is from these ranks that the principal slashes will be made. This division handed to Tugwell a payroll of approximately 12,500 persons.

It was learned that the administration has 1,711 employés in Washington. Of this number, 123 are working in the rural resettlement division; 202 in the suburban resettlement division; 257 in the land utilization divison; 130 in the management division, and the remainder in the headquarters staf, which includes planning, finance, legal, information, personnel and similar divisions.

SOAKING THE LITTLE FELLOW.

The insurance companies have raised the prices of annuities because interest rates are lower than they have been at any time within memory. Interest rates are low because the New Deal has forced them down.

Annuities are not characteristically the investments of rich men. The person who buys an annuity is commonly in moderate circumstances. He wishes to be certain of an income during his declining years. He buys an annuity because it permits him to consume his principal without risk of impoverishing himself.

The President and his advisers talk loud and long about soaking the rich, but when the effects of his policies are examined realistically it will generally be found, as in this case, that it is the little fellows who have suffered most.

When a decline in the interest rate from 5 to 2 per cent reduces the income of a multimillionaire from $500,000 to $200,000, he can still get along. He doesn't have to reduce his purchases of pork chops or move into a basement flat. He can get by on $200,000. One of his heaviest expenses—his income tax—will be reduced greatly. The taxes on his estate will also be less and if he has attempted to provide for the estate tax through insurance he can cut that item too.

The ordinary man is not so fortunate. Declining interest rates really hurt him. They mean that his savings, in whatever form he invests them, will yield him less, and he has a use for every penny of income. To him the New Deal means coarser food and poorer living quarters, older clothes and cheaper vacations. He is the Forgotten Man of this administration. He is made to suffer for being neither rich enough to provide for his needs, whatever may happen, nor poor enough to go on the dole.

NOT A FASHION NOTE—A PREDICTION.

The supposition that these are the temperate regions, as distinguished from the tropics and the arctic, has been woven into clothing for men. Temperate is as temperate does. A zone having an annual variation from 100 to 130 degrees may be eccentric but it is not temperate. Mr. Man has gone up and down with it in about the same apparel the year around. He has taken a little off at one time and put a little more on at another.

While the range of his temperature has been, say, a hundred, the range of his clothing has been about forty. Sister Citizen for a number of years has made the two ranges about equal. Men's apparel and the weather have had only one thing in common—everybody talked about it and no one did anything about it. This summer, however, it appears that there has been a break out of bondage.

Garment makers have not been at fault for some time. There was a time when the average fellow, admitting that he wasn't much, still could assert that he had his pride and did not care to be mistaken for something inanimate which had escaped from a corn field. The garment makers have been tempting him with good looking clothes of tropical weight, color and fabric. The fellow's trouble has been shyness and timidity.

He did not mind white or tan when it got dark, but in the heat of the day and the daylight of the city being comfortable and presentable required too much nerve. The other fellow didn't do it and so no one did it. This summer there has been an apparent break for freedom. It is predictable that next summer a new charter of liberties will be in operation. And, brethren, that will be a real charter of liberties. Homo sapiens will have less maybe in what it can show as proof.

If the escape includes freedom from the coat a change in the average male physique may follow in immediate consequence. The coatless figure does not treat the stomach kindly. The coat helped the owner to forget it.

FLAGS FOR THE NEW DEALERS.

The New Dealers, perhaps through oversight, have failed as yet to provide themselves with an outfit of official flags. On the other hand, the older established governmental officers, bureaus, and departments are well supplied in this respect.

The deficiency should be remedied, if for no other reason than to prevent jealousy between the potentates of the new order and those of the old. If the commissioner of fisheries has his own flag, why shouldn't Jesse Jones of the RFC be similarly dignified? Honest Harold Ickes is privileged to fly a green ensign with a gold star in each corner and a gold buffalo in the center. What about his bosom pal, Hardboiled Harry Hopkins?

At the moment the only insignia we can suggest for the relief administrator would be a social worker throwing the federal treasury up for grabs, which is a bit difficult for graphic presentation. But we have some suggestions for other New Deal agencies which they are free to use if they wish. We might as well offer them free, since it wouldn't do much good to copyright them, as our public service office recently discovered in connection with THE TRIBUNE'S charts.

For the Brain Trusters themselves we suggest a frankfurter, rampant, on a ground of red.

For Mr. Jones and the RFC, a large bottle of red ink on a field of blue, signifying hope. The blue should be quite pale.

For the AAA, a ground representing a field of plowed under cotton, with a bonfire of little pigs at the center. When Henry Wallace is present the staf to be surmounted by an ear of Hi-bred corn.

For the Works Progress administration, a golden rake above three tattered and well worn leaves.

For the Civilian Conservation corps, one of Col. [Ky.] Louis McHenry Howe's famous toilet kits on a ground of green.

For the PWA, an overturned ballot box, surmounted by a bag of gold coin.

For the TVA, a large dynamo, connected to a single electric curling iron.

For Coördinator Eastman and the interstate commerce commission, a locomotive bound in red tape.

When used within sight of the new Supreme Court building any of these flags should be flown upside down.

JUSTICE AT ANY PRICE.

The owner of a cleaning and dyeing establishment in Chicago has been sentenced to two months in jail for failing to agree with a judge on what it costs to clean a suit of clothes. The cleaner says he can make money when he charges 49 cents for the job. The judge says the cleaner loses money at that figure and must charge 75 cents, the price fixed in the court's injunction.

Price-fixing by our courts is something relatively new in this jurisdiction. The precedents now being established offer interesting possibilities for the future. Judges are now sentencing business men for charging too little. It is possible to foresee the day when those voters who are lacking in appreciation of judicial poise will regard a judge who lowers prices as especially learned. Judges who raise the cost of living may be viewed with that ingratitude for disinterested service which is said to be characteristic of republics.

A judge running for reëlection may be tempted to call attention to the fact that the 25 cent haircut and the 10 cent shave have been his contributions to the history of Anglo-American jurisprudence. Rival candidates for the office may suggest that, if elected, they will discover precedents for the 20 cent haircut and the 5 cent shave. Judicial learning will come to include the art of subtraction.

A judge who can find a way of extending to groceries and rent the price-fixing principles now being applied to the service trades will be ranked in the popular mind with John Marshall. In short, the probability is great that the influence of politics over the selection and conduct of judges will increase if judges become price-fixers. If there is to be any improvement in the quality of our judges or any increase in their independence it will not come by extending their jurisdiction to include matters in which politicians are certain to be interested.

Editorial of the Day

THE NEW TAX BILL.

[Buffalo Evening News.]

The Democratic majority of the house ways and means committee has produced what passes for a tax bill, a pitifully inept measure so far as its revenue producing possibilities are concerned. When the administration airily passed the buck to its congressional leaders acute observers felt sure the Roosevelt program would be an utter failure. It is, if the committee's bill constitutes any criterion.

When one considers the fact that the national deficit in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1935, totaled $3,500,000,000; that the house Democrats propose to reduce this huge expenditure by levying additional taxes which cannot possibly produce more than $150,000,000 annually, it is easy to see that no real progress has been made. The tax program is in effect a futile political gesture, a face saving device for the Roosevelt administration. Pulling that particular rabbit out of the silk hat to confound the Long legions, the President must of necessity maintain the fiction that he is bent on sharing the wealth in his own way, hence the punitive legislation against the employers of the nation's working millions.

The heaviest new levies contemplated by the Democrats of the ways and means committee will be placed on inheritances and gifts, also on corporations by means of a graduated corporation income tax and an excess profits tax. The President indorsed the former and opposed the latter. His leaders in the house have included both in their bill on the theory that a discussion of the two will do no harm and may so arouse public opinion that the one least dangerous politically could thereby be retained.

That the tax bill, so called, will find rough sledding in the senate is indicated by the acrid comment of Senator David I. Walsh, Massachusetts Democrat, who holds it "unfortunate" that the question was not presented as a "revenue measure rather than a reform measure." There are a great many Americans who are ready to insist that it is neither a revenue nor a reform bill, but a miserable hodgepodge and makeshift which will deceive no one in the long run, not even the left wingers whom the administration seems so anxious to placate.

THE CURE FOR SUNBURN.

It's a queer world! Everybody goes to the lakes and the mountains and sits around in the sun for hours trying to get sunburned. And then they all ask each other, "What's a cure for sunburn?" I know a man who went down to the lake and worked all day getting sunburned. And he did. His face was like an Italian sunset, but his greatest success was his nose; it was swelled up so big it looked as though five hundred hornets had sat down on his nose all at once, and it was of such a painfully bright red he couldn't sit in his front window because people down on the street thought the nose was an auction flag and everybody came up looking for a bargain. He called up the drug store and the clerk told him that simple olive oil dressing was as good as anything. And then an hour later he called up the clerk and said he was going to shoot him on sight because the vinegar and lemon in the olive oil dressing was burning his nose off and his wife made him stay out of the dining room because she hated the smell of garlic. The drug store man explained that he meant an application of olive oil and not the olive oil dressing that goes on the lettuce salad. Sunburn makes a lot of trouble, but I don't think it's anything compared to chiggers. Chiggers carry knives or something like that and dig right into you. They cut a hole and then crawl in and pull the hole after 'em. I've tried every known remedy for chiggers, but they don't seem to mind a bit. I guess the only thing to do is go after each individual chigger that gets on you, haul him out by the tail and chop his head off with an ax. That's probably why woodsmen and Boy Scouts carry axes. I must get me a couple. I'll show those chiggers they cannot shove me around.

XCVI.

Phryxus, strike hands. I call you wit and friend.
Scarcer than hen's teeth is a man like you.
Companion to such moods as never end,
Strung like a harp to what is strange and new,
Swayed to the self-same music, caught to tears
At some stray starlight lodging in the mind,
Tuned to telepathy of sudden fears,
You're much like gold, spent sweetly, hard to find.
What we have shared is gentle silence entered.
We wince together from the name of love.
Our world is irony, contained and centered
On cycloids of long talk, running above
Highballs at midnight, clinked and struck apart
With good deep laughter that rewards the heart.

NANCY SHORES.

AT LAST! all the knowledge of the world has been boiled down into a little book that you can carry in your vest pocket—well, your coat pocket, anyhow. After eight years' work statisticians and professors of Columbia college have put into a single volume three inches thick every particle of human knowledge from the time this world was an atom floating in space down to the death of the NRA. Of course, each subject is not treated exhaustively, but it's all there. No reason at all now why you shouldn't know everything about everything. But probably two weeks after this compendium of wisdom is scattered broadcast over the land somebody will step up and ask if it's hot enough for you.

"ETHIOPIANS Move River to Defeat Italians."—Headline. Gosh! Mussolini never thought of that. But he's got the idea and is getting ready to push a couple of mountain ranges over on the Ethiopians.

TO A YOUNG GIRL.

If I have loved you
Put one mark there,
As saying, here is
A sweet despair.

If I have not, why
Then draw line
And murmur, no loss
In what was not mine.

But was I indifferent?
Then now appears
A matter to dew your
Pillow with tears.

JESSUP.

THE PARIS FASHION kings say the girls have got to quit this boyish figure stuff, stop using the clippers on the side and back of their heads, develop a perfect 36 bust and have hips again. And they'll have to do it; one might as well be dead as not to be in style. It will be a great relief to the men who drive autos. Nowadays when a car comes barging into you and breaks the rear bumper and the tail light and you look back and see the driver you don't know whether to say, "You big fat headed boob, for a nickel I'd come back and bash your fool face in," or, "I'm sorry, young woman; I hope your car isn't hurt."

"IN SPITE OF ALL THE TALK," said the man in the next chair, "things move along nowadays about as they always did." "That's what the king of France was sayin'," replied the barber, "when he laid his head under the gillyteen, and the man runnin' the thing sed, 'You wait, yer majesty, till you try to put yer hat on next time.'"

BANQUET.

You sat across the table,
My neighbor spoke of Spain
And Malabar. I noticed
How marked your mouth with pain.

There were three hundred faces
And voices, yet you knew . . .
We did not speak—I wonder
What has become of you.

LILA TERRY.

THE ONLY THING I'm going to ask the guide who is going to take me fishing this year is, "What do you think of Huey Long?" If he says, "Never heard of him," he's hired. Then we'll go out happily together and talk bass and catfish.

CHILDBED FEVER: A MENACE TO MOTHERHOOD.

LONG before William Harvey discovered the circulation of the blood, puerperal fever, or, as it was commonly called, childbed fever, was a much feared complication of pregnancy. Medical history records thousands of epidemics of this vicious infection as well as the struggles of the early obstetricians against its ravages.

Probably the most powerful essay from the pen of that distinguished physician, Oliver Wendell Holmes, was his polemic on the contagiousness of puerperal fever. The essay was read before a small medical society in Boston in February, 1843, and laid down rules for the conduct of confinement which if strictly followed by the physicians of the day would have resulted in the saving of thousands of lives. Needless to say, as with many new procedures, the medical profession was slow in adopting Holmes' principles. As the science of bacteriology vindicated his position, Holmes must have taken great pride in later years in writing ["The Professor at the Breakfast Table"]: "By the permission of Providence I held up to the professional public the damnable facts connected with the conveyance of poison from one young mother's chamber to another's—for doing which humble office I desire to be thankful that I lived, though nothing else good should ever come of my life. I had to bear the sneers of those whose position I had assailed, and, as I believe, have at last demolished, so that nothing but the ghosts of dead women stir among the ruins."

There are a few conditions in which a temperature may follow delivery which are not related to septic infection [childbed fever]. For example, many cases will show a rise in temperature of one or two degrees. This may be due to bruising along the birth canal, to deficient drainage, and not infrequently to intestinal stagnation. Infections of the urinary tract, in the breasts, or about the nipples, in the respiratory tract, sinuses, etc., may be attended with fever. No one of these, however, is a true septic infection and none should prove in the least degree alarming.

Childbed sepsis, on the other hand, is frequently insidious in its onset. Two or three days after delivery the patient may feel ill and the first obvious symptom may be sensations of chilliness or even a protracted chill. This is followed by a rise in temperature that may be fluctuating. The pulse is relatively rapid. The patient appears quite ill, gives a picture of great apprehension and usually of mental depression. All this means that some virulent organism has gained access to the uterus and is probably spreading through the lymph channels of the pelvis to adjacent structures. Extension of the infection to the peritoneum [peritonitis] is marked by spreading pain with great tenderness over the abdomen. Sometimes large vessels are involved in the inflammation and general septicemia [living bacteria in the blood] still further complicates the situation.

Prevention lies first in frequent, careful examinations by a competent physician during the months of pregnancy. Every sign of acute disease must receive attention. The patient must be instructed in good hygiene and warned against the use of vaginal douches. The mother should be attended by a competent physician who is himself clean and who will use every modern precaution against infection. And clean, hygienic surroundings for both mother and baby during convalescence should be the rule. During active confinement and subsequent thereto no one who has an acute or chronic cold or other type of respiratory disease, an inflamed wound, or infectious disease should be permitted to come into contact with the patient.

Childbirth must be surrounded with so many safeguards that untoward complications will be reduced to a minimum. Life presents no greater tragedy than the sacrifice of a young mother from causes that could have been avoided had proper precautions been observed.

EATING HABITS.

Mrs. M. writes: My husband contends that it is better for one's health to eat often. He has coffee and pie, cake, or sweet rolls between meals every day. I claim that the stomach should have a longer rest and that the three meals and maybe a little snack about 10 p. m. is the best way to keep fit. What do you say?

REPLY.

If your husband is underweight, or if he cannot take ordinary amounts of food because of any disease condition, eating between meals is advisable. A sandwich, fruit, or a glass of milk is recommended. If he is overweight the practice is proper if the total consumption of food in 24 hours is not more than three average meals. People who eat between meals usually consume three regular meals in addition, which overloads the digestive organs.

The average normal adult requires about 2,400 calories per day. This amount need not be divided into three equal parts but into five or six if desired.

Some stomachs empty much more rapidly than others. A full stomach will require four or five hours to empty.

PURPURA.

Mrs. J. N. writes: My 6 year old son has what the doctors diagnosed as Henoch's purpura. The spells start with a sore throat, high fever, and spasms. He vomits for six or seven days, at which time the bowels do not move. The doctors say the bleeding is from stomach and intestine. There must be some infection causing this disturbance. His appendix, tonsils, and adenoids have been removed. He has had two blood transfusions, his father being the donor. He is now taking calcium and a capsule containing adrenalin. Is there any new discovery on this disease? Do children inherit this?

REPLY.

Henoch's purpura is serious but not entirely discouraging. Your child should have large quantities of vitamins A and D. These are necessary in order that the calcium in the blood may be kept at normal. In addition to transfusions he may receive small doses of blood under the skin. This has a tendency to increase the blood platelets, the absence of which causes hemorrhages. Calcium should be used daily in some form and calcium gluconate is highly recommended. The disease is not inherited.

POISON IVY.

C. S. I. writes: How common is poison ivy? How should it be treated?

REPLY.

Toxin from the leaves of poison ivy and sumac cause a virulent inflammation of the skin [dermatitis] in about 60 to 70 per cent of those who come in contact with the leaves of either plant. The condition becomes manifest in from a few hours to 72 hours after contact and is characterized by swelling, smarting, burning, and itching. An extract of the leaves of the poisonous plant may be injected into the muscles and is reported to have a protective effect. This is given for the purpose of preventing the onset of symptoms should the plant be encountered. Every one should learn to recognize the three-leaflet ivy and avoid it. In tramping in strange woods wear gloves and boots.

A 5 per cent solution of ferric chloride in water may be applied to the skin areas should poisoning occur.

"DRAWING ACCOUNT."

Chicago, July 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Where a person is working for a firm on a drawing account against commissions from sales and is overdrawn and decides to quit working for said firm, is there any legal way that firm can collect from overdrawn person? Only a verbal agreement was made and the subject of overdrawing was not discussed at that time. C. T. W.

We assume that you mean that you had a drawing account of a specified figure per month. We regard the Illinois law as unsettled. In Felsenthal Brothers & Co. vs. Gradwohl, 217 Ill. App. 170, the salesman had a drawing account of $250 per month "to be charged against me and to be deducted from profits that I make on the merchandise that I sell." The court said: "This language is clear and unambiguous. It clearly means that there was no intention of the parties that the money advanced the defendant from time to time should be repaid to plaintiff in case defendant's commissions did not equal the advances."

In Strauss vs. Cohen Brothers Co., 169 Ill. App. 337, however, an opposite holding was reached on a contract providing that if, at the close of the year, the commission showed an excess above the amounts drawn, then any such excess should be paid to the employé.

It will be observed that in both cases the contract provides for the contingency of the commissions exceeding the advances, but does not provide for the contingency of the commission being smaller than the advances. We see no completely satisfactory basis for reconciling these two cases. For cases from other jurisdictions, see 39 Corpus Juris 153.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LIABILITY FOR NOTE.

Chicago, July 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a note which was given to me for salary and have had same for almost six years without being able to collect. The man who owes the money passed away recently and his wife is carrying on the business. She was always in business with him. The wife now claims she does not have to pay. I know she has money and feel she is liable for the note, which amounts to $900. What shall I do to collect?

E. C.

If the maker of the note left assets more than sufficient to pay the cost of probate, you could collect by forcing probate of the estate. If you wish to make this attempt the first step would be to employ an attorney. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

Modern telescopes have brought Mars close enough to shatter some of the early ideas about this planet. The dark blotches once considered seas have been observed to change color and contour and are no longer thought of as seas. The "canals" proved to be nothing but rows of irregular spots, which appeared as continuous lines through the older telescopes. They are natural formations of the soil similar to hills on our earth.

A FARMER ON THE NEW DEAL.

Farmer City, Ill., July 27.—Your editorial commenting on the farm bureau takes sound views of the real farmer's stand on AAA and similar New Deal matters. I have always been a farmer, as were my ancestors. I cannot see wherein the processing taxes are the farmer's tarif or similar in any way to the national tarif.

In the first place three-fourths of all our imports are free, including all raw material. So only one-quarter is an issue at all, and these are where goods made in foreign factories by foreign workmen from material grown abroad pay for the privilege of entering our home market as competitors. And even here an attempt is made to make the tarif only equal to the difference in cost of labor here and abroad, so as to preserve American standards of living.

Now the processing taxes are levied on one class of Americans on goods produced or made in America by American workmen from American material on American farms and in American factories and sold to another class of Americans with no foreigner or foreign goods entering into the problem from any angle. Wherein is there any similarity to a tarif at any point?

Again, is it good politics for the American farmer to carry class discrimination into politics when we number 30 per cent and the urban class numbers 70 per cent? When has congress ever granted us anything without taking toll of equal amount for the urbanites? When two billions relief was granted our farm mortgages did not La Guardia secure a like amount by his amendment for city homes? And his reward? He was made mayor of New York City. This was the entering wedge to the spending spree of billions on projects in every state in the Union—billions piled up on our national debts for all of us and for future generations to pay. O. H. SWIGART.

SMOKING ON THE BUSES.

Chicago, July 26.—One who is kept indoors through necessity has the privilege of going back and forth on the top of a bus in the open air. This pleasure is marred for many by smokers who seat themselves anywhere that suits their selfish convenience, the smoke and flying ashes blowing back into the eyes of the other riders. One who does not want to hazard arriving downtown with something in his eye rides downstairs when he would much prefer to be out in the open.

The economically operated bus has a driver only. Consequently there is no human supervision of what is going on while it is going on—merely a printed notice which is never enforced. I suggest that the company might hire one or two extra people, pin a star on them, and have them walk through the various buses, changing from one to another, and in this way enforce their notice (or else remove it). They would be giving pleasure to thousands of patrons in whom the company is seemingly uninterested except to the extent of extracting a dime from them. H. B.

THE TOWNSEND PLAN.

Peoria, Ill., July 26.—One of your contributors voices the belief that the people who do not think as favorably of the Townsend plan as he does are in for a surprise. I wonder who is being fooled the most. I am in sympathy, to some extent, with Dr. Townsend's purpose, but I would take issue with any one over its feasibility. Apropos this discussion, a relative of mine, stationed at present in a certain small county of one of our southern states, tells me that with a population of 2,000 persons in that county more than 600 of them are on relief. As there is no government work in that county, the relief is paid to them in cash. Heretofore they worked at various odd jobs, earning enough to live simply but comfortably, fished and hunted quite a little bit, and occasionally did a little bootlegging on the side. Today, as a result of the dole which they are receiving, they are enjoying an income much greater than when they had to work for a living. If any one thinks these people, who do not consider themselves old until 80, are looking for employment, they are very much mistaken.

I asked the question of how, if the Townsend plan were to go into effect, these people would spend $400 a month where the husband and wife make up the home, and both were of eligible age. The answer was: "Well, when the Townsend plan becomes law, if it ever does, the said $400 will have only the purchasing power of the sum these people are now receiving, and they will be just where they are now." "But," he said, "those of us who have to foot the bill have something to think about. In other words, under the Townsend plan, no matter what the conditions are, the improvident, shiftless, lazy and the unworthy, after reaching a certain age, must be supported by those who already are overburdened and compelled to work one hundred days out of every year to pay their individual share of the present high cost of government." [Statement made by Gen. Hugh Johnson.]

So the minister of the gospel can clasp to his bosom the gambler, the bartender, the bootlegger, and others after each has reached the age of eligibility to receive benefits of the Townsend plan, for they are all brothers in that great fraternity, The Mystic Blights on a Spree. The wage earners and others, struggling desperately in a battle to make both ends meet, will most assuredly be the goats.

ANTI-NUDIST.

Chicago, July 27.—It is disgusting to see so much repulsive flesh as one sees nowadays. It used to be confined to beaches, but now it's everywhere you look. Is it any wonder there are so many attacks as you read of in the papers? I hope the style changes so you can once more see human beings as they really should look. Clothes were meant to wear, so the sooner they put them on the nicer and more respectable for all.

J. G. OLSEN.

FLOODS ENGULF MANCHUKUO CITY; 110,000 IN FLIGHT

15,000 Homes in Antung Submerged.

ANTUNG, Manchukuo, July 31.—[Wednesday]. — (AP) — This city appeared in imminent danger of destruction by typhoon driven flood waters, Rengo [Japanese] news agency sources reported today.

Constantly rising waters of the Yalu river engulfed 15,000 houses, following a small break in a dike. The water was running 24 feet deep in the Manchurian quarter.

The flood, greatest in sixty years, showed no sign of abating.

Thousands of Antungites were fleeing the submerged zone for higher ground. An official bulletin said more than 110,000, or virtually the entire population, are homeless.

Property damage to date is placed at $3,000,000.

Fight to Stem Flood.

Army automobiles and police worked frantically to stem the flood. Patrol boats and other relief vessels were hurriedly transporting refugees to higher ground.

Nakano Island, in the middle of the river, was virtually submerged. Fifteen hundred inhabitants were removed, but 3,000 remain and it was feared all would be drowned since the rapid current made further navigation toward Nakano impossible.

At Asahi, fifty persons who had taken refuge in a schoolhouse were believed killed when the building collapsed.

Antung, before the waters swept in, had been thronged by ten thousand refugees from previously stricken districts.

(Latest reports from Formosa which felt the first fury of the storm, indicated the damage, though heavy, would be considerably less than expected there although communications were disrupted and reports were meager.)

Chinese Mountain of Dead Grows.

HANKOW, China, July 30.—(AP)—A great pile of rude wooden coffins—a veritable mountain of the dead—is growing ever higher on the banks of the Yangtze river near here.

Red Cross workers are pursuing their grim task of reclaiming the bodies of flood victims swept down from the inundated up-river districts. A corps of carpenters is working feverishly in an effort to provide the coffins in the huge numbers needed.

Every corpse must be encoffined in accordance with the Chinese belief that the spirits of th dead e doomed to eternal restlessness unless their bodies are decently interred.

1,500 Coffins Stacked Up.

Already 1,500 of these unpainted wooden boxes are stacked along the banks while hundreds of other bodies await the construction of their last receptacles.

The bodies recovered are believed to represent only a fraction of the total loss of life in the floods as it is known that tens of thousands of victims were trapped inside the walls of cities and behind dikes or swept seaward.

The details of the devastation are only beginning to filter in. The Rev. Adolph Koehler of Nicolett, Minn., returning from a 70 mile journey up the overflowing Han river, said he encountered only one town in that entire distance which escaped inundation. "High spots on the dikes and other patches of dry land were literally black with humanity," said the Rev. Mr. Koehler. "When we stopped, they crowded around by the hundreds pleading for medicines and fo d."

New Damage in Philippines.

MANILA, P. I., July 30.—(AP)—A typhoon, rains wind and high tides caused damage throughout northern Luzon Island today for the second successive day. Heavy damage to roads, bridges and crops was reported in the northern provinces. One drowing was reported.

CHILDREN WRITE AND ACT PLAY TO BOOST ICE FUND

93 Cent Gift Is Their Second Contribution.

BY MARCIA WINN.

She had big blue bows on her pale yellow pigtails, an abbreviated sunsuit on her back, and 93 cents in pennies and nickels clutched in her moist palm as she entered the public service bureau of THE TRIBUNE.

"It's for ice for the poor children," explained the child, Ann Barber, 644 Irving Park boulevard, 9 years old. "We gave a play and charged three cents. There were seven of us and we wrote the play, too."

The other six performers were Jane O'Rourke, Jimmie O'Rourke, Nancy Curry, Jack Curry, Jane Peterson, and Patty Plews.

It's Their Second Contribution.

The proceeds of "The Crystal Bowl" comprised the second ice fund contribution this group of children has made, for last year they put on a lemonade sale, which also netted a handsome penny profit.

"We like to do it for the sick babies," was Ann's parting comment. "We think may be we'll do it again."

In Downers Grove a group of six little girls held a penny carnival for the benefit of the fund. Its profits were $1.52. Participants were Betty Anne Derr, Jean Derr, Elizabeth Lockhart, Joyce Lockhart, Doris Cook, and Shirley Cook.

Means Relief for Needy.

Through the contributions of these children, and of older readers of THE TRIBUNE, cooling ice is sent throughout the summer months to sick babies, mothers, and aged persons.

In Memory of H. B. W.	$20.00

REV. T. B. FOSTER, 77, EPISCOPALIAN TEACHER, IS DEAD

Chicago friends have been informed of the death on Sunday of the Rev. Theodore B. Foster at Rutland, Vt. Dr. Foster, who had been a minister of the Episcopal church since 1883, was for many years a professor at the Western Theological seminary. He was 77 years old.

THE REV. T. B. FOSTER.

In 1906 he became rector of Emmanuel church in La Grange, a place he held until 1913. From the latter year until his retirement in 1928 Dr. Foster taught dogmatic theology at the seminary here. From 1923 to 1929 he was also in charge of the Church of Our Savior, Elmhurst. Before his retirement he was register of the diocese of Chicago.

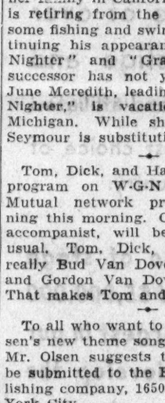
News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A sample of the new compact all metal radio tubes, developed by the so-called "House of Magic" at Schenectady, reached this desk yesterday. This particular type of tube is approximately one and one-quarter inches high and less than an inch in diameter. Other models are somewhat larger but none more than half the size of their correspondents in glass.



NEW RADIO TUBE.

"This reduction in size," the manufacturer states, "has made it possible to place all units much closer together, with a resultant shortening in 'leads,' a big step forward in stabilizing reception."

Advantages claimed for the new tube include self-shielding, serving as a barrier against outside interference; greater stability in operation, and the elimination of "microphonic noises" caused by passing street cars, trucks and the like. The tube is also said to be unbreakable and capable of greater amplification, enabling it to bring in distant stations more easily. And a key pin causes it to be guided easily into the socket—unlike most glass tubes.

Models equipped with the new tubes will be shown shortly by Chicago dealers, the manufacturer announced. Metal tubes are also being brought out by other manufacturers this season.

The title rôles in NBC's serial, "Betty and Bob," are being written out of the script for six weeks while the principals do some vacationing. Beatrice Churchill has gone to visit her family in California. Don Ameche is retiring from the cast and will do some fishing and swimming while continuing his appearances with "First Nighter" and "Grand Hotel." His successor has not yet been chosen. June Meredith, leading lady of "First Nighter," is vacationing in upper Michigan. While she is gone Anne Seymour is substituting.

Tom, Dick, and Harry's 11:15 a. m. program on W-G-N will expand to Mutual network proportions beginning this morning. Carl Hoefle, their accompanist, will be with them as usual, Tom, Dick, and Harry are really Bud Van Dover, Marlin Hurt, and Gordon Van Dover, respectively. That makes Tom and Harry brothers.

To all who want to enter George Olsen's new theme song writing contest: Mr. Olsen suggests that manuscripts be submitted to the Fred Fisher Publishing company, 1650 Broadway, New York City.

Rachel Carlay, French songstress of the Manhattan Merry-Go-Round program, is appearing at the Chicago theater this week. On Friday Rudy Vallee and his troupe will open there after an overnight flight from New York. Salary for seven days is $12,500, Balaban & Katz maintains.

DR. H. T. CUMMINGS FOUND DEAD OF HEART DISEASE

Dr. Henry T. Cummings, 53 years old, vice president of the staf of the Jackson Park hospital, was found dead yesterday morning in his automobile in the garage in the rear of his home at 6733 Ridgeland avenue. Dr. P. L. Peterson, coroner's physician, who examined the body, declared that Dr. Cummings' death was caused by chronic myocarditis, and not from fumes of the automobile.

DR. HENRY T. CUMMINGS.

According to his son-in-law, Charles V. Essroger, whose father is a vice president of the First National bank, Dr. Cummings had had heart trouble for a number of years. He said that his father received a call early yesterday morning to go on an emergency case. It is believed that the physician collapsed while trying to start the automobile.

Dr. Cummings lived with his brother, Frank Cummings, at the Ridgeland avenue address. He was graduated from the University of Illinois College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1903 and had been a member of the Jackson Park hospital staf for ten years.

Besides his brother, Frank, and daughter, Mrs. Helen Essroger, Dr. Cummings is survived by a sister, Mrs. Thomas J. Nugent, and two brothers, Hugh and Andrew Cummings.

Two Surprise Weddings Are Made Known

Susan Wegener Is Bride of Edwin White.

BY JUDITH CASS.

JULY comes to an end on a lively tempo for drab midsummer with the announcements of two surprise weddings.

Quietly and without telling any of their friends Miss Susan Jane Wegener, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wegener of the Ambassador East, and Edwin M. White, son of Mrs. Robert White of 1366 North Dearborn parkway, yesterday were married at high noon in the chapel of St. James' church.

On Saturday at the Exmoor club Foster Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Lay Turner, took as his bride Miss Daryl Marsch.

Miss Wegener and Mr. White, whose engagement was announced the end of June, had planned to be married the third week of July, but illness in the Wegener family caused the plans to be canceled. Only the immediate families heard them exchange their wedding vows yesterday after the Rev. T. J. M. Van Duyne. After the service there was a small luncheon at the Ambassador East for those who attended the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in a dress of delphinium blue crêpe. With this she wore a Dubonnet hat and a large bouquet of orchids. Robert White Jr. served his brother as best man.

After the luncheon Mr. White and his bride left for a honeymoon at the Bigwin inn, Lake of Bays, Canada. After Sept. 1 they will be at home at the Ambassador East until they find an apartment on the near north side.

The Turner-Marsh ceremony, which took place a 8 p. m., was followed by a supper for the immediate friends of the couple and the members of the two families. Among the guests were the bridegroom's mother, his brothers. Robert and Tracy Jr.; Mrs. Tracy Turner Jr., and Mrs. Ellen Marsh, mother of the bride.

The newlyweds left the same evening for Bay View, Mich., where they will spend the summer. Mr. Turner has business interests there. He is the former husband of Janet Good Turner.

Chicagoan Attends Benn-Shinkman Wedding.

A Chicagoan, Durand Smith, acted as best man at the wedding yesterday of Miss Elizabeth Benn, daughter of Sir Ernest Benn, English publisher, and Paul Shinkman, a New York journalist. The wedding took place at 3 o'clock in St. Peter's church in Tanbridge, the master of the temple reading the service before 300 guests.

The Hon. Eliot Hodgkin, daughter of the lord chief justice, Lord Hewart, was matron of honor and there were four bridesmaids and two small trainbearers, Susan Benn, a niece of the bride, and Ann Hodgkin. The bridesmaids were Miss Julia Benn, the bride's sister; Miss Sylvia Hughes, Miss Ruth Runciman, and Miss Mary Thompson.

The bride's three brothers, John, Glanville, and Christopher, acted as ushers. Mr. Shinkman, who is from Grand Rapids, Mich., was on THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in Paris and London in 1928. He met Miss Benn then, but they became better acquainted in 1931 when he went to England for Glanville Benn's wedding. Mr. Shinkman and Durand Smith went over together for that wedding and Mr. Shinkman developed appendicitis and convalesced at Blunt house in Oxted, the Benn residence. Mr. and Mrs. Shinkman will spend their honeymoon in England and on the continent, and then will sail for New York, where they will live.

Tell Engagement of Betty Lou Olmsted.

At a small tea given for her most intimate friends last week Mr. and Mrs. George Olmsted of 1036 Judson avenue, Evanston, announced the engagement of their daughter, Betty Lou, to John Robert Boston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Boston of 5918 Kenmore avenue, formerly of Dwight, Ill.

Miss Olmsted is a graduate of Vassar college and a member of the Evanston Junior league. Mr. Boston attended the University of Illinois, where he was a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity. The wedding will take place in the late fall or early winter.

At a cocktail party last Saturday in their home at 1632 Wesley avenue, Evanston, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Torrey Bradford announced the engagement of their daughter, Ann, to William Whaley, son of Col. and Mrs. Arthur M. Whaley of Washington, D. C.

Miss Bradford finished at Mlle. Clement's school in Paris after being graduated from the Roycemore school

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Joanna Rogers, daughter of Mr. and and Mrs. George T. Rogers of Lake Forest, finds it easier to keep cool than Tim, her pet collie, does on these warm midsummer days. Miss Rogers is spending the summer in Lake Forest and in the autumn will resume her studies at Ferry Hall, where she will be graduated next June.

Use Autogyro to Pick Locale for Western

Select Mountain Spot After Trip in Air.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., July 30.—[Special.]—The autogyro was used for the first time in hunting film locations when George O'Brien, seeking a spot for his new western "Thunder Mountain," hired Al Warrander to fly the latter's autogyro through the Sierra Nevadas. It was so mountainous where O'Brien wanted to go that a regular plane could not have landed.

They found the "atmosphere" they wanted in a little valley at 9,000 feet elevation some 75 miles back of Sonora, Cal., where the M. G. M. company filming "Robin Hood of Eldorado" has been working.

George Wright, son of Harold Bell Wright, cowboy best seller, is adapting Frank Spearman's "Whispering Smith Speaks" for a screen story. Young Wright uses the pen name of John Lebar.

Harpo Marx has accepted an invitation to fly to Alexander Woollcott's cabin party in the Vermont hills as soon as the Marx Bros.' nonsense film, "A Night at the Opera," is completed. Marx says "Woollcott has a highbrow party there, but it won't be so highbrow after I get there."

Wallace Beery has flown with his own pilot in Beery's plane to New York, wife Rita and daughter Carol Ann following by train. They sail to Europe next week.

Jack Benny complimented Ted Healy on a sporty polo outfit Healy was wearing on the set of "In the Bag" at M. G. M. "Yes, nice duds for the purpose," said Healy. "But I hope nobody puts a horse under me."

John Beal recently was attended for a nervous breakdown but took an ocean voyage with his wife to New York and is now himself again.

Lloyd Bacon, director at Warner Bros., has been assigned to direct the film story, "Lucky Me," authored by his sister, Bessie Bacon.

In the story, "Splendor," which Rachel Crothers wrote and is going to help direct in return for a share of the profits, but no salary, Sam Goldwyn is rounding up a star cast, including Joel McCrea, Miriam Hopkins, Helen Westley and Paul Cavanaugh. Elliott Nugent will direct it and incidentally will at the same time give Miss Crothers a personally conducted course in film directing. She plans to direct succeeding films for herself [and Goldwyn], also for no pay but a percentage.

Oliver Messel, European stage director, who helped Reinhardt put on "The Miracle" in London, has joined the M. G. M. force to create backgrounds for the film spectacle of "Romeo and Juliet."

When autograph hounds mistook Marcel Ventura, Mae West's new social secretary, for George Raft, Ventura obliged them with Raft's signature.

Warner studio nipped in the bud George Brent's application for an entry blank for the national air races in Cleveland.

Sally Warns Children to Hasten Letters

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Did you give your letters to the mailman yet, boys and girls? 'Cause if you haven't, you'd better do it right away. Letters not mailed today can hardly reach me tomorrow morning, and if they're not here tomorrow you're just out of luck. And you can't come to our circus party, which is to be given for us by Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey.

In telling you about all the grand things we'll see in the big tent, the daring performers, the huge menagerie, the band and the rough riders, I forgot to mention the Indians—there'll be a whole village of them for our inspection. Then, too, there's a girl, Mlle. Gillette, who dives from the top of the tent. That should be something to make you blink your eyes and hold your breath.

I wish to take with me 50 boys and 50 girls and I want them to be the youngsters to whom the party will be the biggest treat. If you think coming with me Aug. 8 will be a great event in your life, write and tell me so. Tell me which of all the wonderful features of the circus you think you'll like best. I want you to write your own letter, and be sure to include in it your full name, address, and age. Please don't ask for invitations for brothers or sisters or cousins—have them write, too.

Thursday is my reading day, so if you're writing me you'd better hurry up, seal the envelope and address it to Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Europe's War Talk Appears in New Styles

Military Motif Seen in Winter Fashions.

PARIS, July 30.—(AP)—The women of a war-conscious Europe which has one car straining for the sound of battle drums in Africa learned today that their designers have adopted military motifs for winter fashions.

While Premier Laval and Britain's Anthony Eden were conferring on ways to avert an Italo-Ethiopian war, Creed was launching coats and frocks inspired by army officers' uniforms.

These garments had such names as "Guards," "Iron Duke" and "Black Watch." Some of the coats were in black wool, double breasted, with padded shoulders, fitted waists and either bold revers or high standing astrakhan collars.

Dashing officers' capes in three-quarters length topped suits with braided mess jackets. There were also coat dresses with military tunics, the latter trimmed with silk frogs and finished with belts of red silk braid.

For tailored suits there were felt army campaign hats, the crowns of which were encircled by cords.

Black was the most popular afternoon color, but there were shades of brown, rust, pine and green in tailleurs and dresses which were fashioned of rich diagonal two-toned wools.

Marcel Rochas showed day costumes of wool, combining greenish blue with magenta or pigskin yellow, and grayish green with cerise.

Many wool frocks had bright scarfs tucked inside the high necklines and three-quarter swagger coats or belted jackets.

Fastenings included silver crowns, keys, stars and gold sunbursts.

Buyers Cheer Two Shows of Fall Fashions

Ten Thousand in City for Market Events.

BY KAY HALL.

The second booming day of Chicago's fall market closed yesterday with 10,000 buyers in town and two large scaled evening style shows. The shows were concerned with the time, the place and the girl and their varied offerings were insistent evidence that in clothes the Chicago market can take care of any time, any place and any girl.

What most women wear most of the time was the mass line that attracted 3,000 buyers to the air cooled second floor auditorium of the Merchandise mart for the mart exhibitors' fashion review. Street and house dresses, lounging apparel and children's and infants' wear were modeled.

There is hardly such a thing as a house dress any more, so ardently have the designers worked to make such garments withstand public scrutiny. The critical buying audience gave its applause to the new street dresses of frosted woolen and cotton mixtures. Smart corduroy suits, much plaited, also drew favor.

Angora sweaters which had yokes and blouses over a waist band were also favorites. Smocks form the jackets of new corduroy and sateen lounging pajamas, dividing fashion honors with brilliant silk pajamas of oriental design. Wood and cork buttons were shown on woolen and knit dresses.

Interest in the promenade of child models in school clothes was heightened by a "Mary had a little lamb" tableau in which the principals were Mary Lou Puchner, 10 years old, and "Tiny," 6 months old lamb from THE TRIBUNE Experimental farm. "Tiny" was more inclined to walk backward than forward, having been selected from the farm herd, given a bath and introduced to civilization only a few hours before.

Coats, suits and dresses of the higher price brackets, all the products of Chicago designers, were the bill of fare in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel, where the fall fashion show of style creators of the Chicago Wholesale Market district was held.

Here an audience of some 1,500 manufacturers and buyers loudly acclaimed what stylists say is the most extravagant mode advanced since pre-war days. Coats and suits were lavishly be-furred; fabrics were luxurious and metallic; formal gowns harkened back to the influence of the Italian Renaissance; street dresses, made with the high tailored jackets of the '90s, were ankle-length, and colors were those of rich autumn leaves.

The result was a style made from a composite of stylings of other generations. The tunics of medieval page boys were seen again in a new guise, as swagger jackets for the 1935 "costume" suits. Monks' robes of the 14th century were converted into daring formals, with high necks and wing sleeves. The trousered attire of Persian women was revamped into a modern "harem" skirt, bound to one side to simulate trousers.

Outstanding among the new luxury notes was the use of purple, ranging from amethyst to fuchsia, and deep reds, from ruby to wine. Street dresses showed a leaning toward finger-length capes. Coats were bloused at the waist, belted and shorter—and all furred. Swagger coats, worn over a matching wool dress, were full, either at the front or back.

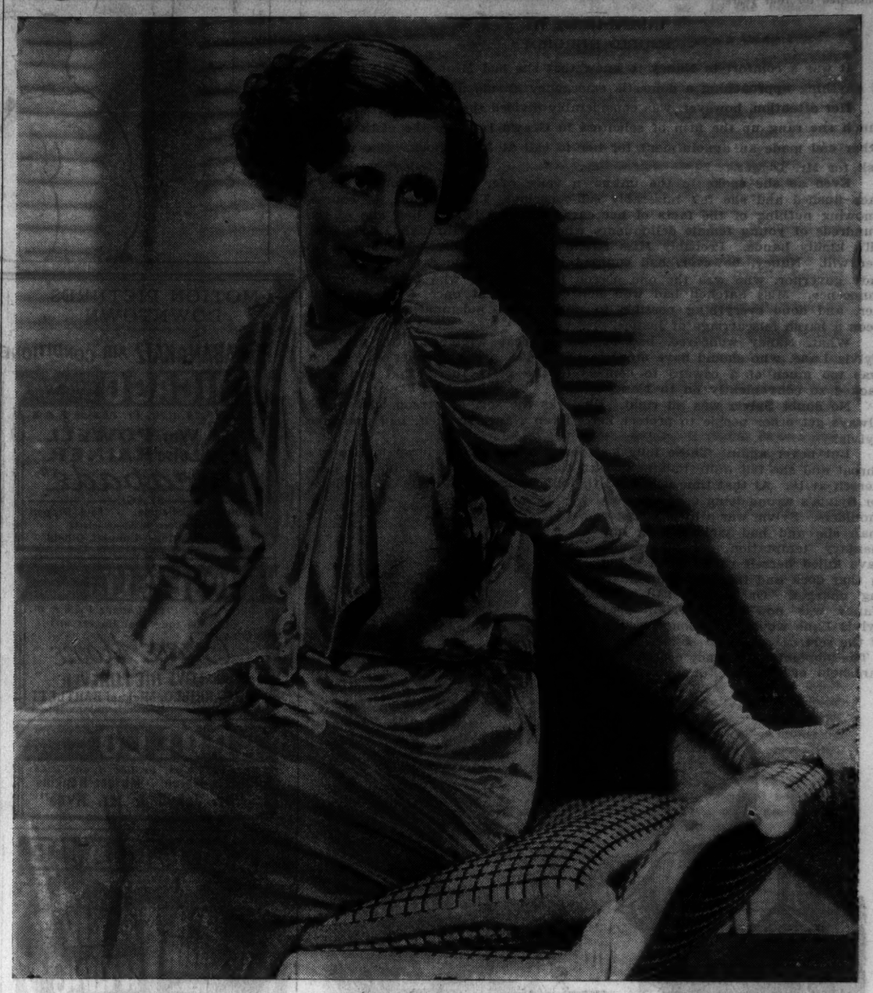
The Merchandise Mart show will be repeated next Tuesday and the Stevens show tomorrow and next Tuesday evenings. The interstate merchants' council review at the Hotel Sherman, first presented on Monday, will go on again tonight and next Monday and Wednesday nights, as will the Terrace Garden style show of the Style Exhibitors, Inc., at the Morrison hotel.

Other market events which will continue to Aug. 10 are the fashion merchandise show and the Chicago merchandise fair at the Palmer house and the gift show, glassware, china, and pottery show, eastern manufacturers' and importers' exhibit, and house furnishings and electrical appliance show, all at the Merchandise Mart.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Levy of 3530 Lake Shore drive announce the marriage of their daughter, Irma B., to Donald Korshak, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Korshak, on July 16 at the Belden-Stratford hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Korshak will be at home after Aug. 15 at 531 Brompton place.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS



Irene Dunne, endowed with beauty, wit and dramatic charm, loves simplicity in all things and finds health the keynote to beauty.

Hollywood, Cal.—[Special.]—When we tiptoed on to the sound stage at Universal where "The Magnificent Obsession" is in the making as a film Director John Stahl was putting Irene Dunne through her paces. We asked him what quality he liked best in a woman he must direct. Looking straight at Irene he said "I'll take brains."

And it's quite true that Miss Dunne has the vital quality of intelligence. It's revealed in her eyes, her acting and her conversation. The gods were lavish when they tossed in good looks and dramatic ability, too.

It's only once in a lifetime that you meet a woman with the sort of electric spark that sets her apart from all others and find that woman untouched by any suggestion of the theatrical. Miss Dunne has dramatic charm, all the more impressive when you consider that it is untrimmed by any studied eccentricity of dress or of makeup.

Miss Dunne is a health worshiper. She is one of the few women out here who takes exercise religiously. Most of them depend on their sports and massages to keep them in good shape. Irene does the good old fashioned physical jerks every day—mostly breathing and stretching exercises. They keep her tummy flat, make her feel as though she were walking on air and are grand for the voice.

Anything that keeps the circulation at its perfect pitch is a beauty builder, she thinks. She feels and looks better when she can play plenty of golf, her favorite sport, and glories in salt rubs and salt water swimming. She drinks a tremendous amount of wate Even as we talked between shots the set her maid dashed up automat ally from time to time with glasses o it for her.

She's the perfect person to sell you on the health as the real beauty secret gospel; her greenish brown eye have beautiful sparkle and her skin is as firm and radiant as a baby's. Her hair is a lighter shade than we expected it to be—it's a light brown with golden undertones. The modeling of her mouth is something to pray for and her smile, which begins with her eyes, is enchanting.

Irene is a girl after our own heart when it comes to clothes. She likes simple, but good ones and loathes anything theatrical. She's always beautifully groomed and appropriately dressed. She's intensely feminine, but not at all the lace and ruffles type.

Hers is a crisp daintiness, expressed in the simple, smart clothes, the plain arrangement of her well brushed hair and even her perfume. This last defies analysis; it's specially compounded for her in Paris. It's light and brisk but feminine, too, just as she herself is.

The Husband Snatcher

By Elizabeth York Miller.

SYNOPSIS.

Nancy and Dick Heritage have been married for two years and are still greatly in love. Though Nancy is hated by Edith Heritage, her mother-in-law, she is coming to live with them in their little house in Primrose Dene, near London. There is a gap of four years in Nancy's life which she had not satisfactorily accounted for. Nancy receives a letter from Mr. Sam Digger, attorney, informing her that she had been remembered in the will of Miss Agnes Satchell, late governor of a girls' reformatory, where Nancy had been committed for four years.

INSTALMENT III.

STUPID HEROISM.

It was a comfort to Nancy to know that she had Minnie to fall back on if anything approaching a domestic emergency should arise.

Her attention, however, was considerably divided that day. Shortly before lunch she rang up the firm of solicitors in Gray's Inn and the clerk at the other end made an appointment for her to call at 3:30 o'clock. She was to ask for Mr. Digger.

Even as she spoke to the unknown voice over the telephone Nancy's face flushed and she felt miserably self-conscious. Those people, of course, knowing nothing of the facts of her case, regarded her as just one of the hundreds of young female delinquents who had passed through Miss Satchell's kindly hands. Probably Miss Satchell had remembered other girls in her will. Nancy, however, had counted herself a prime favorite with the lady governor, who was the one person in the world who believed in her innocence. Miss Satchell had won her confidence at once, kept her near her, and done everything possible to mitigate a condemnation which had been a harsh miscarriage of justice.

What, Nancy wondered, had become of that wretched little sniveler, Sylvia Lane, who should have stood in her shoes in the prisoner's dock, but was too much of a coward to confess to the petty thefts that had been tacked so conveniently on to Nancy?

No doubt Sylvia was all right. She was the sort of person who would always get other people to protect her. Even Nancy, herself, had protected Sylvia.

But never again! Those four lost years. There was a lump in Nancy's throat and she felt quite indignant with that sentimental girl who had been herself at 18. At that time it seemed the only thing to do—to take the blame for Sylvia's wrong-doing onto her own shoulders. Sylvia was a little younger than she and had yielded to a momentary temptation. Sylvia would have killed herself rather than stand in that dock and face those humiliating charges. Or so she had said. Nancy was now quite certain that Sylvia Lane would have done nothing of the sort.

"Need you tell him now?"

The moment that Nancy crossed the threshold of the solicitor's office she knew that her feeling about the voice on the telephone was correct. Even the office boy eyed her askance with a morbid interest in his half averted gaze.

In his opinion she was a young woman who had "done time," and he was fearfully and horribly fascinated by her.

Mr. Sam Digger, the junior member of the firm, was no less fascinated, but it was Nancy's beauty that dazzled him. He was inclined to ogle her and as soon as he got her into his private office he offered her a cigaret and a whisky and soda.

Nancy refused both and a little curtly asked him to come to business.

So Mr. Digger came to business, beginning by detailing the events which had led up to her being consigned to the reformatory. He said he had to identify her and needed her corroboration of that unpleasant data.

Nancy told him what he wanted to know; indeed, what he already knew.

In the house of a certain Mrs. Lane, where she had been employed as a governess-companion, she had apparently been caught red-handed in a series of thefts from a wealthy old woman who lodged with the family, and from whom the Lanes expected to benefit, particularly the daughter, Sylvia, who was this old woman's favorite.

For some time small sums of money had been missed, but nothing was said about it, and finally the old woman—growing suspicious—had marked several notes and then sent for a detective. The marked notes were found in Nancy Aker's purse and the case against her appeared to be clear.

Even Nancy's youth was against her. She was too young and beautiful to be allowed to go her own way in the magistrate's opinion, so he committed her to the reformatory.

The sentence had staggered Nancy.

Sylvia, creeping into her bed the night before they arrested her, had wept and pleaded with her to take the blame and the disgrace.

"They can't send you to prison," Sylvia had sniveled. "I know that much, because it's a first offender's act, or something like that. When I gave you those notes to keep for me I never dreamed they'd search your things. And now Mrs. Bagge—if she finds out about me—well, we'll never see any of her money. I'll kill myself, Nancy. That's what I'll do!"

O but Nancy Akers had been a prize idiot! She knew it now; she had known it even when the magistrate gave that order to have her locked up for four years.

Of what avail to say to this oily, smirking Mr. Digger: "Yes, that's all true and I am the Nancy Akers cited in that case—but I was innocent."

He wouldn't believe her. Nobody in their sober senses would ever credit such a tale of stupid heroism.

What for? Nancy had asked herself that question often. It wasn't because she had liked Sylvia. It must have been because in the arrogance and pride of her own youth she had despised the girl for her cowardice.

In effect Sylvia had said: "It won't matter to you—you are a nobody—but I shall be ruined for the rest of my life if I have to face this charge."

"You must have made a great impression on Miss Satchell," said the oily Mr. Digger. "She has left you £5,000."

It seemed to Nancy that she could scarcely believe her ears. Surely it wasn't possible.

When the letter came that morning she had thought less of the legacy than of the fact that Miss Satchell was dead. On the way to Gray's Inn she had speculated vaguely as to what the sum might be. Perhaps £50, or even £100. But £5,000 was a fortune.

"O dear!" she exclaimed, faintly.

"You are to be congratulated," smirked Mr. Digger.

"I'm rather frightened," said Nancy. "I don't know what on earth to do"

"But my dear young lady, I can't for the life of me see why."

"Because——" Nancy hesitated, then went on bravely, "because my husband doesn't know I was sent to the reformatory. I have never told him."

Mr. Digger's bushy eyebrows went up.

"Awkward," he murmured. "But still—need you tell him now?"

"About all that money? It would be difficult not to. I must think it over, Mr. Digger. What do you want me to do now?"

"We would like you to accept and sign for your legacy, if you will be so kind. Miss Satchell was a very wealthy woman and the bulk of her money was left to the Chiswick home which she founded herself, and practically maintained. What legacies she devised were ordered to be paid at once. Therefore we would like to give you our check and clear that matter off."

Mr. Digger opened a drawer of his desk and produced the check; also a legal paper for Nancy to sign.

She felt completely dazed. Never before had she seen a check of that size, let alone dreamed of being the owner of it.

Through it all she was conscious of deep humiliation. To these people—even to the office boy—she was an ex-criminal.

"Miss Satchell must have been very fond of you," murmured Mr. Digger. Tears filled Nancy's eyes and she brushed them away hastily.

"She was; she believed in me. I mean to say, she believed I was innocent."

"Poor child!" said Mr. Digger, with conventional sympathy. "Did you—er—keep up your friendship with Miss Satchell—er—afterwards?"

"No, I never saw her after I left the reformatory. It was by her wish. She made me promise to try to forget I'd ever been there."

"No doubt it was wise advice," the solicitor said.

Both shows are expected to attract an interesting attendance. Exhibiting at Northbrook will be Mrs. Gordon P. Kelley, whose name is on the entry list of owners for all of the important dog shows; Dr. and Mrs. Noel S. Young of Lake Forest; the Orrin H. Bakers, and Harold Florsheim. Mr. Florsheim has given a number of special trophies to be awarded in the Airedale classes.

BY MARY MEADE.

Maybe you're as familiar with the origin of the term "mayonnaise" as you are with the date of Independence day. However, our own passion for knowing about the beginnings of food mixtures and combinations leads us to risk boring you with a review of that dramatic naming.

At any rate, here's the story as we know it: In 1791 the French ousted the British at the tiny island of Minorsa, which boasted a tiny city by the name of Mahon. In celebration of the event, the Duc de Richelieu gave a great banquet. His chef, evidently a clever fellow, presented him with a new sauce on that occasion, and christened it "mahonnaise" to fit the occasion.

Later this same sauce became known merely as mayonnaise. Now, in its hundreds of forms and fancies, it graces the salads of the world.

Well, to get back to more practical ideas, it seems that new and interesting variations of mayonnaise are among the chief summer pastimes of the kitchen. For that reason, we've been adding to our collection lately, and picked these to submit for your approbation.

Tomato Mayonnaise.

1 cup concentrated tomato soup
1 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Fold the soup and Worcestershire sauce into the mayonnaise and blend well. Serve on vegetable or meat salads.

Peach Juice Mayonnaise.

1-3 cup mayonnaise
1-3 cup heavy cream
Few grains salt
2 tablespoons peach juice
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Few grains salt

Fold the mayonnaise into the stiffly beaten cream. Add the salt and fruit juices, blend well, and serve with a well chilled fruit plate.

Lemon Cream Mayonnaise.

1-3 cup mayonnaise
2½ tablespoons confectioner's sugar
Few grains salt
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
1-3 cup heavy cream

Fold mayonnaise, sugar, salt, and lemon juice into stiffly beaten cream. Serve on fruit or seafood salads.

Ravigote Mayonnaise.

1 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons cooked spinach
1 tablespoon capers
3 anchovies
1-3 cup chopped parsley
¼ cup chopped watercress

Purée the spinach, chopped capers, and anchovies, and fold into mayonnaise with chopped parsley and cress.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

A PLEA FOR HELP.

I consider it remarkable that each exponent of a system appears to claim that his method covers all contingencies of contract. It may be that I have erred in standing up for a system that may at times—I freely admit—send me down 800 points. I do not like to lose any more than you do. Perhaps I should get on the band wagon and join the throng of happy warriors to whom sets are something associated with dishes and the term "wrong contract" evokes a puzzled "Huh?"

There have been like claims in the past—Utopian systems for tennis, golf, and designs for living—but each perfect plan has had to bow to the human element. Bridge is such a jigsaw puzzle that the best any of us can hope to do is to lay out signposts along the road to better contract. Where the pupil admits that he has gone against the system, the expert may still crow proudly and flap his wings, but what of the hundred and one occasions when the system must be twisted cunningly to fit a certain exception, when its originator must confess, "Yes, I did not recommend that at the time, but I see that drastic measures must be taken in this spot."

One recurrent situation that I make bold to say no system covers is how to reach three no-trumps with a void in your partner's suit. All experts insist that a jump no-trump response indicates a fit in the original bidder's suit; and, therefore, the partners too often and too blithely go on to four hearts or four spades, leaving you to push on to five clubs or five diamonds. Most players avoid an immediate no-trump bid, hoping thus to lull their partners into an abandonment of the pariah suit. I, for one, would be extremely wary if my partner bid one club, three clubs, then three no-trumps; but let us take Homer Q. Jones, who has dutifully bid one spade, then three spades, with nothing in his hand but seven spades to the jack, ten. The ultimate three no-trump bid merely means to Jonesy that he may be able to eke out four spades. He will tell any one who will listen that it is clearly evident that his hand is no good for anything but spades—a much overused and overrated alibi. His partner, who had been blessed or cursed with seven solid clubs and two outside aces, can't quite see it that way. According to his figuring he had nine tricks cold and he demands why he wasn't allowed to play the hand at a no-trump game.

We may sympathize with both partners in a situation such as I have just described, but only the other day I saw a South struggling to reach three no-trumps on this hand:

♠ A-Q-J-10-9
♥ 10-9-6
♦ 4-3
♣ J-8-6

♠ None
♥ Q-J-3
♦ A-9-8
♣ A-K-Q-9-7-5-4

South bid a club and North a spade. Torn between two and three clubs, South finally bid two. North bid two spades. Not daring to take any further risk, South desperately bid three no-trumps. It was ridiculous, stupid, unwaranted, and suicidal for North to go on to four spades, but go on he did. And the resulting five-club contract was set one trick.

Something should be done about this!

Gold Diggers Not All Among Feminine Sex

BY DORIS BLAKE.

You can't say that all the golden marriage opportunities are of the sex sometimes called the "digger" sex.

But for sheer brazenness of matrimonial ambition, we present exhibit A, extracted from a recent morning's mail.

"As you know, Miss Blake," writes our modern male prospector, "there are any number of nice girls who have been passed up. Often they come from high class families, well to do, and sometimes they have a nice business of their own or, perhaps, their parents own a good substantial business.

"I would marry a girl if she had a pleasing personality. Beauty is not essential, but I would want her at least pleasing in appearance. I am looking for a girl of means, of course, or a girl with a good business. If I could marry a woman of this sort, then I could go in business for myself.

"I would consider a widow. I am not looking for fame and great fortune. But I would like to be sure of an income of at least $100 a week or more. You might say to me, 'Why not try working for it?' But I am sensible. Therefore I look years ahead. Why kill myself, I argue, when there are plenty of girls and young widows around who have everything they want but a husband? If I can put myself in the way of marrying a woman of means, why shouldn't I?

"I dare say that the majority of young men today is bolshevistic at heart, looking for fame and fortune. I am only looking for a wife with means. Yet, but in return I am willing to give love, affection, a personality, good looks, and a presentable escort, and I will make sure that she has everything she wants, too.

"JOHN R."

You're too good hearted, John, giving the woman everything she wants on her money. Such magnanimity is entirely too much for us.

Going—Going—Last call.

No bid, John! We fear you'll have to go to work.

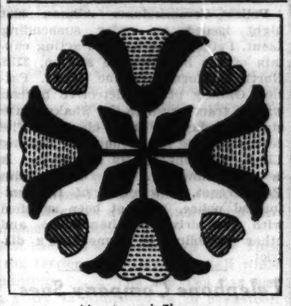
Charming Quilt Victorian in Its Mood and Design



Hearts and Flowers

BY NANCY CABOT.

Quite definitly Victorian is the quaint, old fashioned applique block, "Hearts and Flowers." The quilt first was made in 1888, shortly before the close of a most colorful era in history. Many people who loudly proclaimed all Victorian pieces to be monstrosities show how wrong they were, since this lovely applique block is just one small example of the beauty found during that period. Twenty-four 12 inch applique blocks are set together with 18 plain ones. A diagram, accompanying the quilt pattern, clearly illustrates the beauty of the completed quilt.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Charm Must Be Taught Girls in Childhood

Mothers Should Instruct Small Daughters.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We've been talking, the last couple of days, about beginning early to make an attractive grown girl of your now small daughter. We've talked about instilling habits of grooming until these become second nature. But there's another little item. Not little, but an important, most important item.

To illustrate, there's a girl about 12, and a pretty little miss she'd be if she'd learned a little more about charm. But the poor youngster's mama simply hasn't a particle of it herself, and when the child speaks her unmannerly "WHAT" in a shrill, undisciplined voice, she sends a bit of a shudder through one. She has in her voice that same ugly shrill and scolding quality that her mother has used on her for years. That's one little thing. If one were to ask said youngster to pass the book one the table she'd throw it. I've seen her do it, in fact. She sits, as does her mother, with her knees spread wide apart. Her manners, generally, are atrocious. She breaks in on conversations rudely. She's what is termed a pest.

It's conceded that girls who do not learn the simple social emenities at home never quite "come off" with the expected graces when they're grown. Their observations have not been trained. No matter what advantages they may have in contacts later, they betray their home training at one time or another. There are women whose work earns them a certain social recognition, who commit at table, say, pretty appalling errors. "But how can she?" an observer queries. "Wouldn't you think she'd observe other people?" She doesn't absorb the proper thing to do from other people because, in her youth, she was not made aware of what is right and what not right to do.

There are exceptions, true, of young women recognizing this lack in their lives, setting about to remedy it with an intensive study of the correct thing. More often, however, the girl goes on making her errors and destroying a great deal of her charm, for gracious manners constitute a great deal of a woman's charm.

Now, the appeal is to mothers to brush up on etiquet and those social graces that are so pleasing in a person, in order that said mothers may set the example and direct their children in this department of charm. You have available all manner of free literature on the subject offered by magazines and newspaper etiquet editors.

There are books on etiquet that may be obtained at the libraries if one can't afford to buy one from bookshops. The information is available, but, as said, it will not do the children much good unless the parents are familiar with the principles of charming behavior and practice them around said children.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Ask Radio for Patient.

Has any reader a radio for a young girl who is ill and alone in a strange city? Miss X. has no relatives or friends in this locality and has been ill and in a Chicago hospital for many months. She is now convalescent, but will be confined to bed for some time, and is very lonely. A small radio will mean a great deal to her. The request was made by a medical case worker who will be glad to call for it if one is available. The hospital uses alternating current.

Parent Should Not "Always" Keep His Word

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"If I say I'm going to punish my child I do it."

"If I say 'no' to the children I mean 'NO.' I always stick to it."

"I never take back a thing I say—I always keep my word."

Do you? I hope so.

That is, I hope so, except——

"Except what?"

Except for the "always" and the "never" in your statements.

Do you always stick to your "no"? Do you always carry out your threats? Don't you ever take back a thing you've said to the children?

But suppose you've "promised" a punishment, in anger, that you know is unfair? Suppose you've gotten the "no" habit and have hastily refused something that you might just as well have permitted? Suppose you've made a fuss over something that your child knows is uncalled for? Wouldn't you reverse yourself?

I hope you would. For there's one thing that's more important than sticking to your word—and that is, keeping up your child's faith in your sense of justice. Children have a passionate feeling on that subject. Have you ever heard a child say in intense tones, "It's not fair!"

Your child should be able to bank on your fairness. You lose nothing by reversing yourself. You lose nothing by admitting you have made a mistake. In fact, if you're usually a woman of your word and not a futile parent like the ones we were talking about yesterday you will gain in the love and respect of your child if occasionally you "take back" something you've said or if you apologize.

"On second thought, Mary, I don't see why you shouldn't wear the new dress," or "You shouldn't have broken my lamp, Henry, but I'm not going to use your allowance for a new one. I was a little angry when I said I would because I'm so fond of my lamp." Such admissions will not lower you in your child's eyes nor lessen your influence over them.

Be fair in spirit as well as in words with your child.

Try This New Way of Correcting Iodine Starved Glands If You Want To Add

5 EXTRA LBS. THIS WEEK!

Skinny Men and Women Everywhere Amazed At Results!

That's science's newest answer to skinny, rundown folks . . . scrawny men and women who can't seem to add an ounce no matter what they eat nor how good their appetite is. Already thousands of these so-called "naturally skinny" folks have been amazed and delighted with the ease with which they have added 5 to 8 lbs. in a single week, 15 to 20 lbs. of good solid flesh in 1 short month is not at all uncommon. And, best of all—more important than their new good looks and alluring curves—they feel like a million dollars! Here's the reason:

After years of scientific experimenting, experts have found that one of the greatest causes of skinniness is IODINE STARVED GLANDS. When these are corrected, weight seems to go on like magic. Kelpamalt, the new mineral-iodine concentrate from the sea—and perhaps the world's richest source of NATURAL PLANT IODINE, quickly gets right down to this common cause of skinniness and corrects it. It works "2 ways in 1."

First, its rich supply of easily assimilable minerals stimulates the digestive glands which produce the juices that alone enable you to digest fats and starches, the weight-making elements in your daily diet. And these minerals are needed by virtually every organ and for every function of the body. Second, Kelpamalt is rich in NATURAL IODINE—a mineral needed by the vital organ which regulates metabolism—the process through which the body is constantly building firm, solid flesh, new strength and energy. 6 Kelpamalt tablets contain more NATURAL IODINE than 486 lbs. of spinach or 1600 lbs. of beef. More iron and copper than 2 lbs. of spinach or 15 lbs. of fresh tomatoes. More calcium than 1 doz. eggs. More phosphorus than 5 lbs. of carrots.

Try Kelpamalt for a single week and notice the difference—how much better you feel. If you don't gain at least 5 lbs. of good, firm flesh in 1 week the total is free. Kelpamalt costs but little at all

Comparison of Minerals in KELPAMALT vs. VEGETABLES
3 Kelpamalt Tablets Contain:
1. More Iron and Copper than 1 lb. of spinach, 7½ lbs. fresh tomatoes, 2 lbs. of asparagus.
2. More Calcium than 1 lb. of cabbage.
3. More Phosphorus than 1½ lbs. of carrots.
4. More Sulphur than 2 lbs. of tomatoes.
5. More Sodium than 3 lbs. of lumina.
6. More Potassium than 6 lbs. of beans.
7. More Magnesium than 1 lb. of celery.

CHICAGO REGION TO SEND 150 ON THE NORMANDIE

Late Season Travel Rush Continues.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

More than 150 late summer vacationists from Chicago and the middle west will sail on the Normandie today for Europe. Another large group will leave today on the Washington, while still others plan to leave later in the week on the Aquitania, the Europa, and the Rex. Thus the phenomenal travel movement of June and July is being extended into August. In other seasons it has usually subsided by the middle of July.

Passengers on the Normandie will include Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and their sons, Charles, Brooks, and Roger; Mr. and Mrs. George Woodruff, Mrs. J. M. Hopkins and her daughter, Kay Goodman; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Byron Smith, P. N. Engel and his daughter, Dorothy; Charles Stern, and Dr. and Mrs. Vernon Herbst. L. B. Manning, another of the passengers, is going over to join his family, already in Europe, for a motor tour of the continent.

School Board Head to Sail.

James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, with Mrs. McCahey and their daughters, Clare and Anita, will visit England, Scotland, and Ireland. They will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Kopmeier and their children, Rosemary and Norman, of Milwaukee. Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Goodwin and the latter's brother, A. P. Morey, will avoid the boat crossing of the English channel by flying from London to Cologne. Mrs. J. B. Creevy is taking her daughters, Ruth Marie and Marjorie, and Mrs. John E. Dwyer is taking her son, John E. Dwyer Jr., for a motor trip through the French chateau country, Switzerland, and rural England. Mrs. J. M. Sarther will travel with them.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Goodrich prefer to do one country each summer. They have already visited England, France, and Italy, and this season they will devote their time to Germany. Among their fellow passengers on the Washington will be Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hyman, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hoppenheimer, Mrs. Agnes B. Rice, Mrs. I. M. Cody, Mrs. C. D. Franks and her son Jack; Mrs. Martha Pursley, Dagney Carseth, Mary Winston, Blanche Kaminer, and Dr. E. L. Hayford.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Cattell plan to board the Aquitania Friday for the Eisteddfod, the Welsh music festival held each summer at Caernarvon. Before attending the festival they will visit England and Mr. Cattell's ancestral home in the Scottish Highlands. Also on the Aquitania will be Mrs. Bertha Bergman, president of the Hadassah society. She will attend the Zionists' convention in Lucerne.

Tour England in Auto.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Higgins are taking their car with them on the Antonia Friday for a two months' tour of England and Scotland. They will pay particular attention to County Kent, Mr. Higgins' boyhood home.

Before making a tour of the continent Mrs. Clara Gilliland Smith will attend the Disciples of Christ world convention at Leicester, England. She sailed on the Britannic Monday with her granddaughter, Caroline Brammer.

Geneva, Vienna, Paris, and London are on the itinerary of Harry Smitz, master in chancery in the Superior court. He left on the Conte di Savoia with his sister, Mrs. Hettie Cowan, and his cousin, Mrs. Carrie Newberger. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Riggs left on the Berenegaria. Mrs. Blanche L. La Du, chairman of the Minnesota state board of prison control, embarked on the President Harding for the international prison convention in Berlin. H. P. Crane of Chicago was on the same liner. Miss Margaret Cornall, Miss Hildegard Thadewald, F. G. Whethan, and S. W. Carr were aboard the City of Baltimore when it sailed for European ports.

On the Champlain, bound for Plymouth and Havre, were H. S. Vance and family of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. George L. O'Brien of South Bend, and R. H. Waser of Wood River, Ill.

Five Hundred on Bermuda Cruise.

Among the 500 holiday makers on the Transylvania when it started on a cruise to the Canadian north capes and Bermuda were Judge and Mrs. Martin M. Gridley, Mrs. Elizabeth Reith, and F. C. Cunningham. At the formal opening of the Castle Harbour hotel in Bermuda for the summer season were Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Morris, Mrs. J. C. Haberkorn, Miss Jane Haberkorn, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Hendell, Mrs. Theodore Dickerdorf, Mrs. M. A. Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. Alan J. Hanley, Miss Marguerite Hamer, Miss Eilen McKenna, Miss Lucille Waters, and Mr. and Mrs. K. G. Peterson.

A number of Chicagoans will be on board the Europa when it completes the first lap of its 100th trans-Atlantic round trip. It is due in New York tomorrow and due to start on the last lap at midnight Friday. The Europa made its first appearance in New York harbor March 25, 1930, after having set a new speed mark for the North Atlantic crossing. Since then it has traveled 750,000 miles at sea, or the equivalent of more than 35 times around the world.

BRITISH HOUSE VOTES SELF-RULE BILL FOR INDIA

LONDON, July 30.—(AP)—Great Britain's new deal for India was approved by parliament today. The parliamentary action was completed with the house of commons agreeing to more than 300 amendments made by the house of lords.

A federation of Indian states, now under direct control, will now have self-government. Eleven British provinces will be linked with the states that join the federation. The present post of viceroy will become governor general and the incumbent charged with helping to advance home rule. The self-governing units will have their own autonomous legislatures.

The British government reserved the right to step into the scif-controled federal states only when peace is threatened. The federal legislature will have power over currency and tarifs. The British government continues to have direct responsibility in the questions of defense and foreign relations.

WOMAN'S DEATH IN AUTO PLUNGE CALLED ACCIDENT

Alan Myers, chief investigator for the Du Page county state's attorney, said last night he believed the death on Monday of Mrs. Gladys Sweeney, 32 years old, 1433 North State parkway, a divorcée, was an accident as related by her escort, Glenn Farrell, 41 years old, 7047 Calumet avenue. An inquest into Mrs. Sweeney's death was set for Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Villa Park.

Myers questioned Farrell again last night and verified his statements from other witnesses. Farrell said that Mrs. Sweeney, after what appeared to be an inconsequential spat over plans for the evening, suddenly pulled open the car door and either fell to the pavement on Roosevelt road near the Salt creek bridge.

He took her to the home of friends in Villa Park. When she failed to regain consciousness a doctor was called and she was taken to the Elmhurst hospital, where she died.

Washington, D. C., July 30.—[Special.]—New York City's claim for $764,143.75 reimbursement in connection with sixty-six regiments the city raised, equipped and furnished in the early days of the civil war was approved by the senate yesterday without a record vote and sent to the house for consideration. The action was on the Copeland bill.

Only a few days ago, the senate inserted in the second deficiency bill such a claim for Baltimore for $171,034, and one of California for $6,462,145.

LT. TOMECHECK IS SUSPENDED FROM POLICE COMMAND

Police Commissioner Allman last night issued an order suspending Lieut. Peter Tomecheck as acting captain of the Shakespeare station, 2138 North California avenue. Capt. Patrick Gallery of the detective bureau will be transferred to the Shakespeare station today to take charge. The reason for the telephone order ousting Lieut. Tomecheck was not given. It is said, however, that Capt. John Prendergast, new chief of the uniformed police, has not been satisfied with the drive on handbooks and other gambling in Tomecheck's district.

REVOLTS MENACE ARMY'S FASCIST RULE IN PORTUGAL

Dictator Clique Acts to Stamp Out Opposition.

This is the last of a series of articles on conditions in Spain and Portugal by Mr. Darrah, who recently made a survey of those countries.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LISBON, Portugal. — [By Mail.] — The growing frequency of attempts at revolt both by dissatisfied officers and by radical elements is wrinkling the brow of the dictatorship which has been ruling Portugal for the last nine years.

There is a distinct feeling of uneasiness among those who are in power as manifested by the rigorousness with which disorders are put down and the thoroughness with which the police ferret out discontent with the Portuguese model of fascist corporativism.

During recent weeks there have been two more or less serious attempts at revolt against the fascist and dictatorial government of President Carmona and Prime Minister Salazar.

First a Naval Revolt.

The first had its origin in dissatisfaction among naval officers. It was a well organized plot to change the régime which failed because the police got wind of it in time. As a result two former prime minsters, Cunha Leal and Domingo Persira, were expelled to Spain and numerous arrests were made.

On the heels of this came another attempted uprising caused by indignation in opposition circles when the government dismissed 33 officials for the sole reason that it considered them inimical to its ideas. Among them were Gen. Norton do Mattos, and Nuno Simoens. To suppress the disorders the government occupied Lisbon with troops and turned the guns of the ships in the harbor toward the city.

No Successful Revolt Since '26.

The army dictatorship, however, has managed to suppress every attempted uprising and there have been no successful revolutions in Portugal since May, 1926, when Gen. Gomes da Costa, one of the commanders of the Portuguese expeditionary force in France, seized the government, forced the elected president, Dr. Bernardino Luiz Machado Guimaraes, to resign, and set up a dictatorship of the army and navy which still exists.

A cabinet without party lines was named and Gen. Antonio Carmona was placed in charge of it. For two years Carmona was both head of the state and prime minister, deriving his power from the military leaders who controled Portugal. Then in 1928 Carmona got himself elected president for seven years and the cabinet was entrusted to others. He was reëlected again in March of this year for another seven years with no opposition candidate.

Carmona, with the army back of him, is able to rule all Portuguese affairs. His powers have recently been constitutionalized in a new document which was voted on and "adopted" by the people in the usual kind of an election held in dictatorial countries.

A Co-Dictator.

Another figure, however, has now emerged in Lisbon who in a measure shares the prestige and authority of Carmona. He is Dr. Oliveira Salazar, the prime minister and finance minister, a professor of the University of Coimbra, who has developed such a following of his own because of his efficiency as an administrator that he remains in power not only because of the approval of President Carmona and the military caste but also because of his own prestige.

Salazar is the active master of Portugal today. A silent, quiet man who, contrary to Dictator Mussolini, hates ostentation and show, he is hardly known to Lisbon, for only on rare occasions does he make a public appearance.

Salazar became finance minister in the Freitas cabinet in 1928. Salazar reformed Portugal's finances and balanced the budget, and for the last six years the budget of Portugal has shown a surplus.

Emulate Italian Fascists.

Salazar and the dictatorship speak of their government as the "new state" and lay emphasis on the fact that their aim is to renovate Portuguese political and social life. They have proceeded along about the same lines as the fascists in Italy and have adopted much of Mussolini's paraphernalia.

All the parties in Portugal — and there were about seven or eight the last time voting was free in 1925—are now declared illegal and are abolished. Salazar has his own unique party called the National union. It is totalitarian and corresponds to the Fascist party in Italy, or the Fatherland Front in Austria.

The new constitution promulgated a year ago sets up a national assembly organized along Fascist lines. It has also as an adjunct a corporative chamber, a purely Fascist importation.

There is of course a heavy censorship over the press and over public meetings, and public opposition to the government in Portugal is no more healthful than it is in Italy.

Claim Régime Is Gentler.

The friends of the dictatorship say, "it's a dictatorship, of course, but the hand of the dictatorship here lays less heavily on the country than it does in Italy. We have a gentler brand here."

The Salazar dictatorship has been carrying out a formidable program, even its enemies admit, but this program follows the lines of most dictatorial governments, they say. The program has consisted of:

1. Building roads and harbors and other public works.
2. Developing the Portuguese navy.
3. Improving public instruction.
4. Balancing the budget.
5. Improving the administration of the colonial empire of 8,000,000.

The dictatorship aims at reducing the individual to being the mere fraction of a group in the so-called "new state," the same as does Italian Fascism.

The state is everything. The individual is nothing. This doctrin is proclaimed everywhere in the government propaganda. It is especially emphasized in the widely circulated "Decalogue of the New Portuguese State," which constitutes a sort of ten commandments for all good members of Dr. Salazar's National Union party.

The growing frequency of revolts, even though suppressed, indicates that this doctrin is not everywhere accepted in Portugal.

NEW FAST SERVICE TO WEST

Vacationists wishing to get to the western wonderlands in a hurry may now do so overnight. One of the transcontinental air lines last week inaugurated a service whereby the traveler leaves Chicago at 8:45 p. m. and reaches a national park or a dude ranch in time for breakfast the following morning. The plane, flying at the rate of three miles a minute, enables the passenger to spend virtually all of his vacation there.

Parks to Be Served.

Among the national parks served by the new speed schedule are Rocky Mountain, with its alpine scenery, on "the roof of the continent"; Glacier, with its vast panorama of lakes and mountains; Zion, with its spectacular cliffs and rock formations; Bryce, known for its gorgeous coloring; Rainier, with its glaciers and its snow capped peak; Yosemite, notable for its forests and waterways; Crater Lake, a great inland sea more than a mile high; Lassen Volcanic, with the only living volcano in the United States; Sequoia, with the largest and oldest living trees on this continent; General Grant, with its great forest, and Yellowstone, with its geysers, its canyon, and falls, and its natural zoo of bears, elk, and bison.

The planes also serve the dude ranch country of Wyoming, Montana, and Colorado, and provide quick trips to Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and San Diego.

Yellowstone, the oldest and largest of the national parks, is perhaps the world's greatest aggregation of nature's freaks.

Circle Tour of Region.

On the aerial trip to this park the traveler lands at the west Yellowstone entrance at 7:30 a. m. and is picked up there for the 45 minute trip by motor to Old Faithful inn. He may, if he wishes, then take a 3½ day circle tour of the park, including stopovers at all the principal points. Or he may extend his sightseeing by going on a side trip to Grand Teton, the newest of the national playgrounds, and one of the most beautiful. It lies directly to the south of Yellowstone and is reached by motor bus.

The all-expense cost of a Yellowstone park tour from Chicago is $214.50 if the hotels are used, or $207.50 if the tourist prefers the lodges. This includes the round trip air fare, the 3½ day circle trip, and the hotel or lodge accommodations.

For the name of the air line operating these trips or any further information concerning them call the Tribune Travel bureau, Superior 0100, local 707 or 734, or write the bureau at 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

COUGHLIN AGAIN MAY BE ISSUE IN SUIT FOR FIELD

Indications appeared yesterday that Father Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, may again be the issue in efforts to assure him the use of Soldiers' field for a public meeting.

Edward N. Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, revealed that his organization is considering the filing of a mandamus suit to compel the Chicago park board to grant them a permit for their Labor Day observance, planned for Sept. 2.

The board previously allocated the date for the labor federation, but signing of the contract has been held up by Robert J. Dunham, president of the board, until he obtains a list of the speakers for the day. It was stated two weeks ago that Father Coughlin would be the principal speaker, but Mr. Nockels informed the board that no speakers had yet been chosen.

Mr. Nockels said the question of resorting to court proceedings would be taken up Friday at a meeting of the Labor Day committee. Last week Father Coughlin won a court order granting him the use of the field for his National Union of Social Justice. The board has appealed the order.

30,000 TO SEE C. Y. O.—NEW YORK BOUTS TONIGHT

24 CONTESTS IN WRIGLEY FIELD AMATEUR SHOW

Tunney, Braddock to Referee.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago against New York. This combination never fails to attract a crowd in the sports world, and tonight, on the same field where Chicago's Cubs recently spanked New York's Giants, sixteen amateur boxers of the Catholic Youth Organization face their New York foes of the Catholic Boys' clubs. The first three round match in the flyweight class will start immediately after the opening ceremonies at 8:30 o'clock.

Each team boasts of veteran boxers, boys who have won A. A. U. sectional honors and Golden Gloves titles. But each team also must depend on several youngsters, to whom the fanfare of intercity rivalry before 30,000 is a new and thrilling experience. On their performances, as well as the boxing of the veterans, the decision rests.

C. Y. O. Record Perfect.

Chicago's Catholic boys will have this inspiration. No Chicago amateur boxing team ever has lost to New York in Chicago. In eight years of intercity Golden Gloves boxing Chicago has won four tournaments at the Chicago Stadium and tied, eight bouts to eight, in the 1928 inaugural tournament at the Coliseum. New York's three victories were scored in Madison Square Garden.

The C. Y. O. boys, in their intercity competition against Catholic Boys' clubs of Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, and the Canal Zone, never have been beaten, so tonight the C. Y. O. not only will protect its own splendid record, but hopes to add further to the prestige of the city.

Four buglers will call the crowd to attention tonight. Then John Panegasser, operatic star, will sing the national anthem as an American flag is unfurled. Presentation of the boxers will follow. The New York team will parade to the ring escorted by Sea Scouts as the band plays the "Sidewalks of New York." From the opposite side the Chicago boys, escorted by Eagle Scouts will march to the ring to the tune of "Chicago."

Braddock, Tunney to Referee.

Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, director of the Catholic Youth organization, will give the pledge of sportsmanship to the competitors.

Many of the champions and former champions of professional boxing will attend tonight, as well as civic and professional leaders of Chicago and New York. Heading the list of boxers is Gene Tunney, retired undefeated

MICHIGAN PUSHES BACHMAN BOOM IN COACHES POLL

BY ARCH WARD.

This is the day Michigan goes over the top in the drive to elect Charles Bachman head coach of the College All-American football team.

Gov. Frank Fitzgerald and the state's most widely celebrated athlete, Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Tigers, will go on the air tonight in a state-wide radio hookup with an appeal to the football fans of Michigan to support Bachman.

The broadcast, scheduled for 8:35 eastern standard time, will originate in the studios of WJR, Detroit, but will be carried on the state chain by ten other stations. Telegrams will be read from Harry Kipke, head coach at the University of Michigan, and Charles Dorais, head coach at the University of Detroit, indorsing the candidacy of the Michigan State gridiron leader.

Bachman Shows Gain.

Bachman's campaign has gathered more momentum in the last 24 hours than any other coach in the field. Twenty-five thousand votes were received from Detroit yesterday, all backing him as head coach of the players who will meet the Bears at Soldiers' field the night of Aug. 29. Today's standings do not include yesterday's vote, because the ballots have been coming in so fast from all over the United States that it has been impossible to keep up with returns.

Edward [Slip] Madigan of St. Mary's college, California, leads the field this morning. He owes his position to the splendid support he is receiving from friends in California and from his old neighborhood in downstate Illinois. The towns of Ottawa, La Salle, Streator, Joliet, and Morris have made him an overwhelming favorite.

The San Francisco Chronicle, which is conducting the poll in the Bay district, reports that a dozen organizations are working for Madigan and that his final vote will be surprising. Tiny Thornhill of Stanford is the only other coach getting a tumble from San Francisco fans, although a drive for Jimmy Phelan of Washington is said to be in the offing.

Poll Passes 1,400,000 Mark.

More than 1,400,000 already have cast ballots for coaches. The poll has broken every known record for sports contests. Judging from the tremendous vote coming in daily, the final figure will approximate 2,500,000.

Milwaukee alumni of the University of Wisconsin are rallying around Dr. C. W. Spears and they expect to have at least 50,000 votes for him out of Milwaukee before the poll closes at midnight Sunday. He got 4,633 in Madison yesterday.

Cleveland, O., where the Plain Dealer is handling the poll, is almost solid for Francis Schmidt of Ohio

SOX SCORE FOUR IN SIXTH; BEAT INDIANS, 8 TO 6

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Mainly because Vernon G. Washington, understudy for the ailing Al Simmons, entertained with his fifth homer of the season, the third place White Sox marked their homecoming yesterday with a triumph over Cleveland's Indians. Washington tuned in with his heroic smack while a mate was on base during a boisterous rally in the sixth and the two runs provided by the shot for distance proved the deciding margin. The score was 8 to 6, lifting the gay south siders to a distance only three and a half games behind the leading Tigers and one game behind the second place Yankees.

The show started off as if it were going to be just a warmup for Vernon Kennedy. His mates, benefitting from Monte Pearson's wildness, slipped him a 3 to 0 lead, but the youngster encountered difficulties in the fourth and four runs scored. That was tied up without loss of time and then the Sox, with Tony Piet, Zeke Bonura, Luke Appling, and Mervyn Shea assisting Washington, hammered their way to four runs in the sixth. That was enough to make a homer by Hal Trosky, with one on in the eighth, of no value to the visitors.

Substitutes Show Value.

Washington wasn't the only understudy who contributed to killing off any pregame grief there might have been over the absence of three regulars. Shea, acting in Sewell's place, blew himself to nothing less than three singles and a pass. The pass blossomed into the first Sox run in the second inning. His first single drove in two in the third. His next single nudged the tying run across the plate in the fifth. And his third single sent in the fourth and last run of the decisive splurge against Pearson in the sixth. The third understudy, Marty Hopkins for Manager Dykes, had to be satisfied with one pass.

Except for the two innings in which the Indians scored, Kennedy was practically invincible. Four of the hits off him appeared in the fourth, a couple of them bloopers, and two were notched in the eighth. In the seven other innings there were only four hits and one pass, but none of these five items were threatening. It was Kennedy's seventh victory against three defeats and the Sox fifth victory in 12 games with the Indians, who are the only outfit in the league with a season's edge over Dykes' entry.

Sox Fill Bases.

The Sox were face to face with a swell opportunity as early as the first inning, but the needed pinch hit wasn't forthcoming. Radcliff opened with a pass and was forced by Piet. Haas bounced to Pearson and a double play looked possible but the enemy pitcher threw the ball into center

GAIN HALF GAME ON GIANTS; LEE RESCUES FRENCH

Ten Straight for Chicagoans.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 30.—The Cubs, tuned up by a public pre-game fight between two members of their own cast, Bill Jurges and Wally Stephenson, this afternoon carried the belligerancy motif into their ball game with the Pittsburgh Pirates. They outfought the Pirates after a bad first inning to win their tenth straight victory. The score was 9 to 6 and it was the Cubs' 23d triumph in 26 starts since they launched their pennant drive here on July 6.

The outcome today, the ninth Cub verdict in a dozen games with the Pirates, enabled the Cubs to gain a half game on the leading New York Giants, who split a double-header with the Phillies.

The Chicagoans as a consequence again are one game back of the New Yorkers, having regained the margin they lost Sunday while the Giants were winning two games in Brooklyn and the Cubs only one in Chicago.

Lee Rescues French.

The Pirates went into today's game with a record of 12 victories in 13 starts, including a nine game winning streak, and seemed pretty eager to do big things. Two Cub runs in the first half of the first inning didn't cool this early Pirate ardor one whit, as attested by the ruthless manner in which they pounced on their former associate, Larry French. Larry didn't last for a single putout and the Pirates probably would have made 30 or 40 runs if Vice President Grimm hadn't had another pitcher ready.

The ready gent was Bill Lee, and while Bill allowed his customary late inning homer—this time Arky Vaughan knocked his No. 15 with one on in the eighth—he was a very, very fine workman as he went about the business of registering his 11th triumph of the season. Bill allowed one hit in the third inning, one in the sixth inning and two, including the aforesaid homer in the eighth.

Jim Weaver, former Cub, relieved Mace Brown in the Cubs' second inning flurry and pitched effectively in six innings, the exception being the fourth in which the Cubs acquired the winning margin on poor work by Pep Young, Pirate second baseman.

Do Larry a Favor.

The Cub batting offensive included a double and two singles by Gabby Hartnett, Bill Herman's 35th double and a single, a double and a single by

WHOM TO START IS CHIEF WORRY OF STAR COACH

They're All Good and They Will Be Ready.

[This is the last of two articles by Jimmy Crowley, football coach at Fordham, who was back field coach of the All-American team which played the Chicago Bears last August at Soldiers' field.]

BY JIMMY CROWLEY.

After two weeks' practice at Northwestern the 1934 All-Americans were in fine condition for their battle with the Chicago Bears. The boys, without exception, reported ready to start hard work. They had been an agreeable surprise. And without distractions they had put in lots of hours getting ready. The team was on edge.

The problem was choice of 11 starting players from the squad of 35. How best could I balance the back field? Mike Mikulak, of course, was outstanding choice at full back. George Sauer, Nebraska's great player, would have been invaluable, but Sauer had only recently been operated on for appendicitis. Sauer wanted to play anyway, and did get into the game near the end for a couple of minutes, but we coaches wouldn't permit him to take a chance of being injured.

I felt sorry for Sauer, one of the greatest players of 1933. He was an inspiration to the team. The boys named him co-captain along with Ed Krause of Notre Dame.

These Boys Were Wonders.

We had Beattie Feathers of Tennessee and Herman Everhardus of Michigan at left half. They were hard running ball carriers, fast, dependable, and flawless defensive men. Joe Laws, stocky, hard hitting Iowa player, a mighty difficult man to tackle, was ready. He turned in one of the finest exhibitions I ever have seen.

Homer Griffith, one of Southern California's all-time stars, and chunky Paul Pardonner of Purdue were ideal quarter backs. Griffith always had been a ball carrier for the Trojans. The quarter back, under the Notre Dame system, seldom carries the ball. It made no difference to Griffith. He wanted to serve wherever we thought he could help the most, and his handling of kicks and judgment of plays were invaluable.

Back of these men in reserve were Columbia's Cliff Montgomery, star of Columbia's Rose bowl victory on New Year's day, 1934; Nick Lukats of Notre Dame, Mike Sebastian of Pittsburgh, Carl Cramer of Ohio State, Dave Cook of Illinois, and Fred Hecker of Purdue. There was a back field worthy of any university without the players who started the game.

Lighting Is Perfect.

We practiced at Soldiers' field the night before the game. The field was as bright as daylight and the ball handling was as clean as if the practice had been held in the afternoon. There were several fumbles by both teams in the game, but these were due to nervousness and anxiety. Can you imagine this group of veteran college players and the professionals dropping the ball because of nervousness? They did. They were keyed up as if it were their first varsity contest back in their sophomore days.

Seated on the sidelines, I had the same feeling as if my Fordham team was out there on the gridiron. After two weeks' intimate association I felt it was my team and I wanted them to win.

British Davis Cup Players Sweep Series with Americans

WIMBLEDON, England, July 30.—(AP)—The American Davis cup tennis regime, which has been fighting unsuccessfully to regain the trophy annually since losing it to France in 1927, came to the end of the road again today as England's forces completed the most painful rout inflicted on a United States team in 24 years.

DON BUDGE.

England swept all five matches and brought to a magnificent finish its second straight defense against America of the trophy wrested from France two years ago. It was England's eighth cup victory since the international team competition was instituted in 1900.

Allison to Retire.

A few minutes after H. W. [Bunny] Austin and Fred J. Perry had defeated Don Budge and Wilmer Allison, respectively, Allison announced his retirement from Davis cup play. His veteran doubles partner, Johnny Van Ryn, said he felt just about the same way.

The 31 year old Texas veteran said:

"When my service goes back on me it must be time to quit."

Allison, like the youthful, red headed Budge, had played his heart out to save at least one decision out of the wreck, but with England's two aces banging the ball past them the final count couldn't have been anything but 5-0.

The 20 year old Californian, Budge, was beaten by Austin in four sets, 6-2, 6-4, 6-8, 7-5, giving the Briton revenge for the defeat administered by Budge in the quarter finals of the All-England championships. Perry finished Allison in four sets, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5, 6-3, and completed the rout.

The Americans were a discouraged lot, but were able to see one glimmer of sunlight in Budge's bright red hair.

Praises Budge's Play.

"I think he has made a great showing for his first time over and he undoubtedly is the one to build future teams around," said Harry Hillman, Dartmouth college track coach and trainer of the U. S. team. "Give him a little more speed afoot and he will be one of the world's greatest players."

Hillman already has Budge practicing sprinting starts and weaving like a halfback. His failure to move quickly enough combined with the fact he was at times erratic, cost the coast youngster any chance of beating Austin.

Perry will arrive in New York Aug. 13, preliminary to his defense of the American singles championship.

Commissioners See Louis Box; Give Him O. K.

Promoter Joe Foley and Matchmaker Mickey Farr yesterday completed all details for presentation of the ten round bout between King Levinsky and Joe Louis at Comiskey park Aug. 7 as the heavyweight rivals entered the final stages of training.

Seven supporting matches were arranged, and the system which will be used to light up the park the night of the contest has been completed at a cost of more than $5,000.

The Illinois boxing commission placed the official stamp of approval on the condition of Louis after the commissioners had watched the former Chicago Golden Gloves champion spar four and a half rounds with four partners. Joe knocked out James Scarborough, a new mate, in 1 minute 40 seconds, but he was unable to floor the others though he jarred all three with terrific left hooks and right crosses to the jaw.

Chairman Joe Triner of the commission said Louis appears in perfect condition.

"He never was in better shape," Triner declared, "but his greatest trouble is ahead of him. He must coast along from now on to keep his fine edge."

Trainer Jack Blackburn realizes the chairman is correct and he will give Louis a rest today and another Friday. Levinsky also will be given a recess Friday at his Round Lake camp.

George Brescia of Buenos Aires will box John Emery of Allentown, Pa., in the six round semi-windup. They are heavyweights. Other matches:

Tony Cancela vs. Corn Griffin [6], heavyweights.
Young Joe Gans vs. Oscar Rankin [6], middleweights.
Mickey Patrick vs. Nathan Mann [4], light heavyweights.
Max Marek vs. Russ Schultz [4], heavyweights.
Clarence Burman vs. Steve Roberts [4], light heavyweights.
Harry Nelson vs. Jim Roschal [4], heavyweights.

Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, has started light training at Trafton's gymnasium for a ten round nontitle match with Frank Klick at San Francisco, Aug. 19. . . . Harry Dublinsky, Chicago boxer, and his manager, Jack Elle, left last night for New York where Dublinsky boxes Cleto Locatelli Tuesday.

Ivan Rasputin will be in quest of his fifth consecutive triumph when he meets Turk Grimes in the windup bout of the wrestling show tonight at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. Preliminary matches:

Zack Malkov and Letty Facer.
Al Williams and Ernie Peterson.
Bobby Pearce and Joe Bauer.
Jim Heffner and Ken Fencion.

Joe Ghnouly of St. Louis and Bus Breese, Manhattan, Kas., have opened drills here for their ten round lightweight elimination contest at Marigold Gardens Monday. F. M.

Midlothian and Oak Park Retain Golf Team Leads

The West and South District Golf leagues, the Chicago districts latest intraclub groups, continued with their matches yesterday, the West's forces gathering at Brookfield, while the South district held forth at Idlewild. Midlothian in the south and Oak Park in the west retained first place, but now find themselves closely pressed in the standings by Lincolnshire and Elmhurst, respectively.

In the South District series at Idlewild Midlothian was defeated by Flossmoor, 14 to 13, and the home club triumphed by the same margin over South Shore. In the other matches Lincolnshire walked away from Calumet, 17 to 10, and Olympia Fields did likewise with Ravisloe, 18½ to 8½. Chuck Becka of Calumet led the medal scoring with a 70, two under par, followed by Harry Field of Idlewild, 72; Fred Newton of South Shore, 72; Henry Hafer of South Shore, 73; Russell Martin of Flossmoor, 74; Frank McNamara of Lincolnshire, 75, and William Bassett of Flossmoor, 75.

In the West District matches at Brookwood yesterday Oak Park scored over Medinah, 14 to 13; Elmhurst defeated Brookwood, 17 to 10; Riverside took an 18½ to 8½ decision from Westward-Ho, and Glen Oak and Hinsdale put on a 13½ to 13½ draw. Don Heppes of Oak Park turned in the best individual card, a 76, pursued by W. C. Albro of Riverside, 77; Ray Croslin and John Victor of Oak Park, both with 78s, and a batch of 79s, including Fred Wagner and Ray Anderson of Westward-Ho, Charley Smead and Dick Pentecost of Elmhurst, Louis Jacoby of Hinsdale, and Dave Adams of Medinah.

Olympia Fields, Evanston to Hold Tourneys Today

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Olympia Fields Frolic and the Evanston Rodeo, two of the best known invitational tournaments on the Chicago district golf schedule, will head a busy program on local links today. Each will be over the 36 hole route, with handsome prize lists for members and their guests being donated by each club. Olympia Fields, the world's largest golf club, will make full use of all of its four courses, the field being divided into 18 hole trips over courses Nos. 1 and 3 or 2 and 4.

In addition to the two invitational events, Illinois also will hold one of this type for women only. The Chicago Wholesale Coal Shippers association will gather at Calumet, and the Greater Chicago Bowling Alley association will hold forth at Tam o' Shanter.

Chicago district golfers who plan to seek a place in the national amateur championship tournament, to be played at the Country club of Cleveland from Sept. 9 to 14, inclusive, are reminded once more that Aug. 10 is the closing date for entries for the sectional qualifying round. The fee is $5 and should be forwarded to the United States Golf association, 110 East 42d street, New York City. The Chicago district trials will be held at the Evanston Golf club on Aug. 20. Entries will be received from amateur golfers who have a club handicap of four strokes or less and who are members of clubs in good standing in the U. S. G. A.

Twin Orchards will be host to a field of golfers tomorrow when a special guest day will be conducted by the club, with a full day of golf featuring the program.

The thirty-first annual Chicago amateur championship, oldest annual golf event in this district, will open next Monday at Jackson park and continue through the following Saturday. The event is all at match play, starting with a seeded draw. A player's flight will be determined by his club handicap, with the championship flight going from scratch to ten strokes. There will be five flights, with ten trophies. The entry fee is $2.50. Jack F. Kelly, 6223 Blackstone avenue, is chairman of the tournament committee.

Twelve places, a record number for this state, have been allotted to the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' Association of America for the qualifying rounds of the national professional championship. The twelve places also lead the country in number of places allotted. The Illinois sectional qualifying rounds will be held Sept. 8 and 9 at 36 holes of medal play at the Country club of Peoria.

Bachman Is Boomed in Coaches Poll

State. Minneapolis and St. Paul are loyal to Bernie Bierman of Minnesota. Bierman is running 3 to 1 ahead of Ossie Solem of Iowa in Minneapolis. Clark Shaughnessy of Chicago is third choice. Both Solem and Shaughnessy are former Minnesota football players.

Radio Broadcasts Appeal.

Station WOC, Davenport, Ia., broadcasts daily appeals to fans of eastern Iowa to support Elmer Layden of Notre Dame. The radio station is cooperating with the Davenport Times, which is conducting the poll. The voting was so heavy at the downtown voting booth in Davenport yesterday that traffic was held up and officials had to work overtime to take care of the hundreds who wanted to cast ballots.

Bachman of Michigan State is an overwhelming choice in the Des Moines Register poll where he is running 80 to 1 ahead of Bierman. He also is far ahead in the Kansas City Star returns. St. Louis is going down for Jimmy Conzelman of Washington university and Jack Corcoran of St. Louis university. Bierman leads the out of town candidates.

Bo McMillin has been rolling up a huge vote throughout Indiana and he is a strong favorite in Louisville. The Sphinx club of Indiana university hopes to add 100,000 votes to his total before the contest ends Sunday.

Seattle, Wash., suddenly has come to life for Jimmy Phelan of the University of Washington, although Layden is giving him a close fight. The Seattle Times predicts a heavy vote for Phelan in the remaining days of the poll.

FINE WINS IN CHESS TOURNEY; TITLE IS NEAR

Milwaukee, Wis., July 30.—(AP)—Twenty year old Reuben Fine of New York tonight virtually assured himself retention of his crown in the American Chess federation tournament.

Opposing his closest rival in the field of eleven players in the masters' section, the New Yorker drew with Arthur Dake of Portland, Ore. The victory left the champion with 7½ points and Dake with 7. Barring upsets, both should win their final matches tomorrow, with Fine taking the title on a half point margin.

WATCH OUT FOR DELIBERATOR IN RICH FUTURITY!

Everglade Colt Wins in Arlington Stake.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Another Chicagoan came up with an outstanding candidate for the $60,000 Arlington Futurity yesterday when Deliberator, champion juvenile of the winter tracks from Fred A. Burton's Everglade stable, won the Evanston purse.

When he galloped home the winner by a length and a half after leading from start to finish he immediately became one of the favorites to win Saturday's rich race. He had neared the track record when he ran the 5½ furlongs in 1:04 3-5, and among his victims were five winners of stake races. White Cockade, while Snark was a closeup fourth.

Trailing him home in order were Tom Worden's Nedrow, Ogden Phipps' White Cockade, the Wheatley stable's Snark, Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's Dinjer, Mrs. S. B. Mason's Valevictorian and the Bomar stable's Grand Slam.

He Starts in a Huff.

It was the most fashionable field of 2 years to go to the post here this season and the crowd was amazed at the great lick of early speed Deliberator demonstrated. He shoots out of the starting gate so fast he actually makes a good start look bad.

Deliberator's victory was his fifth in seven starts. He finished second in his other two efforts, both won by his stablemate, Wise Duke. This was his first start since the Aberdeen, run early in the spring in Maryland, but Trainer Sherill Ward has had him working well at Arlington for a month.

He is a good sized, well formed bay by Wise Counsellor from Asturita, by Hessian, and was bred by Mr. Burton. The Chicago sportsman also owns Wise Counsellor in partnership with John S. Ward, father of Deliberator's young trainer, they having purchased him for $65,000 from Thomas C. Bradley.

Leads from Start.

Wise Counsellor won the first international special over Epinard and is noted as sire of early 2 year old winners.

Deliberator began racing at Hialeah Park in January and won his first four starts, the last of which was the colt edition of the Nursery stakes. Then in the Hialeah juvenile championship he was barely beaten by Wise Duke after being repeatedly bumped by the latter. He set the pace in the Aberdeen, just giving away to Wise Duke in the final strides.

In his race yesterday the Wise Counsellor colt took a lead on his rivals a few yards from the start. After gaining command he was nursed along by Balaski to hold his advantage to the end, where he was a length and a half ahead of Nedrow. The latter just held on to take second from White Cockade, while Snark was at the heels of the latter.

White Cockade had some trouble in racing along on the inside, but after finding room in the stretch he finished gamely under punishment. He was moving fast at the end. Snark always was well up and held on well. Grand Slam was unprepared at the start and was well back of the field when he got into motion.

Lost Drills Today.

The Evanston was the final tuneup for Futurity candidates. Many of the others seeking the rich prize will have their last strenuous workouts for the race this morning. At about the same hour a half dozen eastern stars will pull in from Saratoga.

Coldstream, winner of the Hyde Park stakes, continued to rule as the local favorite, although there is considerable of a mystery about how he has trained since his victory in the early stake. All the clockers here confess Coldstream might have worked out several mornings before they arrived at the track, so they have no record on how fast he ran.

30,000 Will See New York C.Y.O. Bouts

heavyweight champion, and James J. Braddock, present heavyweight title holder. Tunney and Braddock will referee the last eight championship fights tonight.

Benny Leonard and Willie Ritchie, former lightweight champions; Barney Ross, welterweight champion, and Joe Louis, heavyweight contender and 1934 Golden Gloves champion, are among those who will be present. Packy McFarland, member of the Illinois athletic commission, one of the greatest of professional boxers, is in charge of the Chicago squad, while Fred Britton, another of the old time stars, is coach of the New York squad.

It is unfair, perhaps, to single out any of tonight's 16 contests for particular mention, since each is equally important in the scoring. However, four or five of the contests, because of the experience of the contestants and their ability, stand out. Chicago tonight will be interested in George Coyle, C. B. C. champion, who appeared in the Golden Gloves intercity fights last March. Coyle is one of the best of amateur flyweights and he demonstrated speed, skill, and a crushing punch when he defeated Patsy Urso, Chicagoland Golden Gloves champion. Urso was knocked down for a nine count.

Sam Zaczak, a newcomer in C. Y. O. boxing, is Coyle's opponent, and while it is difficult to predict the result of any three round fight, Zaczak certainly will be tested in his scrap with Coyle.

Lovings Meets Haynes.

The bout between Patsy Erra of New York and Johnny Brown, Chicagoland Golden Gloves bantamweight champion, is outstanding. Johnny is one of Chicago's hopes and his clever boxing has made him a great favorite. Andy Scrivani, Golden Gloves featherweight champion and an intercity victor last March, is another on whom Paddy Kane, C. Y. O. trainer, is banking tonight.

Lorenzo Lovings, who won the international lightweight championship in the tournament against Italy last May, is paired with Frankie Haynes. While not a knockerout, Lovings is a talented boxer who is expected to outpoint his New York rival.

CLARK DEFEATS CONN FOR THIRD VICTORY AS PRO

Dave Clark, 1935 Golden Gloves middleweight champion, scored his third straight professional victory by defeating Don Conn of Los Angeles in the main event of Promoter Sam Abruscato's boxing show at the Western stadium last night.

In the semi-windup Armand Sicilia won a five round decision from Sam Scoglio. Other bouts:

Scotty Scotten beat Hugh Allen [4].
Sailor Born and Phil Fernice drew [5].
Ty Smith beat Eddie Stigel [5].
Wimer Van beat Frank Schults [4].

DANNO THROWS GEORGE OUT OF RING AT BOSTON

Boston, Mass., July 30.—(AP)—Danno O'Mahoney, 22 year old Irishman, tonight gained the undisputed heavyweight wrestling championship by tossing Ed George out of the ring in one hour and 30 minutes.

Jim Braddock, heavyweight boxing champion and referee of the match, counted up to 20 and when George failed to return to the ring, awarded the victory to O'Mahoney.

After rendering his verdict, Braddock was attacked by Frank Delamano, George's chief second, but he drove him off with a right hook to the jaw, much to the amusement of the crowd of 45,000.

CATHOLIC PAPER ASKS BOYCOTT ON OLYMPICS

New York, July 30.—[Special.]—A Catholic boycott of the 1936 Olympic games in Berlin is aimed by the Commonweal, Catholic weekly, in an editorial.

The Commonweal calls on "each and every organization identified with the church to make it clear to its members that participation in the approaching games means endorsement of wilful and violent persecution."

It asks the hierarchy to "warn the faithful concerning the issues involved, so that no Catholic young man or his friends unwittingly give to enemies of our faith opportunity to question the sacred solidarity of the Christian belief.

PHILLIES DEFEAT GIANTS, 11-5, BUT LOSE SECOND, 8-2

Vergez Hits Two Homers in First Game.

New York, July 30.—(AP)—Buried under an avalanche of hits in the first game, the league leading New York Giants came back behind Hal Schumacher's pitching in the second contest to break even for the day and hold their loss to the Chicago Cubs to half a game.

Johnny Vergez hit two home runs to lead a 16 hit Philadelphia assault on Bud Parmelee and Allyn Stout for the Phillies' 11 to 5 victory, while Schumacher struck out ten before he weakened in the eighth and gave way to Leon Chagnon as the Giants won, 8 to 2.

GAME TODAY, NOT JOB, IS JOHNSON'S CHIEF CONCERN

Walter Johnson, manager of the Cleveland Indians, last night appeared more concerned over today's game with the Chicago White Sox than about his conference this week-end at Detroit with Alva Bradley, president of the club, upon which, reports said, Johnson's immediate future depends.

"All I know is that I am to talk with Mr. Bradley in Detroit," Johnson said. "There really is nothing for me to say now. I'm thinking more right now about tomorrow's game.

"I am just as disappointed as Mr. Bradley over the fact that we are not closer to the pace, but injuries and other troubles have kept us from being up there," he added. "I haven't given up yet, though."

MILLERS REPEAT TRIUMPH OVER ALL-STARS, 4-3

Minneapolis, Minn., July 30.—[Special.]—The Minneapolis Millers, leaders in the American association race, repeated their feat of last year today when they defeated a team made up of stars picked from the seven other clubs in th league, 4 to 3, in the second annual benefit game.

The All-Stars, under the management of Allan Sothoron of Milwaukee, got away to a three run lead in the first six innings, but Joe Hauser of the Millers, home run king of the association last season, crashed out a homer in the seventh inning. Then the Millers added another run in the same inning and two in the eighth to clinch the decision.

Browns Pound Rowe to Beat Tigers, 8 to 6

Detroit, Mich., July 30.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns, showing no favoritism to American league leaders, pounded Schoolboy Rowe and the Detroit Tigers with a 12 hit barrage today to take the series opener, 8 to 6.

Russ Van Atta received credit for the victory, although he retired in the sixth inning. Knott, who took up the mound duties, went out in the ninth in favor of Thomas when the Tigers threatened again. The latter halted the rally.

DAVIS CUP DEFEATS.

UNITED STATES lost the Davis cup, international tennis trophy, to France in 1927, after holding it for seven successive years. Americans have been challengers in six of eight annual competitions since without once achieving title victory. Why? Has Yankee tennis gone back?

If Yankee tennis has gone back it has not done so hopelessly, else United States would not have been challenger [second best] in six of eight years. The Wake thinks there are two answers—conditions of the matches and professionalism.

BILL TILDEN.

The same causes which enabled United States to hold the cup from 1920 to 1927 now operate against it. During that tenure Big Bill Tilden and Little Bill Johnston were the big guns, aided, of course, by Vincent Richards and R. Norris Williams. The two Bills were enough. In 1920, when the cup was won, only Tilden and Johnston represented this country in both singles and doubles.

That brings out our point that one outstanding player with a fairly reliable teammate, even if not quite as formidable, may dominate the cup series. If two are outstanding, as were Tilden and Johnston, so much the better.

When France took the cup in 1927 and held it for six years, it was Rene Lacoste and Henri Cochet; later Jean Borotra, after Lacoste's retirement, with Jacques Brugnon as a doubles player, who kept France on top.

Now it is Fred Perry of England, present world's greatest, and Bunny Austin, who keeps the cup for Great Britain.

This is possible because there are five matches, four in singles and one in doubles. Your top player wins two matches in singles and then the secondary player has only to win one, or some combination, to take the doubles and the cup is retained.

But why has not America developed new players? After Tilden, waning slightly, turned pro to commercialize his reputation, for which none could blame him, and Little Bill Johnston retired, wearied by the constant grind, there were prospects of newcomers. George Lott, who never quite reached the heights his first years promised, also turned pro. So did Vincent Richards.

But that was not all. Ellsworth Vines, perhaps the greatest player in the world today, was ranking No. 1 American in 1931 and 1932. Frank Shields was American top in 1933. Vines, not a wealthy boy, turned pro after a disappointing year as an amateur when he was palpably overtensioned. Shields also chose to earn money in the movie colony with contracts which might not pass scrutiny by the U. S. L. T. A. So our most promising prospects did not continue Simon-pure careers which might have brought back the cup.

Of the present team Allison, No. 1 ranking American, is a veteran, possibly at his best, which is not good enough. Donald Budge, Sidney Wood, Frankie Parker, and others could develop with experience to make recovery of the Davis cup possible—if they remain amateurs.

The Wake ventures no opinion whether or not tennis amateurs should maintain their status or turn pro. International tennis requires almost constant practice or play. It leaves little time for any other occupation. Emoluments of the pro field are alluring to those who have not independent means. That was Vines' reason for his jump from amateurism.

Sox Rally in Sixth Beats Indians, 8-6

field. Pearson refused to give Bonura a good ball to hit at so Zeke walked, loading the corners. Nothing happened because Washington filed to Vosmik in short left and Trosky scooped up Appling's hard grounder.

Pearson continued to be a wild man in the second, but this time the Sox cut into the proceedings with a base hit and a run scored. Shea walked after Hopkins had been tossed out by Knickerbocker. Kennedy filed to Vosmik, and Radcliff drew free passage. Piet preferred not to wait for a gratuity. He slapped Pearson's first pitch for a single into center, Shea scoring. Haas filed to center.

Sox Score Again.

Only one hit was made off Pearson in the third, but it meant two runs because of more wildness. Bonura led off with a pass and Washington forced him at second. Appling and Hopkins walked, filling the bases. Shea then sneaked a single down the third base line, Washington and Appling scoring and Hopkins going to third. Kennedy fanned for the second out, and Radcliff rolled to Hale to end the inning.

There was only one single against Kennedy's record in the first three innings, but the Indians made up for this deficiency in the fourth, when they hung up their cluster of four runs for a 4 to 3 lead. Averill started it with a line double to right and hugged second while Hopkins was throwing out Campbell. Trosky hit a phoney, looping two bagger to short center, Averill scoring. Knickerbocker filed to Washington and Hale doubled to right center, Trosky counting. Berger's fluke single behind short scored Hale. Berger stole second and went from there to the plate on a wild pitch.

Sox Tie Score.

Haas came up with a swell idea in the home fourth. He doubled to the left field score board with one out, but didn't get home with the tying run because Bonura bounced to short and Washington fouled to Hale. A double in the fifth, however, fetched satisfactory results. Appling hit it to left center with none out and moved to third on Hopkins' grounder to Knickerbocker. The infield drew in for a possible play at the plate, but Shea fooled 'em by singling over Berger's head, Appling scoring the tying run. Kennedy sacrificed, but Radcliff popped to Berger.

The big White Sox revival in the sixth got under way when Piet led off with a single and took second on Haas' sacrifice. Bonura whistled a single between short and third, Piet scoring. The next pitch was the one Washington lined into the right field seats for his season's fifth homer, Bonura preceding him across the plate. The merry-making continued with Appling's triple to the fence in right center. Luke stayed at third on Hopkins' fly to left but rode home a moment later on Shea's third successive single. Kennedy then forced Shea.

Trosky Hits Homer.

After his troubles in the fourth Kennedy was the victim of only two hits in the next three innings. Neither hit caused even a flurry. He continued to be effective until the first two Indians were set down in the eighth. Then Campbell rifled a single past Kennedy and scored later on Trosky's homer No. 15 which bounced off the front of the upper deck in right. Everything was conducted in orderly fashion after this.

PHELPS FACES INDIANS

Ray [Babe] Phelps will pitch for the White Sox today in the second game of the series with the Cleveland Indians. Phelps has had an extended rest. His last start, a five inning job, was against the Yankees at New York July 14. Since then he has worked less than an inning. Mel Harder, the curve ball expert, will pitch for the Indians.

Luke Sewell, the Sox's first string catcher, refused to make good on reports that he was suffering from an appendicitis attack. The veteran experienced a violent stomach ache early yesterday morning while en route from St. Louis and it was diagnosed as nothing else than appendix trouble by the club physician after arrival here. Sewell was in uniform yesterday, but didn't work. He'll catch Phelps today.

Al Simmons' groin injury will keep him out for a week. The club physician has prescribed rest. Manager Jim Dykes also must take it easy for a week, during which he hopes his charley horse will disappear.

Cubs Defeat Pirates, 9 to 6; 10th in Row

Chuck Klein, a triple by Hack, and a double by Jurges.

The Cubs thought they were doing something pretty nice for French when they gave him two runs in the first inning on an infield single by Galan and doubles by Herman and Hartnett. But the start didn't mean a thing to Larry, who began where he left off when he pitched a six run inning in a relief rôle here on July 6, the first day of the Cubs' pennant surge.

Here is the record of Larry's floundering today. Jensen walked and went to third on L. Waner's single to center. Hartnett's throw to catch Jensen off third caromed off Hack's torso into left field, Jensen scoring and L. Waner taking second. P. Waner singled past second, Jurges making a nice stop too late for the out. Vaughan tripled off the right field screen, scoring the two Waners. French then was led away.

Lee took over the pitching job. Young fanned and Thevenow filed to Demaree, Vaughan scoring the fourth Pirate run. Suhr walked, but Padden filed to Klein.

Cubs Ignore Pitching.

As you probably have observed, the Cub offensive in the pennant drive has refused to be cast down by pitching flops, of which there have been many during the heroic winning span. The boys got busy in the second inning and grabbed four runs themselves. Jurges doubled with one out and reached third on Lee's infield single. Galan walked, filling the bases. Herman shot a grounder to Vaughan, scoring Jurges, and when Young dropped Vaughan's throw to second, the bases remained full. Cavarretta filed to L. Waner, Lee scoring.

Hartnett singled to left center, scoring Galan. Weaver replaced Brown and walked Demaree, filling the bases. Klein beat out a hit to Suhr, Herman scoring. Hack, who opened the inning with a fly to Jensen, ended it with another fly to the same outfielder.

Two Errors Help.

Young's second and third errors of the game, which came in rapid succession in the fourth inning, did much to supply the Cubs with three runs that they later were mighty glad they possessed. Young first fumbled Herman's grounder. Cavarretta sent a potential double play ball to Young, who threw the ball into left field, Herman reaching third and Cavarretta second. Hartnett came through with his third hit, a single to center, Herman scoring. Cavarretta apparently scored also, but was called out by Umpire Reardon in one of the ump's four or five seeming lapses during the afternoon. Demaree fouled to Jensen, but Klein doubled to right, scoring Hartnett. Hack walked, then Hack and Klein executed a double steal. Klein scored the ninth and last Cub run on a wild pitch.

The Pirates' only profitable inning after the first was the eighth, in which Jensen singled for the third hit off Lee and was forced by L. Waner. P. Waner flied to Galan, but Vaughan came through with his No. 15 homer, scoring behind L. Waner.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 30.—Early indications of strength in the bond market faded away in later dealings today under profit taking pressure, with final prices representing little change from the preceding session.

Amusement issues rallied briskly, while railroad liens exhibited pronounced steadiness. United States government obligations were about unchanged, finishing 2-32ds lower to 3-32ds higher. Activity was somewhat heavier than that of Monday, but volume held to small proportions, with $10,529,000, par value, changing hands, compared with $9,543,000 a day earlier.

Italian Liens Rally.

Italian issues dominated interest in the foreign section by rallying 2 to 3 points. An abrupt break of 5½ points occurred in French 7s of 1949 when a single block of 11 bonds was sold.

A few standard industrials were hesitant and fluctuations in utility loans were narrow. New highs for the year were made by Certainteed 5½s, up 1 point at 85¾; B. F. Keith 6s, up 2½ at 85; Paramount-Public 5½s, up 1⅛ at 100⅛; Warner Bros. 6s, up 1 at 76; Gulf, Mobile and Northern 5s, up 1¼ at 68¾, and El Paso and S. W. 5s, up ½ at 101. A half dozen or more others equaled 1935 peaks.

Many Leading Issues Firm.

Firm spots elsewhere included obligations of Baltimore and Ohio, Great Northern, Nickel Plate, Southern Railway, Columbia Gas, Laclede Gas, and Montana Power.

A drop of 2⅞ points in Murray Body 6½s of 1942 to 130¼ was one of the sharpest losses registered by an individual domestic issue. Others selling off slightly included Penn Dixie 6s at 91½, Youngstown Sheet and Tube 5s at 98⅝, and American Water Works 6s at 87¾.

Arnold Print Works.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly advise me as to the status of Arnold Print Works first mortgage 6½s, due 1941?—Miss B. E.

Answer: Arnold Print Works, Adams, Mass., is a finisher of rayon and cotton goods. Inventory losses are minimized through the company's policy of dealing primarily in staple goods and of doing about 80 per cent of its business on orders placed with it prior to the time it purchases unfinished fabric. About 75 per cent of its business is finishing of cotton goods.

Since 1933 the company has followed the policy of buying and selling its raw material on its own account, in contrast to the previous policy of conducting its business on a job basis. Sales for the year ended June 30, 1934, consequently, are not strictly comparable with previous years.

Maintenance of volume of sales and absence of heavy inventory losses have enabled the company to operate profitably throughout the last six years, in contrast to the experience of most companies in similar business.

Net sales in the year ended June 30, 1934, were $15,301,000 and interest was earned 1.43 times. Sales for the preceding year were $5,395,000, against $4,294,000 for the June 30, 1932, year. In the year ended June 30, 1933, interest was earned 1.19 times. For preceding years interest was earned 1.46 times, 3.19 times, and 3.98 times.

Current assets on June 30, 1934, including cash of $102,000, totaled $1,861,000, and current liabilities, including $40,000 secured notes payable, were $1,128,000. Funded debt is $2,123,000

The first 6s and 6½s, due 1941, are speculative.

Pennsylvania Gas and Electric.

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate any information you could give me on Pennsylvania Gas and Electric company. Thank you in advance.—E. W.

Answer: Earnings of this operating unit in the American Electric Power system have declined regularly since 1930 to a point where preferred dividend requirements were not covered in 1934 and 1933. Although operating revenues for 1934 increased slightly, net income dropped to $86,000, which was 82 per cent of preferred dividend requirements, from $102,000, which was 97 per cent of such requirements, for 1933.

Net income in 1932 was $161,000, against $207,000 in 1931, and $225,000 in 1930. Preferred dividend requirements are $105,000 a year.

Current position on Dec. 31, 1934, was satisfactory.

The company is a $9,500,000 concern furnishing gas to York, Pa., and through a subsidiary to the remainder of York county.

Dividends are being paid regularly on the preferred. Low and declining rate of earnings make the stock somewhat speculative.

QUAKER OATS JOINS FIGHT ON PROCESS TAXES

Asks Injunction as Packers Are Heard.

A new attack on the processing taxes levied under the agricultural adjustment act was opened yesterday when the Quaker Oats company filed suit in the United States District court challenging the legality of the act and seeking an injunction against further collections by the government.

JUDGE JOHN P. BARNES.

The Quaker Oats company's suit was started a few hours after seventeen Chicago packing companies had appeared before Federal Judge John P. Barnes for a preliminary hearing on suits filed the preceding day seeking to restrain further collections of pork processing taxes. The grounds on which Quaker Oats attacks the act and the levies on wheat and corn are the same as those set forth in the briefs of the packing companies.

Hearing on Packers' Suits Today.

The hearing on the packers' suits was continued until tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock after preliminary skirmishes between attorneys for the companies and the government. Pending decision on the injunction petition Judge Barnes instructed George Price, chief of the process tax division of internal revenue office, that all cases for collection of the taxes should be held in status quo.

The Quaker Oats company bill, filed by the law firm of Knapp, Beye, Allen & Cushing, attacks the constitutionality of the AAA on several points. The act, it asserts, imposes taxes which are not within the power of the federal government. The levies are described as a violation of the "due process" clause of the fifth amendment to the constitution. The bill also assers, as did the packers' suits, that the act makes an illegal delegation of legislative power to administrative officials.

Fear "Irreparable Damage."

Continued levies upon the company will cause it "irreparable damage and injury," it is charged. The bill further delares the repeated levies "will impair valuable good will built up through more than thirty years and will serously interfere with, if not prevent, he actual operation of plants and the sale of products."

The bill sets forth that the company has absorbed the processing tax to a large degree. Prices at which the company's products are sold were not increased to provide for the tax nor were subtractions made from the prices paid for grain, it was asserted.

The tax is levied at the rate of 30 cents a bushel on wheat and 5 cents a bushel on corn. There is no tax on oats, of which the company handles a much larger volume. If the present rates on wheat and corn are maintained the company estimated it would be forced to pay $75,000 a month in taxes.

Armour Offers Tax Surety.

In the hearing on the packers' suits Robert N. Golding, attorney for Armour & Co., made an offer to post $3,300,000 with the clerk of the court to cover back taxes owed by the firm pending outcome of the legal test.

Carl Perkins, assistant United States district attorney, argued against acceptance by the court of the offer and proposed the company should be ordered to post an amount equal to 130 per cent of the taxes owed in order to cover possible penalities and costs of the suit.

Charles Aarons, counsel for nine smaller packing companies, pointed out that his clients were not in a position to put up funds to cover their taxes. If collection was forced it would break some of the companies, Aaron asserted.

Suits Begun in Other Cities.

Meanwhile legal attacks on the processing taxes were brought by several firms in other cities. In Springfield, Ill., the federal District court issued an order restraining the government from collecting further processing taxes. The order was issued on the petition of the A. E. Staley company, Decatur corn processing firm, which is suing for recovery of approximately $750,00 in taxes already paid.

The order was signed by Judge Charles G. Briggle, who in a recent ruling said the tax provision of the AAA was apparently unconstitutional. The Saley firm was ordered to continue to pay its tax monthly to the clerk of the court. In addition, the company was required to post a bond of 10 per cent of the amount owed the government to cover costs.

In Louisville, Ky., Federal Judge H. Church Ford issued orders restraining collection of processing taxes in several of the 47 suits on which hearings were held. An estimated $300,000 in taxes is involved in the suits.

Milling Concerns Fight Tax.

Attacks on the processing levy on wheat were made in federal court in Columbus, O., by three independent milling companies, which sought to hold up futher collections. The companies making the attacks were the Gwinn Milling company, Columbus; Kansas Milling company, Wichita, Kas., and the F. J. Beasley company, Athens, O.

Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis is scheduled to rule today in Kansas City on nine suits pending there against the AAA.

Since a Supreme court decision on the AAA cannot be handed down until fall, the numerous legal actions brought in the lower courts are having little immediate effect on market price. The uncertainty of the situation, however, raises new difficulties for the person dealing in future pork produts.

Trade Balance in June Again Favors U. S.

Washington, D. C., July 30.—[Special.]—Dollar volume of exports from the United States exceeded imports in June for the first time in three months, according to the department of commerce.

"In contrast with the usual seasonal decline of 5 per cent from May to June," the department said in the monthly report of foreign trade, "exports were 3 per cent higher while imports, which usually decline 7 per cent, were 8 per cent smaller than in the preceding months.

Export Value Smaller.

"Compared with June a year ago, exports were slightly smaller in value, while imports showed an increase of a little over 15 per cent," a report yesterday said.

Exports were helped considerably by the $4,074,000 increase in foreign shipments of raw cotton.

Total exports in June amounted to $170,193,000, against $165,456,000 in May and $170,519,000 in June, 1934. June imports aggregated $156,756,000, against $170,559,000 in May and $136,109,000 in June, 1934.

Excess of exports in June was $13,437,000 over imports. In June, 1934, exports exceeded imports by $34,410,000. For the first half of this year the favorable balance of trade, excess of exports over imports, was $29,422,000, compared with a favorable balance of $172,210,000 for the first half of 1934.

Gold Imports Soar.

This country imported $230,372,000 more gold in June than it exported. Total exports were $166,000 and imports were $230,538,000. May exports of gold totaled $49,000 and imports were $140,065,000, while in June last year exports were $6,586,000 and imports were $70,291,000.

In addition to cotton, exports of fodders and feed, vegetables and vegetable preparations, canned fruits and dried and evaporated fruits showed increases in June compared with May. Vegetable food products and edible animal products were the principal classifications of imports to decline in June from May.

FOREIGN MONEY STEADY AS BANKS SUPPORT GUILDER

New York, July 30.—[Special.]—Foreign exchange markets were quiet today, but eagerly awaited news from Holland of political and financial developments. The Bank of the Netherlands was reported pegging the guilder above the gold point, indirectly through the operation of large commercial banks.

The guilder closed in New York at 67.70 cents, off 15 points. The French franc was quoted at 6.61½, up ¼, and the Swiss franc at 32.69, 1 point higher.

The rise in the French franc reduced the value of the dollar in terms of francs to $1.0027 from $1.0031 yesterday. Based on the old parity today. Sterling closed at at $4.96, off ¼.

For the week ended July 29 the Netherlands bank reported a decline in gold stocks of 130,800,000 guilders to a total of 557,700,000 guilders. Notes in circulation amounted to 818,700,000 guilders. Total sight liabilities were given as 873,400,000 guilders, bringing the gold ratio to 63.8 per cent. Advances increased from 94,500,000 guilders on July 22 to 228,800,000 guilders, an increase of 134,300,000 guilders.

The London gold price was reduced 2 pence to 140 shillings 5 pence an ounce, equivalent to $34.82, at which quotation £365,000 in metal changed hands. The sterling-franc rate was 75 francs to the pound both in London and Paris.

The steamship Santa Elena from Colombia brought in bar gold with a value of $1,750,000 consigned to the New York Federal Reserve bank. There were no exports. The loss through net increase in gold held under earmark for foreign account was $1,400,500.

STIMSON'S FIRM DOUBTS VALIDITY OF UTILITY BILL

New York, July 30.—(AP)—An opinion by former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's law firm which questions the constitutionality of the Wheeler-Rayburn bill was released tonight by the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, a public utilities holding company.

"If congress has the power sought to be exercised in either the senate or the house drafts of the Wheeler-Rayburn bill," said the opinion, prepared by the firm of Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts, "then there would be no business which would not be subject to the exercise of the power of congress over interstate commerce, irrespective of how local such business might be."

Both drafts of the bill, the opinion said, "clearly offend against the constitutional division of powers between congress and the states recently enunciated by the Supreme court in the NRA case."

Cargill Grain Co. Granted Pit Clearing Privileges

Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday approved the application of the Cargill Grain company for clearing privileges on the exchange. This is the first corporation to gain admission to the exchange clearing house under the recent amendment to the rules lifting the ban on corporate memberships.

PLAN RESTORATION OF INSULL'S $21,000 PENSIONS SHORTLY

Samuel Insull's pensions, totaling $21,000 a year, will be restored to him shortly, according to sources close to the big Chicago utility companies which he formerly headed. A move to give back to Insull the pensions which were taken away from him when he was a fugitive in Europe was said last night to be definitly "in the making."

Agitation to restore the pensions was said to have been started after he was freed in federal and state courts of all criminal charges connected with his operation of his former utility empire. Originally they aggregated $50,000 annually, but were reduced to $21,000, apportioned as follows: Commonwealth Edison company, $6,000; Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, $6,000; Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, $6,000, and the Peoples Gas Subsidiary corporation, $3,000.

James Simpson, chairman of Commonwealth Edison, in explaining the basis of Insull's pensions in October, 1932, said they conformed with "the amounts for which he is qualified by his age and length of service under the provisions of the service annuity systems without special action by directors."

The pensions were discontinued early in 1934 before Insull had been cleared by the courts. With his exoneration it was said that there has been a growing feeling that they should be restored

George A. Ranney, vice chairman of Edison, last night refused to make any comment on the subject. He refused to say whether the matter will be discussed at the next meeting of Edison directors, which is expected to occur in the middle of August. Simpson is out of the city.

MILWAUKEE LINE ASKS COURT RULE TO PAY INTEREST

The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railway company announced yesterday that it will apply to the federal court here for authority to meet certain interest payments, due or soon to be due, or will ask for instructions as to these payments. It is understood the payments involve several thousand dollars.

Interest payments affected are as follows: Payments due July 1 on Bedbort Belt railway first mortgage 5 per cent bonds and series E, F, G, and H equipment trust certificates; July 15 on series A certificates and due today on Southern Indiana Railway first mortgage 4 per cent bonds and series D certificates.

The road's statement said series A certificate coupons should not be presented to the Manufacturers' Trust company, New York, sole paying agent for the issue, prior to notification that funds for this payment will be available, and that coupons for the other payments might be presented to the railroad company "to be held by it in custody for account of the owners" pending the court's decision.

REMINGTON RAND CAPITAL CHANGE GIVEN APPROVAL

The common stock is undisturbed. The new securities will be listed on the New York Stock exchange.

Dividend accumulations on the first and second preferred issues, under the terms of the plan, are cleared up and the way is said to be paved for the refunding of the company's present issue of 5½ per cent debentures. Steel Jobs, Pay Not Affected by NRA Death

New York, July 30.—[Special.]—In the first month of operations since scrapping of the steel code, employment in the industry was maintained last month at 98.9 per cent of the May level, despite a drop of 8.6 per cent in production in June, the American Iron and Steel institute announced today. Average hourly earnings declined a fraction of a cent, but the figure was still more than a cent above that for June, 1934.

The figures were regarded as an indication that leading producers were voluntarily continuing to maintain labor standards despite invalidations of the code.

Continue Reports Despite NRA.

Figures were sent to the institute by the steel companies in accordance with the previously announced decision to continue to report on employment, hours, and wages, just as was done under the NRA.

"The industry had 416,732 employés in June," the institute said, "compared with 421,470 in May. Oporations in June, however, were at 40.31 per cent of capacity against 44.10 per cent in May. Employment in June was only 8.6 per cent below June, 1934, although operations were 24.6 per cent below those a year ago.

Average Wage Down .6 Per Cent.

"Average earnings of employés receiving hourly, piecework, or tonnage wages were 65.1 cents, a decline of only six-tenths of 1 per cent from the 65.5 cents in May. In June, 1934, wage earning employés received an average of 63.9 cents an hour.

"The comparatively low rate of operations in June reduced the average number of hours worked last week from 33.9 in May to 31.4 in June, against 35.7 hours in June of last year. June pay rolls were $41,902,874, compared with $46,493,536 in May. Pay rolls in June, 1934, were $49,466,644; in that month operations were at 53.44 per cent of capacity.

The following table shows steel employment in the last two months:

	June, 1935.	May, 1935.

DAIRY FIRM SUES UNION FOR LOSS OF ITS BUSINESS

Rockford, Ill., July 30.—(AP)—A suit asking $10,000 damages from the Rockford Milk Wagon Drivers' union, local 482, and two of its officials, was filed in Circuit court today by the Kishwaukee Farm Dairy. The defendant officials were Maurice B. Van Langham, president, and John Brady, business agent.

The bill alleged the dairy was incorporated Nov. 17, 1934, and on July 16, 1935, its business was valued at $10,000. On that day, the bill set forth, union officials protested that one of the dairy's drivers, Walter Schmid, was not being paid the union scale.

As a consequence of the protest, the bill said, the firm was unable to make deliveries that day, lost many of its customers and has since been forced to suspend business.

COURT ALLOWS WILLYS TO BUILD 10,000 MORE CARS

Petoskey, Mich., July 30.—(AP)—Federal Judge George P. Hahn granted receivers of the Willys-Overland automobile factory at Toledo permission today to reopen the plant to build 10,000 cars. Some creditors had opposed their request. The hearing was conducted in Judge Hahn's summer cottage here to expedite the case.

The court ruled that bondholders should be paid $250,000 from the sale of equipment which will not be used when the plant resumes operations.

The receivers said work would begin in November or December, and that about 3,000 men would be employed.

STEEL INSTITUTE PLEA TO PROTECT U.S. TRADE DENIED BY PWA CHIEFS

Washington, D. C., July 30.—[Special.]—A suggestion by representatives of the American Iron and Steel institute that PWA deal individually with any contractor buying over $5,000 worth of iron or steel for a PWA project to insure that he buy in America rather than abroad has been refused by the Public Works administration. This was revealed today by Horatio B. Hackett, assistant administrator, who said the suggested plan would require so much detail work that it would be impractical.

Col. Hackett asserted that a PWA order May 25, which held that PWA contractors must buy foreign steel if the price was more than 15 per cent below the American, would not be changed.

Commenting on the protests of steel officials Secretary Ickes said today that not a bit of foreign steel had ever been bought by PWA projects.

"The arrangement we have made is more than sufficiently generous," Ickes remarked. "The tarif alone is supposed to protect our industry from the difference in cost abroad." He said that the 15 per cent differential was established by a treasury department order which he believed superseded a general order establishing a 25 per cent differential.

AUTO FINANCING FIRM PAYS 400% STOCK DIVIDEND

New York, July 30.—[Special.]—Reminiscent of the post-war "melon cutting" era was the announcement today of a 400 per cent stock dividend on the common stock of the Associates Investment company, an automobile financing company doing business in the middle west, northern New York, Philadelphia, and Washington, D. C.

The rapid growth of the business is reflected in the record of gross receivables purchased, which rose from $6,770,975 in 1924 to $33,064,010 in 1931, then dipped during the depression and rose again to $56,581,950 in 1934. With automobile sales during the first half of 1935 almost 50 per cent greater than during the like 1934 period, it is presumed the business of the company has been stimulated.

Even in 1926 the rapid growth of its business was reflected in an increase of capitalization when the amount of authorized capital preferred stock was raised from $700,000 to $3,000,000. At that time the old $100 par common stock was changed to no par common on the basis of seven new shares for each old share.

The 400 per cent dividend will be payable to stockholders of record Aug. 2 on Aug. 15, "or as soon thereafter as effective registration of the additional shares of common stock to be issued in payment of the dividend will permit." This will mean that the holder of each original share of common will after Aug. 15 be in possession of thirty-five shares.

Injunction Against Hupp Dealers Is Ended by Court

Judge John P. Barnes in the federal district court here yesterday issued an order dismissing the injunction brought against the Association of Hupp Distributors last spring by A. M. Andrews, formerly chairman of the motor car company's board of directors. S. L. Davis, president of the Hupmobile Illinois company and head of the distributors association, said the action constitutes complete vindication of the efforts of the Hupp distributors in banding together to protect their interests.

STOCKS DROOP IN SQUALL OF PROFIT TAKING

Industrial, Specialty Issues Lose Most.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 30.—Trading continued at a lively clip on the stock exchange today, but the market was called upon to weather considerable profit taking, and the result was irregularly lower prices in most departments. Heaviest losses were incurred by industrial and specialty shares, which have been in the van of the recent bull movement.

Brokers professed no surprise at the setback, most of them having been anticipating a technical correction for some time. It is a matter of continual comment around the board rooms that the market, or at least the industrial section of it, has far outrun the business recovery and that much of the buying has been due, as much as anything else, to the press of idle funds seeking investment.

Speculate on Autumn Revival.

In other words, traders with idle bank accounts have been moved to speculate on the prospects—which admittedly are growing brighter all the time—for a trade revival of importance in the fall.

The business and legislative news of the day was regarded as pretty much of a standoff. Traders watched with interest the progress of the administration's wealth tax bill, which, according to reports from the nation's capital, might be rushed through this week. Earnings statements and advices from the heavy industries continued reassuring. Ebbing inflation talk and the President's refusal to speed up the government purchases of silver despite the plea of the silver bloc in congress caused a little extra selling of the white metal shares.

Airplane Issues Advance.

In spite of the downward pull of realizing sales, the market was not without its bright spots. Some diversion was created by a sortie among the airplane shares. Hope of larger orders on government account provided the urge. Gains of a point or so were made in most of the air shares. Douglas, Boeing, and United were the most active.

Another group to more than hold its own was the petroleum issues. Amerada and Seaboard Oil rose about 2 points each and fractional gains were made by Standard of New Jersey, Phillips, Atlantic Refining, and Houston.

The motors were erratic. Chrysler and General Motors gave up about a point each but some of the lesser lights of the division managed small recoveries in spite of the backwash. Heavy dealings in Studebaker continued to arouse comment.

Some Buying in Rails.

Railroad stocks came in for some buying orders in the earlier dealings under the leadership of New York Central and Southern Pacific, but the group as a whole was unable to carry on.

Steel stocks were firm, but most of them gave up fractions. Republic and Otis reached new tops, but U. S. Steel common and preferred held back. Bethlehem finished a point lower.

The utilities were undistinguished and the amusement, merchandising, farm, food, rubber, and tobacco groups drifted with the procession.

CHICAGO STOCKS MIXED AT CLOSE; 17 HIT NEW HIGHS

The Chicago stock market was steadier than its New York big brother yesterday. In the face of selling on a profit taking reaction from the recent advances, 17 issues managed to achieve new 1935 highs and 16 others sold even with previous tops. The gains and losses were almost evenly matched, although a large majority of the active issues gave ground.

Chicago corporation common, on a 3,400 share turnover, declined an eighth. Borg-Warner, recently the local blue chip, struck a new high of 48¼ and closed at 47⅞, off only an eighth. Bendix slipped off one-half in active trading, while Houdaille B similarly was thrown three-eighths.

Crane advanced to a new high of 17 on a 2,400 share volume and closed up ¾ at 16¾. Cord was unchanged in 4,000 share trading, while Zenith behaved similarly. Packers were generally firm, Swift picking up a quarter, Armour an eighth, and Loudon staying at its 1935 high. Libby lost an eighth.

Steels were mixed. Continental lost 1⅜ in active trade and Ryerson canceled 2 more points of its sharp rise last week, being down 3 at one time yesterday. On the other hand, Keystone closed even after hitting a new ceiling and Signode issues were at or above previous levels.

Rumor Shift in U. S. Steel Staf, Policies

BY HOWARD WOOD.

United States Steel corporation's report yesterday showing another red ink figure in its income account lent substance to current reports that a far reaching shakeup of personnel and methods is impending in "Big Steel."

For several weeks the rumor has persisted that the corporation was laying out a program whereby operations of the various subsidiaries throughout the country would be more closely coördinated and that in the coördinating process there would be a lopping off of some executives and promotion of others.

* *

True to its traditional policy of silence, however, the corporation has permitted neither verification nor denial of these rumors to sift through the insulation which it maintains around its inner doings.

Officials of two big subsidiaries which have head offices in the Chicago district, Illinois Steel company and Universal Atlas Cement company, have denied even hearing of these reports of a general shakeup.

In financial circles, however, it is reported that William A. Irvin, president of U. S. Steel, has been calling in operating executives from all over the country for a series of conferences in a New York hotel on the subject of renovating the company's internal affairs.

* *

The fact that U. S. Steel continues to operate in the red while more agile smaller competitors have begun to show profits is believed in financial circles to be forcing the issue to a head. Inland Steel, a leading independent, yesterday reported June quarter earnings equal to $1.99 per share and declared a 25 cent extra dividend.

U. S. Steel is the biggest company in the industry, the capacity of its plants for the production of steel ingots accounting for about 40 per cent of the domestic total, compared with 13 per cent for Bethlehem Steel, its nearest competitor.

Packers Fear AAA Reprisals for Attacking Processing Tax.

No bather dipping his toes in the chilly waters of the lake preparatory to his first spring plunge ever was more hesitant than were the Chicago meat packing companies about going into the courts to seek injunctions restraining the government from collecting the AAA processing tax on hogs.

Not that they didn't believe they had a good case. If there is a packing company official who isn't convinced that the tax is unconstitutional he hasn't been found. The packers' qualms were caused by fear of "crackdowns" of one sort or another.

* *

Leading packers do a substantial amount of business for the government in the processing of meat for distribution through relief agencies. In these times when their normal volume of production has been greatly curtailed by last year's drouth and the crop and live stock destruction program of the AAA this additional business helps to keep down their overhead.

Also they feared that open resistance to the collection of the processing tax might give fuel to the New Dealers, who have been trying to shove through congress radical amendments to the agricultural adjustment act which would greatly strengthen Secretary Wallace's grip on packing plants and other food processing companies.

The result was that for weeks the big packers held off to see what would happen in congress and also what would happen in suits filed by food processing concerns in other parts of the country, and the little packers in Chicago waited to see what the big packers would do.

* *

The issue, however, was forced to a head by the threat of legislation barring recourse to the courts for the recovery of taxes already paid in the event that the tax should be found unconstitutional by the Supreme court. At the same time many of the small and medium sized concerns were threatened with bankruptcy because of the necessity of paying heavy taxes in a year in which operations have been greatly curtailed by the small receipts of live stock.

The decision to go to court, according to representatives of several Chicago concerns, was precipitated on Monday, when it was learned that the internal revenue collectors would grant no more extensions of time for payment of the taxes.

U. S. STEEL CUTS LOSS; PAYS 50c ON PREFERRED

Inland Reports Rise in Profits.

Improved conditions in the steel industry during most of the June quarter were reflected yesterday in a better earnings record for the United States Steel corporation than in the initial three months of 1935. However, directors followed their conservative policy, despite the betterment, and voted a dividend of 50 cents a share on the 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock, bringing total accumulations on the issue to $13.75 a share.

At the same time they announced a deficit for the June quarter of $762,493 after all charges but before preferred dividends, compared with a deficit of $2,173,801 in the March, 1935, period, the best first quarter since the March, 1931, period. Net income after all charges and dividends totaled $5,350,241 for the June quarter last year. Total payment on the preferred stock in all instances amounted to $1,801,405.

For the six months ended June 30 indicated net loss was $2,936,294 after all charges, compared with net loss of of $1,639,724 in first half of 1934. Operating income for the June quarter aggregated $14,117,364, compared with $12,428,449 in the March quarter and $21,082,389 for the corresponding interval last year.

The corporation reported that shipments of finished steel products for the second 1935 period totaled 1,763,751 tons, compared with 1,785,248 tons in the first quarter and 2,373,408 tons in the second period last year.

The increase in net operating earnings in the face of a slight recession in shipments was explained in some quarters by the better demand for heavier steels on which the profit margin is wider. The sharp upturn in second quarter earnings during 1934 was attributed to heavy buying of steel during the period in anticipation of a substantial increase in prices.

Inland Reports Gain.

Inland Steel company, large independent Chicago organization, reported June quarter profits somewhat over those of the corresponding 1934 period but slightly under the first period of this year.

Directors of Inland, whose earnings for the first half of 1935 exceed the same period of 1934, declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly 50 cent payment on common shares.

OLIVER COMPANY REORGANIZATION PLAN APPROVED

One Class of Common to Be Outstanding.

Stockholders of Oliver Farm Equipment company yesterday approved a plan of reorganization which will wipe out preferred dividend arrears and provide for the issuance of one class of common stock in exchange for all shares now outstanding.

Approval came after the annual meeting had been adjourned three times from its original date of June 19. The first recess was caused by a lack of sufficient proxies to obtain adoption of the plan. The others resulted from a proxy fight led by M. J. Brown, who yesterday was added to the board.

The present common stockholders also elected C. R. Messinger, M. W. Ellis, and C. S. De Long to represent them on the board. Messinger and Ellis are holdovers. The preferred shares previously had chosen M. H. Pettit, T. A. Freeman, W. C. Frye, S. A. Russell, and S. W. White.

Move to Fund Bank Debts.

Messinger, chairman of the board, indicated after the vote that steps will be taken shortly to fund the $7,100,000 bank debts still carried by the company.

"The first step toward refinancing," he said, "is the consummation of the plan of recapitalization. Continued improvement in general business conditions should enable the company in due course to make satisfactory arrangements for the funding of its bank debt and for obtaining additional working capital.

"Current sales for June were 92 per cent greater than for the same period last year. July sales are running ahead of June. Collections also show improvement."

Stock Exchange Program.

The plan, which Messinger said should benefit all stockholders' interests, provides for issuance of 1¾ new common shares for each of the 188,610 prior preferred shares outstanding. Accumulated dividends of $25.50 a share as of last Dec. 31 are wiped out. One new share of common will be issued for each 20 of the 621,895 presently outstanding common shares. An additional 5,219 new shares will be issued to replace dividend scrip outstanding. The exchanges require issuance of 272,072 new shares, with a stated value of $40 a share. The remainder of 800,000 authorized may be used principally for raising money and to take up stock purchase warants originally issued with the prior preferred shares.

The vote yesterday was 128,057 shares of preferred and 336,926 common for the plan and 460 and 343, respectively, against the plan.

CHICAGO PARKS' BONDS LIMITED TO OWN LEVIES

Payments Will Depend on Specific Funds.

The Chicago park board yesterday adopted two measures of importance to bondholders and taxpayers. One was that the board will apply no funds toward payment of bond principal and interest except those received for that specific purpose. The other measure passed by the board cut $2,956,902 from the 1934 tax levy applicable to the former South park and West park districts.

The first measure had specific application to the Lincoln park and South park bridge funds, which had been dipped into in order to keep the records of the two districts clean from default. Robert J. Dunham, president of the park board, is known to be anxious to complete the structures. He said yesterday that bondholders will not be penalized by the measure because the refunding plan for the district's bonds now being considered will put the bonds on a sound, long term basis.

Abatement in 1934 Levy.

The other measure passed yesterday provides for an abatement of $2,956,902 in the 1934 tax levy applicable to the former South park and West park districts.

The south park district 1934 bond and interest levy of approximately nine million dollars will be cut $2,330,358 by this action. The savings are made up by elimination of $639,000 charge for principal and $460,640 interest levied for bonds that were not sold; $1,120,754 on the levy for deficiency of return on the bond and interest tax for 1931 and $109,964 on account of the levy for "loss and cost" on the 1934 tax. The west park district abatement totals $626,545.

Dunham Explains Action.

"The abatement of taxes totaling $2,956,902 at this time is by way of reducing levies of 1934 before extension of those levies by the county clerk," said Dunham. "This extension, we understand, will occur within the next few weeks.

"Incidentally, by this voluntary abatement each taxpayer on whom those levies had previously been made will receive his proportionate benefit, whereas the only benefactors upon the filing of individual objections are the successful objectors."

The board yesterday ratified Dunham's sale of $1,500,000 of 1935 tax anticipation warants at a price to yield 2.35 per cent. The warants will be sold in $300,000 blocks at fifteen day intervals, commencing August 1, for pay roll purposes.

NEARBY LARD DELIVERIES DROP ON PROFIT TAKING

Profit taking in the nearby deliveries of lard yesterday checked an uninterrupted advance for nine successive days, during which period the September future had moved up nearly ⅞ cents per pound. Closing trades were at net losses of 2½ to 7½ cents per 100 pounds. The May delivery, however, sold at a new high for the season, buying of lard against sales of May corn being the main influence, and it finished with a gain of 5 cents after an early decline.

Reports indicated a fair cash business was passing and was sufficient in volume to cause a steady decrease of stocks in cold storage. Cash lard closed at $15.17; loose, $15.05; leaf, $15.12, and bellies at $18.45 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds follow:

WHEAT DECLINES WHEN PRICE IN LIVERPOOL SAGS

Chicago Loss Is a Cent; Oats Rise Sharply.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Wheat dropped a cent a bushel in yesterday's trading in the Chicago market. An early break of 2 to 3 cents a bushel in the international market in Liverpool unsettled prices here and was the principal factor in causing the selling. It marked the second day of declining prices following the upturn last week, when the black rust scare was at its peak. September wheat, the principal future, closed at 94⅝ cents a bushel.

A feature of the market was the sharp upturn in July oats, which rose 3 cents a bushel, the limit allowed under the rules. The advance reached the maximum shortly before the close of the market. The future will expire tomorrow and the advance yesterday was brought about by moderate short covering. The price advanced easily, and on one small buying order the quotation jumped a half cent a bushel.

Talk of Corner in Oats.

The open interest in July oats at the close of the market Monday amounted to 1,386,000 bushels. The inability of shorts to cover their commitments yesterday suggested that holders of the July future wish to take delivery on the grain.

Talk of a corner in the future developed as a result of the tight situation, and traders short of the market were apprehensive over the possible price action today. A big oats crop is now being harvested, with plentiful supplies in prospect. Stocks available for immediate delivery in Chicago, however, are comparatively small.

The expiring futures of all other grains closed the day at lower prices. July wheat dropped 1⅞ cents a bushel and July corn lost ¼ cent. The closing quotations on September futures, with comparative prices, follow:

	Yesterday.	Monday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$ .91⅞	$ .92⅝	$ .94⅛
Corn	.76⅛	.76⅞	.75⅞
Oats	.33	.33¼	.31¼
Rye	.45⅝	.47	.45

Report Russia Selling Wheat.

The sharp break in the Liverpool market was variously ascribed to offerings of new wheat from Russia around 30 cents a bushel and a forecast of rain in the province of Buenos Aires, the largest wheat producing section in Argentine. If drouth conditions are relieved in Buenos Aires it will result in increased seeding in that province, foreign messages asserted.

An estimate that the spring wheat crop in the Dakotas, Montana and Minnesota, exclusive of the durum variety, would yield between 7 and 8 bushels to the acre was made yesterday by the Monarch Elevator company. On the basis of this estimate the total production of the four states would amount to about 123 million bushels, compared with the 190 million bushels suggested by the government July 1 report. The elevator company expressed the belief that the per acre yield of durum wheat would amount to about 13 bushels, or an indicated total crop of 35,600,000, against the earlier official estimate of 37,303,000.

HOGS CLOSE FIRM AFTER EARLY DIP; CATTLE HIGHER

Sudden action taken Monday by 17 Chicago packers to restrain collection of processing taxes had little influence on the hog market yesterday. Both the extreme top and average price remained unchanged at $13.10 and 12.20, respectively, including the $2.25 processing tax. Prices rallied after opening weak to 10 cents lower, but the trade closed active and steady with the average of the preceding session.

Receipts were moderate, but only about 20 per cent of the total was billed direct to packers, leaving a larger proportion of the run on the open market. Fresh pork advanced as much as $1 per hundred pounds.

Competition in the cattle market centered in the light steers and butcher stock. Prices moved irregularly higher, many sales indicating gains of 25 to 35 cents for the day. Inbetween classes of mixed yearlings, light steers, and hefers are selling to the best advantage, the bulk of these showing gains of 50 to 75 cents compared with a week ago.

Light weights selling from $7.25 to $9.25 show the sharpest advances over the recent low point. Highly finished steers were quoted as high as $12, but none here was good enough to sell over $11.70.

Lamb prices were firm. City butchers bought selected ewe and wether natives up to $8.60 and packers took the bulk at $8.50 and below.
